ROOT THROWS BOMB INTO BOSSES' CAMP

HUGHES ADDS HIS SUPPORT

Caucus Is Adjourned Till Thursday by Vote of 18 to 12—Statewide Split in Party Predicted.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—At the caucus of the Republican Senators held here to-night for the purpose of electing a successor to Jotham P. Allds as President pro tem. of the Senate, the Old Guard element in the Republican organization joined issue with the friends of Gov. Hughes and the advocates of his policies.

The influence of United States Senator Root and the Federal Administration was thrown into the balance in favor of the latter, and yet the first set-to was a draw. Following the adjournment of the caucus to-night without any action, the prediction was made by men in both camps that the present situation may be the forerunner of a State-wide fight which may split the Republican Party wide open from one end of the State to the other unless the old-line leaders recede from the position they have taken, which is declared to be virtually one of open opposition to President Taft and the views he has expressed with reference to what should be done to restore the party in this State to public confidence.

The friends of Senator George H. Cobb of Jefferson, who was the choice of the bosses for the place so briefly occupied by Senator Allds, went into the caucus to-night with a sufficient number of votes to elect their man. Then like a bolt from a clear sky there was flashed on them a message from Senator Root to Senator Davenport of Oneida, advocating the selection of Senator Harvey D. Hinman of Broome for the vacant leadership of the Senate majority.

Text of Root's Telegram.

Washington, D. C., March 8, 1910.
Hon Frederick M. Davenport, State Senate, Albany, N. Y.:

The conditions attending the selection of a Republican leader in the State Senate seem to justify an expression of opinion regarding the proposed action as a matter of general party policy. After much careful inquiry and consideration, I am clearly of the opinion that under existing circumstances the selection of Senator Hinman is plainly indicated as the only course which will present the Republican Party to the people of the State in the true light, will correctly exhibit the real relation of the party as a whole to the principles and policies for which Gov. Hughes stands, and will rightly represent the wishes of the voters of the party. Any other action would, it seems to me, be most unfortunate and injurious.

It is my understanding that while Gov. Hughes does not feel at liberty to interfere with an expression of his opinion, his personal view regarding Mr. Hinman's selection is similar to that which I have now expressed. I have consulted with a considerable number of the experienced and disinterested members of our party in the State and I find a uniform concurrence with the view which I have expressed. I wish it distinctly understood that this view involves no reflection whatever upon any of the other gentlemen whose names have been mentioned as possible candidates. I should be glad to have you submit these expressions for the consideration of other Republicans at Albany. ELIHU ROOT.

Hughes Stands with Root.

For the first time Gov. Hughes has made known his views on a matter more or less of a political nature which does not lie immediately within his province. He was asked to-night what he thought of the Root telegram. He said his attitude was well known. It was declared at the Republican Club. He is very glad indeed that Senator Root is actively interested in the situation. This is a critical exigency, and the Governor's desire is that the Republican Party should taken the strongest possible position before the people of the State.

Senator Hinman has been mentioned from time to time as the man whom the little crowd of insurgents who failed to enter the caucus that led to the election of Senator Allds, and incidentally to the present investigation, would like to see in the place of the former majority leader.

These expressions, as a rule, have been greeted with bursts of merriment from the regulars. Senator Root could not very well have advocated the election of a man who from the point of view of the bosses was more undesirable. At the last session and also at this Hinman was the sponsor for the Governor Direct Nominations bill.

Another possible factor in the situation was eliminated to-day when Senator Allds announced that he would not again be a candidate for President pro tem. in case of his acquittal in the trial now in progress.

The caucus got together to-night after the friends of Senator Cobb had managed, with much hard work, to muster up the sufficient number of signatures to make it compulsory to have the caucus called. Seventeen members of the Senate majority signed the call, which was handed down as the Senate adjourned this evening by Senator George A. Davis of Erie, the presiding officer, himself a candidate for the majority leadership.

The Senators who in obedience to such leaders as State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff, William Barnes, Jr., the boss of Albany; Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, and George W. Aldridge of Rochester, had thrown themselves into the fight for the election of Cobb, went into the caucus to-night assured that they would carry the day.

The resentment that followed the reading of the Root telegram was bitter. The caucus, as usual, was held behind closed doors and only an inkling of what occurred has become known. The opponents of Senator Cobb's election managed to force an adjournment until Thursday evening after the hottest kind of a fight, but their opponents declared to-night that, despite what they term "the butting in of Root," they will elect their man when the caucus meets again.

Caucus Is Called to Order.

Senator Wainwright of Westchester presided at the caucus, and Senator Emerson of Warren was elected Secretary. Senator Brough of New York moved that the caucus proceed to the business for which it was called. Senator Allen of Rensselaer proposed as an amendment that the election be postponed until Thursday evening. The amendment was seconded by Senator Eugene M. Travis of Kings, the only Senator from the ballwick of State Chairman Woodruff who does not go to him for orders.

The debate opened by Senator Daven-

ROOSEVELT IS NOW HUNTED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 8.—A special dispatch from Khartoum to The Daily Mail says:

"Ex-President Roosevelt is now becoming the hunted instead of the hunter. A number of American newspaper correspondents are lying in wait for him all along the river. They have hired steamboats and launches at fabulous charges, and each is anxious to be the first to greet him and ask him if he will stand for the Presidency of the States again.

"It is not yet known when Mr. Roosevelt will arrive here. An official telegram of inquiry sent Saturday is still unanswered. The ex-President is hunting water buck near Lake No, far from any telegraph station."

ROOSEVELT TO VISIT MISSION.

Spends Day in Shooting Along Tributary of White Nile.

MELUT, Soudan, March 8.—Col. Roosevelt and his party devoted to-day to shooting along the banks of the Bahr-el-Ghazal, a western tributary of the White Nile.

Mr. Roosevelt has planned to visit the American Mission at Doleib Hill, near where the Sebat River empties into the White Nile to-morrow. There will be no official reception to the party at Taufikia or Kodok.

Doleib Hill is the northernmost missionary outpost in Africa of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church of North America. The station was established in 1901 and is in charge of seven Americans, including two industrial missionaries, one ordained missionary, and a medical missionary.

RUN DOWN BY BABY CARRIAGE.

Two Sped on, Leaving Old Thomas Farrell's Shoulder Dislocated.

The police are looking for two reckless baby carriage chauffeurs who were responsible for serious injury afflicted on Thomas Farrell yesterday afternoon at Third Avenue and Forty-fifth Street. The police havn't any numbers to work on as clues, for the reckless chauffeurs did not even look back after the accident, but went on as if they didn't know that they left disaster in their wake. The police are hoping that some eye-witnesses will come forward and give full descriptions of the chauffeurs and their charges.

Thomas Farrell stood on the northeast corner of Third Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, well out of the way of the persons on the sidewalk and the vehicles on the street, as he thought. Because he was looking down Third Avenue for a car, he did not see the two baby carriages racing down upon him from the north and south.

The south-bound and the north-bound baby carriage chauffeurs saw each other at the same time, which was when they were yet fifty feet apart, and the north-bound chauffeur called across the space to her friend:

"Did I tell you last time that Fritz Augustus had cut his third toofie? Oh, you needn't tell me—"

The south-bound chauffeur was smiling in complacent contempt, being the mother of a baby already possessed of five teeth, and each bore down upon the other with increasing speed, having eyes only for the other's baby. The carriages came together just where Thomas Farrell stood. He was rolled between them, felled to the pavement, and left there unnoticed. He never knew what struck him. The south-bound chauffeur wheeled her vehicle, accompanying the other back up Third Avenue at a rapid rate, both talking at once.

A kindly man lifted Thomas Farrell from the street and turned him over to Policeman O'Brien, who ran up at this time. He was rushed to Flower Hospital in an ambulance by Dr. Hanton, who said that his right shoulder had been dislocated and that he had suffered a severe shock. He is 74 years old.

The doctors are trying to keep from old Mr. Farrell that it was speeding baby carriages that injured him, for fear that the additional shock of shame will act against his recovery.

PANIC IN THE SUBWAY.

Passengers Smash Windows to Escape from Burning Car.

Frightened by smoke and bright flashes of electricity when a short circuit started a fire in the controller box and under the flooring of the third car of a local train as it entered the Worth Street station of the Subway late last night, passengers in the car fought with the guards who were slow in opening the doors, and report had it that several passengers smashed and climbed out through windows of the car. There was a tie-up for twenty minutes, after which the car proceeded with most of its passengers.

Just what caused the short circuit the Interborough employes did not seem to know. The train, a northbound Lenox Avenue local, was just entering the Worth Street station when there was a bright flash of light around the cars, followed by a volume of smoke which poured into the second, third, and fourth cars of the five-car train.

Although the car had almost stopped at the station the guards would not open the gates at the request of the passengers in the third car, who were getting the most of the smoke and the full benefit of the electric display. Some of them turned to the windows and tried to open them. They were puzzled by the mechanism of the windows, as only the top sash is movable, and their shouts and frantic efforts to get out increased the excitement.

To further frighten the passengers one of the employes of the Interborough on the station platform smashed in two windows with an axe. The shattering of the glass frightened the passengers so that they crowded so close to the guards that it was impossible for a time for them to swing open the doors.

McKEE-SCHWAB SUIT.

Ex-Judge Ernest Hall Named as Referee—No Papers Filed.

Notice of the appointment of ex-Supreme Court Justice Ernest Hall as referee to hear, try, and determine a suit of H. Sellers McKee against Charles M. Schwab, was filed with the County Clerk yesterday. The papers give no indication of the character of the action. Frederick W. Garvin, attorney for Mr. McKee, declined to say last night what the suit was about.

H. Sellers McKee is the father of A. Hart McKee. He left Pittsburg shortly after Oct. 13, 1907, when Mrs. A. Hart McKee was suing his son for divorce. He had quit the Duquesne Club in Pittsburg, when some of the members criticised his son and ordered his brokers to close out the Pittsburg interests. He was known to have been heavily interested in the National Glass Company and the American Window Glass Company.

SIX ARE SHOT DOWN BY STRIKEBREAKERS

STRIKE AT A STANDSTILL

Union Leaders Say That Thousands More Have Quit Work, but City Official Denies It.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—Six persons, including a young girl, were wounded to-night by bullets fired by a party of strikebreakers who stole a car, rode wildly up and down Frankford Avenue, and shot into the crowds that lined the sidewalks.

The trouble was started by a crowd of Kensington boys. So strict and so numerous were the police in the Kensington district that the boys were afraid to assault the cars, so they marched in a body to Frankford, where the police are not so numerous.

Upon their arrival in Frankford the boys amused themselves throwing stones at cars on Frankford Avenue. Although many windows were broken, there was no serious trouble until two cars filled with strikebreakers left the barn and passed down Frankford Avenue. These cars were stopped by the mob at Harrison Street and the windows were broken by a volley of stones. It is reported that one of the men in the cars was struck with a brick. At all events, the men in the cars reversed their motors and drove the cars at full speed back to the barn.

Back of the cars a huge mob of howling men and boys ran in hot pursuit. Without slackening speed at the street crossings, the cars were taken up the avenue and into the barn. Outside the barn a great crowd was gathered, reinforced momentarily by the runners who had been pursuing the fleeing cars.

Start Out for Revenge.

Once inside the barn, the strikebreakers spread the news that they had been pursued. Aparty of fifteen men armed with revolvers boarded a large car, opened the doors of the barn, charged out through the door, and at full speed ran the car down Frankford Avenue.

The appearance of the car was the signal for a hail of missiles, which crashed into the windows and struck the men in the car. The motorman of the car held one hand on the controller handle, while with the other he held his revolver. The conductor, with a revolver in his hand, leaned out of the back window of the car, braving the hail of bricks and stones and held on the pole rope, so no one could pull the pole from the wire and thus have the car and its crew at the mercy of the mob.

Sergt. Thompson of the Frankford Police Station, who has been on duty at the door of this barn in Frankford, dispatching the cars, had been called to the station house on official business tonight and the strikebreakers in the barn had things their own way. Thus they were able to steal the car.

Fortify Their Car.

At first the men in the charging trolley car did not attempt to fire. Instead they put in their time fortifying the vehicle. All the glass was smashed from the window frames, and seats were placed on end, forming shields from which the men could take shelter as they aimed.

After their preparations for offense and defense were complete, the garrison of fifteen strike-breakers lined the side windows on both sides of the car and opened fire on the pursuing mob. They fired at everything and everybody. Owing to the speed of the car, however, no one was hit on this wild ride down the avenue. The mob, not seeming to mind the fusillade of bullets, threw bricks at the swaying, rumbling car, some of the men in the mob running to their homes to get their revolvers.

On the way to Allegheny Avenue the men in the car saw a lighted window in the home of John Sipple, at 4,116 Kensington Avenue. Kensington Avenue is a continuation of Frankford Avenue. A volley was fired at the lighted window, one of the bullets narrowly missing Mrs. Sipple, who was reading at the window. Upon the bed lay the little girl of Mrs. Sipple. The bullet passed over the child, striking the head board and failing to the bed upon the child. Neither Mrs. Sipple nor the child was injured.

When the car arrived at Allegheny Avenue, the pole was turned around, the motors were reversed, and a wild run back to the Frankford car barn was begun.

The men in the car continued firing. When the car arrived at the station of the Reading Railway at Church Street John Maloney fell to the ground with a bullet in his leg. The mob roared with rage, and the car continued its wild course up Frankford Avenue. Michael Osborne was the next man to be hit by a bullet from a revolver of a strikebreaker, and then Helen May, a girl of 14 years, was hit at Overington Street and fell to the pavement. The child had been to the Frankford Library with some books, and was on her way from the library to her home in Kensington when shot.

Armed Men Threaten Them.

Meanwhile the news had spread through Frankford, and a band of citizens, armed with rifles and shotguns, had collected on the corner of the church near the car barn and waited for the approach of the car. All these citizens wanted was a chance to open fire on the belligerent crew. When the car arrived at this point, however, the strikebreakers, apparently finding themselves outnumbered, ceased firing.

Then the men on the pavement gathered in front of the car, stopping further progress, and implored the men inside to open fire again so that they might have an opportunity to return the fire with their rifles and shotguns. The crew refused to do so. A shot was then fired from the crowd on the pavement and a man in the car was seen to fall to the floor.

At this the car was once started in motion again, and both car and defenders passed within the barn and the huge gates were closed.

A parting shot was fired before the car entered the barn, the bullet passing through the helmet of Policeman Bragg of the Frankford Station.

Later in the evening William Smith of Mulberry Street, Frankford, who was one of a number of curious persons congregated on the sidewalk at Paul and Meadow Street, was struck over the head by one of the negro policemen sworn in for strike duty. His skull was fractured.

Supt. of Police Taylor and two Police Lieutenants went to Frankford in an automobile as soon as word of the trouble reached City Hall. They at once took possession of the car barn, searched the men for weapons, and confiscated many revolvers. No information would

WHAT MRS. BELMONT HAS DONE FOR WOMAN

And What She Has Spent on Her in the Suffrage Cause, All Set Forth by Herself, to Last Cent.

IT'S NOT HER SWAN SONG

Supporters of Political Equality Association Say Mrs. Mackay's Rivalry Has Not Driven Her from the Field.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont issued a statement to the newspapers yesterday setting forth in detail all the work she has done since she became interested in the cause of woman suffrage, the expenditures of the organization she founded, the Political Equality Association, and the donations she has made personally to "the cause." The summary is given as the work of the association, which, however, has contributed through its members, aside from the President, only $3,401. The expenditure is set forth to the last cent.

The total expenditure since the starting of the organization, which is the same thing as the beginning of Mrs. Belmont's interest in woman suffrage, has been $41,106.89, practically all of it Mrs. Belmont's personal contributions. The details of expenditure include money spent in support of the National and State Woman Suffrage organizations, which by Mrs. Belmont's aid have been brought to New York City and established in quarters at 505 Fifth Avenue.

When the statement was offered for publication it was understood that Mrs. Belmont was ill and on the point of going abroad to make a prolonged visit to her daughter, the Duchess of Marlborough. It was announced that she would sail today by the doctor's orders. On Monday she was said to be ill, suffering from grip and a weakened heart, and that a consultation of three physicians had been called. She was able to be out on Monday afternoon, and the sailing was postponed for a month. The statement, which had been prepared to be issued in the event of her leaving the country, was sent out just the same.

Mrs. Mackay Her Rival.

In view of the proposed visit abroad there were published several statements to the effect that in the large work she had done for suffrage Mrs. Belmont had found a rival in Mrs. Mackay, also a great worker and heavy investor in the cause of votes for women, that her health had been undermined by the fight for supremacy, which had been more or less bitter, and that she was therefore obliged to leave the field and seek refuge in England.

"As a matter of fact," says a woman who knows the situation, "Mrs. Belmont's health is no worse than it has been except as at the end of a hard season one is always more or less worn out. She has not been at all well for a long time, but as for her giving up the fight, worn out and defeated by a rival, that is nonsense. That there has been a rivalry between Mrs. Belmont and Mrs. Mackay there can be no doubt. Both are women to force and character, who like to reign supreme, and coming from the same class of society neither is going to acknowledge the other in any way as her leader in the suffrage work into which each has thrown the powers of mind, body, and money.

"No one need think that in sending out this statement Mrs. Belmont was singing her swan song. It was nothing of the kind. She has only, in doing it, marshaled her forces victoriously before the world, showing what she has done in the past and what she may do, if she wishes, in the future. She has shown wonderful initiative in the suffrage work she has undertaken, and the statement is a remarkable document. Not a single one of her efforts has been forgotten down to paying for press clippings and having photographs taken to help make them. There can be no question of the ability of a woman with such a record of work and every item and expenditure carefully kept. The whole thing is a song of victory."

The statement begins with the organization of the Political Equality League which Mrs. Belmont founded in August, 1909, and of which she is President and all other officers combined. There is said to be a large membership. There were lectures at Marble House, Newport, to begin the work, which brought in $1,592.48, the statement says, with expenditures of $881.05. The subscriptions of members already mentioned and $1,030 earned by Mrs. Belmont in writing magazine articles, and interest on the bank account, $21.49, form a gross total of $6,104.97, which has been the only money brought in for expenses.

"The association meanwhile," the statement goes on, "invited the National Woman Suffrage Association and the New York State Woman Suffrage Association to make their headquarters in New York City, providing them a place at 505 Fifth Avenue. The National association paid a nominal rental, and the State association had its offic rent free. The association [this standing always for Mrs. Belmont] provided offices for the National Press Bureau free of rent and undertook the maintenance of the press bureau at an expense of $6,000 to $7,000 a year, the association [Mrs. Belmont] agreeing to continue the arrangements as to offices and press bureau for two years.

"The offices of the association [Mrs. Belmont's organization] were secured in the same building and furnished by the President. The furnishings of the offices and the offices of the press bureau and partitions in the offices occupied by the National association were donated by the President (Mrs. Belmont) and represent an approximate outlay of $3,000." The statement goes on to tell of the work of the Political Equality Association from October on.

"In the hope of being able to crystallize the sentiment among the people of the State, the President [Mrs. Belmont] wrote upward of 8,500 personal letters, an agent was employed to canvass the State, and a further effort was made to bring victory by the employment of an organizer at an expense of $1,200 a year to work in connection with and under the control of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association. The association has

BLACK HAND DELUGE DESCENDS ON CARUSO

BUT HE ISN'T FRIGHTENED

Big Police Guard Provided in Brooklyn to Prevent Alleged Plan to Throw Acid on Him.

More Black Hand letters, demanding money under pain of death, have been received by Enrico Caruso, the tenor. They have been coming with almost every mail, and in his apartments in the Hotel Knickerbocker there is now a stack of curiously worded missives a foot high. But Signor Caruso is not a bit afraid, he says—worried and annoyed, that's all. He told a TIMES reporter this yesterday.

With the news of these additional threatening letters which the tenor has received since the arrest of the two Italians in Brooklyn on Friday night, the real reason was learned why the police gave him a "President's" guard on Monday night when he appeared at the Academy of Music to sing in "La Gioconda." It was a threat to throw acid on Caruso from an upper box in the Academy of Music which caused all the excitement in the Police Department, a threat contained in a briefly worded note, written in Sicilian dialect and apparently by a woman.

Threatened on Leaving for Opera.

It was only a few hours before Caruso was ready to start for Brooklyn that the threatening note was handed to him.

A moment after he had read it he was calling Detective Headquarters on the telephone, and soon afterward the detectives of the Italian squad knew all about it. They have the note now, but will not make it public. But it was learned yesterday on the best authority that the writer informed Caruso that unless he would bow, near the end of the third act, to some one who would be in the box on the left hand side of the stage, acid would be thrown on the tenor. The note explained that this odd request was being made so that the writer could learn whether Signor Caruso was really afraid or not. It was not quite coherent, but the sense of the missive was quite plain to both Caruso and the police.

Signor Caruso did not bow to the occupants of the box indicated in the note. At least he says he did not, and Acting Captain Gloster of the Italian squad says Caruso did not. For it was Gloster himself who counseled Caruso not to bow to the box nor to give any evidence that he had received the note.

"We will see to it that nothing happens to you," he told the tenor.

Just who was in that upper left-hand box at the Academy on Monday night the police say they do not know. There were two handsomely gowned women there, also several men in evening dress, but no one who looked at all suspicious, so the detectives made no effort to learn the names of the occupants.

No name was signed to the "acid letter," as the police call it. But two initials were at the end. What the initials were the detectives will not say.

Letter from Philadelphia.

But this "acid letter" is not the only one which has caused Signor Caruso uneasiness since the receipt of the two so-called Black Hand letters last week. There is another that arrived yesterday from Philadelphia advising Caruso to insert a small advertisement in the personal column of The Philadelphia Inquirer on Thursday when he goes there to sing. The instructions were for him to say in the advertisement that he was willing to meet the writer of the letter. He was informed that the writer knows the identity of the men who are behind the plot to deprive Caruso of some of his money, and would divulge the names of the real culprits at the proper time. The letter went on to say that Antonio Cincotti and Antonio Misiani, who were arrested in Brooklyn following the receipt of a letter by Caruso telling him to place $15,000 on a stoop at Van Brunt and Sackett Streets are not the guilty men.

This letter from Philadelphia is not in the same handwriting as the two received by Caruso last week, but it is signed with the same initials as one of them bore—"La M. C. D. M."

And there are dozens of other letters, some threatening, some begging for money.

"I wish they would stop," said Caruso yesterday. "All this is very distasteful to me. They are annoying me very much."

But Caruso will not give up his trip to Philadelphia to-morrow night. He will be accompanied to the station by several detectives from Headquarters. In fact, he never gets far away from the Headquarters men nowadays. Whenever he leaves his apartments in the Knickerbocker one of the Italian squad is not far away. They are taking no chances of having Signor Caruso killed in New York.

Nor is the man from the Italian squad at Headquarters the only guardian of Caruso. He has a personal bodyguard, composed of seven of his friends, two of whom, at least, are always with him, both in the hotel and in the street. All of them are armed. Caruso himself carries a revolver and a sword cane whenever he leaves the Knickerbocker.

The receipt of the threatening letter has badly frightened Signor Caruso's friends. In fact, Caruso's closest friend is said to be in a private hospital. He is Armando Lecompte, a baritone, who ever since Caruso has been in this city has been with him constantly until four days ago, when he left the Knickerbocker, saying that he was going to Dr. Bull's sanitarium.

Caruso Sticks to His Hotel.

Caruso kept close to his apartments in the Knickerbocker until late in the afternoon yesterday. He was visited there by his lawyer, Alfred F. Seligsberg, several times in the day, but Mr. Seligsberg was not inclined to talk to reporters. He was found over the telephone in Caruso's room about noon and asked where he might be seen by reporters later.

"Meet me in the office of the press agent in the Metropolitan Opera House," he said.

But later when he appeared there and some one suggested that the whole Black Hand scare might be a press agent yarn, Mr. Seligsberg scouted the idea.

Up in Caruso's apartments his friends sat around most of the day talking the matter over. Detective Mundo of the Italian Squad visited him early in the afternoon and assured the tenor that no danger seemed imminent. He also learned from Caruso on what nights he will sing for the next two weeks, so that the police may be prepared to offer him an escort whenever he appears in public.

It was approaching dusk when Caruso and two of his personal bodyguard, Signors Voghera and Missiano, appeared in

HALSBURY CLEARS CALENDAR.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 8.—Lord Halsbury, who is nearly 85 years old, took up today the complicated work of the Appeal Court in order to prevent an accumulation of business, owing to the absence of two Lord Justices.

The veteran's brightness and zest for work were remarkable. He created a record, closing the three cases on the day's list by luncheon time, and in the afternoon disposing of another case which had been set for to-morrow.

NEW APPENDIX DISEASE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 8.—A fresh series of indictments was brought against the appendix as a cause of human suffering at a meeting of the Royal Society of Medicine to-day.

Twenty-four operation cases, in which the chief symptoms were stomach pains due to an unrecognized disease of the appendix, were described. In fifteen cases the operation was undertaken for a supposed ulcer, either in the stomach or in the adjoining intestine, only to find that these parts were normal, while the appendix was diseased.

Dr. Herbert J. Paterson, who read a paper on the subject, suggested the name appendicular gastralgia for the new disease on account of its most prominent symptom, a stomach pain due to a disease of the appendix.

PATTEN STIRS LIVERPOOL.

Believed There That He Is Engineering a May Deal.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LIVERPOOL, March 8.—James A. Patten, who disembarked here from the Mauretania, lunched to-day with a leading cotton broker, afterward visiting the Exchange. He remarked jocularly that the full run had not yet commenced, adding, "This is only a preliminary canter."

It is firmly believed here that he is engineering a May deal. Mr. Patten says he intends to return on the Mauretania Saturday, if possible.

LIVERPOOL, March 8.—The arrival here to-day of James A. Patten of Chicago caused considerable excitement in cotton circles, despite his disclaimer of an intention to deal in wheat or cotton and his explanation that he was in England only for a brief holiday. Cables from America heralding Patten's visit hinted of the possibility of his having designs on the Liverpool market, and as a result the local dealers are watching the American's movements closely.

PRAYER OVER POSTAL BANKS.

And by the House, Too, Says Weeks with a Smile—No Hurry to Act.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Postal Savings Bank bill, which passed the Senate last Saturday, reached the House to-day and was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

"When will the bill be reported!" was asked of Chairman Weeks.

"Not this week," replied Mr. Weeks with a smile. "We propose to give this bill not only earnest but very prayerful consideration. It is liable to be some time before we are through with it."

It has not been decided whether the Post Office Committee will have hearings on the bill. Mr. Weeks has been reported as being personally opposed to the bill.

"Anything that Aldrich and La Follette vote for," he said, "must have a vast amount of 'straddle' in it."

E. D. THOMAS, JR., A SUICIDE.

Son of Brig. Gen. Thomas Shoots Himself at Colorado Springs.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., March 8.—Shortly before 12 o'clock to-day Earl D. Thomas, Jr., 30 years old, a son of Brig. Gen. Earl D. Thomas, commander of the Department of Colorado with headquarters in Denver, fired a bullet into his brain in his room at a local hotel and died instantly.

Indications are that he had premeditated suicide. He came to Colorado Springs on Sunday from Fort Logan and registered as J. E. Franklin of Denver. Last night he and several friends went to Colorado City, where they are said to have drunk freely. On the return to Colorado Springs one of his companions took Thomas's revolver and removed the cartridges. This morning Thomas called on his friend and obtained the cartridges. After taking a short automobile ride, accompanied only by a chauffeur, he returned to the hotel and shot himself.

While Thomas appeared to be in a highly nervous state this morning he gave his friends no intimation that he intended to take his life.

Young Thomas had served for several years as clerk to the Commissary General of the Department of Colorado and Wyoming at Fort Logan.

OHIO LIQUOR MEN DEFEATED.

Saloon Measure Fails to Pass Senate —May Affect Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 8.—The Dean bill, which was an amendment to the county local option law giving municipalities the right to vote alone on the question of liquor selling, regardless of whether the counties in which they are situated voted "wet" or "dry," was defeated in the State Senate to-day by a vote of 18 to 16.

Upon the passage of this bill, it is believed depended the best chance the Republicans had of carrying the State for Governor against Gov. Harmon at the coming election. Two representatives of the State Liquor League went to Washington recently and delivered an ultimatum to Senators Burton and Dick, and also saw that the object of their visit was made known to President Taft. They declared that the liquor vote had elected Harmon Governor and that if the Dean bill was not passed the same cause would re-elect Harmon.

Wade H. Ellis, Chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, arrived here this morning, and was closeted with representatives of the liquor league.

ALLDS IN A TANGLE OVER A STOCK DEAL

OSBORNE HARSH WITH HIM

Asks Why He Obeyed Platt and Why He Did Nothing When Told of Proposed Corruption.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—While the air at the Capitol was surcharged with persistent rumors that "organization influences" were being exerted for the whitewashing of Senator Jotham P. Allds of Chenango, respondent before the Senate on a thousand-dollar bribery charge, the accused Senator to-day was being put through his first day's cross-examination by James W. Osborne, counsel for Senator Benn Conger, who lodged that charge against his colleague.

For severity the cross-examination of Senator Allds vastly overshadowed the five-day ordeal his accuser was made to undergo earlier in the investigation by counsel for the accused. Mr. Osborne propounded question after question of heart-searching, conscience-probing portent. Sometimes he purred his queries in tones as gentle as his soft Southern accent could make them, and yet they seemed to cut like a two-edged sword. Senator Allds, with the perspiration at times breaking out all over his face, fenced and squirmed and hesitated and stumbled in his answers until, time and again, it became necessary for his counsel to come to his aid and protect him from the aggressively inquisitorial process.

Just as the hearing was drawing to its close for the day Mr. Osborne introduced a cross-examination which took Senator Allds and his counsel entirely by surprise. This had to do with the passage of the so-called Fifth Avenue Stage bill—which created a lot of comment when it was railroaded through the Legislature in the closing days of the 1900 session—and the possession by Senator Allds of a block of stock of the New York Transportation Company—which took over the business of the stage company—that the witness, when the hearing adjourned for the day, had not explained to the satisfaction of Mr. Osborne.

Mr. Allds said he had purchased the stock in 1900. Mr. Osborne asked him to produce in evidence a certified copy of his bank accounts in New York City and Norwich for that year, thus provoking spirited objections from counsel.

Platt's Name Shields Allds.

With Thomas C. Platt lying dead and with the Senate and Assembly taking action to pay him the last honors, his name was dragged repeatedly through the mire at the hearing to-day. Senator Allds, seeking shelter behind the dead leader, insisted in reply to the questions of Mr. Osborne that the letters of Senator Platt, already in evidence, had determined his action on the Bridge bill which Senator Conger swore Senator Allds received $1,000 to aid in killing.

"I am going to ask you," said Mr. Osborne after the witness again had pleaded the Platt letters as an excuse for his action on the Malby-Stevens bill, "Do you think a man who would kill a bill like this which you admitted was a good bill, a man who took all steps he could devise to defeat it because somebody else asked him to do it in behalf of a private interest, kept his oath as an Assemblyman?"

"I submit that that question is for the committee to decide," interposed Mr. Littleton.

"No, I beg your pardon, it is a question for his own conscience," retorted Mr. Osborne.

"I regard that I kept my oath as an Assemblyman during the entire session of 1901," replied the witness, after Senator Davis, who presided, had instructed him to answer.

"Do you believe that the constituency who elected you expected you when you came here to fulfill your duty and to act on your own judgment on all such matters as these?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"They expected me to exercise my own judgment, yes," said Senator Allds.

"They didn't expect you to exercise somebody else's judgment?"

"They committed the trust to me personally."

"They committed the trust to you personally, and I ask you if you do not recognize the fact that the delegation of a trustee's conscience to somebody else's keeping is more dangerous to society than the taking of an occasional bribe?"

This question brought forth a storm of protest from the counsel for Senator Allds and, in the midst of a spirited objection by Mr. Littleton, Mr. Osborne suddenly withdrew the question and went after the witness on another tack.

Conger's Note Praised Allds.

Never during this investigation has there been such a crush on the floor of the Senate or in the galleries as there was at the hearing to-day. Every inch of available space was occupied by spectators who followed the cross-examination of Senator Allds with breathless interest. There were other hundreds clamoring at the doors of the galleries and of the chamber as well whom the doorkeepers were compelled to turn away.

The hearing began with Senator Allds under direct examination by Martin W. Littleton of his counsel. He admitted that he had a safe deposit box in the building of the First National Bank of Norwich in which he kept papers and securities, and he also cleared up some odds and ends of the testimony he had given last week.

Mr. Littleton closed the examination of his client by introducing a letter written by Senator Benn Conger to Senator Allds just one month after the sensational bribing episode he and "Hi" Moe described on the stand. In this letter Mr. Conger spoke about the man he now accuses of a criminal offense in the highest terms. The letter produced such an atmosphere that some were ready to declare that it was all over, and that the Conger charges would be thrown out of court, but on cross-examination later Mr. Osborne contrived to make out of that letter a weapon on which he used with stunning effect on the accused Senator. The missive follows:

Groton, N. Y., May 21, 1901.

My Dear Assemblyman: Your letter of May 18 is received. I was very glad to hear from you, and I want to assure you that of all my Albany friends and acquaintances there is no one whom I would be more pleased to assist and honor than the member from Chenango. And when I say this for myself, I am sure I also voice the sentiments of every man on the Republican side of the House. We all know Joe could be relied upon to assist us in our bills and help us in every way he could, and, personally, I feel under great obligations to you and Fred for what you were able to do for me in protecting my business interests in the Rules Committee.

While I do not expect to be returned again to Albany, as our county only sends a man twice, I shall remember with the greatest pleasure my associations with you and allers in Albany. If the time ever comes in the future when I can be of assistance to you in any way, politically or otherwise, do not hesitate to call upon me. Very truly yours BENN CONGER.

Hazy Memory of Stock Purchase.

The Allds New York Transportation stock transaction was not brought up until late in the afternoon. Senator Allds said he had purchased the stock in 1900.

"Could you name the party from whom it was purchased?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I could tell you how it was purchased," said Senator Allds.

"Can you name the party from whom you bought it?"

"One of the members of the house in which we lived made a purchase jointly for three or four members of the family there, and the shares of stock, the one hundred to which I subscribed, were issued to me in my name," said Senator Allds.

Mr. Allds said that by the "house" he meant the so-called "House of Commons," where he lived with Speaker Nixon and some other members of the Assembly on a sort of community basis. Mr. Osborne repeated his question as to who purchased the stock.

"I could not tell you whether it was Mr. Price or whether it was Mr. Gilman; it was some one of the gentlemen who were going down at the end of the week," said Senator Allds.

Q.—What is Mr. Gilman's full name? A.—Theodore P. Gilman.

Q.—Where does he live? A.—New York City.

Q.—What is the name of the other gentleman? A.—Frank Price.

Q.—Where does he live? A.—I suppose he still lives in Brooklyn. He was an Assemblyman at that time from Brooklyn.

Q.—Now, they bought a block—by a block I mean a quantity—of that stock, did they; the members of the House of Commons? A.—I am not saying that it must have been either of those two gentlemen; it might also have been Mr. Fallows, who also lived there.

Q.—Who is Mr. Fallows? A.—Edward H. Fallows, a lawyer in New York City, then an Assemblyman.

Q.—Assemblyman Fallows? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Anybody else might have bought it? A.—It would be my recollection that some of the men who lived in New York; it might have been that Fred—Speaker Nixon—was going down that week, but I do not think so.

Q.—Do you know from whom they purchased it? A.—I do not.

Q.—All you know, that somebody handed you 100 shares of stock whose name you cannot mention? A.—That is not so.

Q.—The best you can say now is that one of the three men, the name of the particular one that you cannot mention, handed you 100 shares of stock? A.—No, Sir; they bought the stock, but it was transmitted to me.

Q.—Handed to you? A.—No, it came by mail.

Q.—Came by mail? Have you got the letter? A.—I have not.

Q.—You cannot produce the letter in which it was inclosed? A.—I cannot.

Q.—Well, the stock was sent, at any rate, from New York to you in Albany? A.—No; I think it was issued and mailed to me at Norwich, but I cannot tell you for sure.

Cannot Recall Payment.

"Now, do you recollect whether you paid for it by check or by bills?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I would not remember, no, Sir. That, you see, is ten years ago or more," the witness replied.

Q.—I understand it is ten years ago—but you keep your checks, don't you? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Your stubs? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—At that time how many bank accounts did you have, do you recollect? A.—I had one and possibly I had one down here at the National Commercial, although I cannot tell when—

At this point Mr. Osborne introduced in evidence the account of Senator Allds with the brokerage firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham, showing that on June 4, 1901, it had sold 100 shares of the New York Elecviric Vehicle and Transportation Company for $1,465.

"Can you tell me from what house it was bought," asked Mr. Osborne.

"I do not know anything about it, no Sir," said the witness. "I think about $1,550 was paid for it."

Q.—Was it paid in cash or by check? A.—I could not tell as to that.

Q.—Were you in the habit of paying such sums of money as that amount in bills? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Do you think in your life, during 1900 or 1901, you ever paid a bill of that amount in bills? A.—I would imagine it very likely, making an investment at that time of the year, that I would draw down some of the pay which I had accumulated with the financial clerk of the Assembly, and that part of it would be in bills and the balance I would expect to be in a check.

Q.—Did I understand you to say that you destroyed your checks? A.—I do not keep them; I do not destroy them; no, Sir.

Knew Little About Concern.

Q.—You have not the check, at any rate, if you did pay this with a check? A.—No, Sir. Let me say to you that my impression is that this was bought at about the time that the first assessment was levied; you remember that that was an assessable stock, and the first payment may have been $350 to $400 and the next $1,000 payment by way of assessment. I could not tell whether it was purchased just before or after the first assessment was made.

Q.—Well, you seem to have some idea about what that stock was; tell us all you recollect about it, please. A.—Why, there were certain New York parties that had taken over—I have understood since that they purchased it from the present Superintendent of Public Works, Mr. Stevens—certain electric patents and the then going business and so on, and consolidated the electric business; I do not know whether it related to locomobiles, automobiles, and general transportation of that sort; and it was expected that it would be a good stock and would advance.

Q.—Is that all you can tell us about it? A.—Well, I can remember distinctly that it is the one transaction in which I lost money, and, owing to the hard times, they did not seem to be able to float the new proposition, and it did not rise as it was expected that it would, owing to the times, just as they were in that year or two.

Q.—To refresh your memory I might tell you that there was a bill pending in the Assembly in 1900 giving that company a monopoly by consent from the State Railroad Commission to extend its routes all over New York. Don't you recollect the old Fifth Avenue Stage bill? A.—It must have come to my attention when I was reading the calendar and the analysis of the bills, but if you ask me if I have any present recollection—

Q.—Don't you recollect that the stock you got was the stock of the corporation which succeeded the Fifth Avenue Stage Company under this bill? A.—No, Sir; I have no knowledge of that nor any recollection either.

Bill Rushed Through Assembly.

The bill itself and the Assembly record were put in evidence to show that the bill was reported from the Committee on Rules and rushed through both second and third reading at one sitting, a most unusual thing. Mr. Allds voted for its passage on the floor of the Assembly, and was the second member on the Committee on Rules, of which Speaker Nixon was Chairman. The bill had originally been in the Railroad Committee, of which Louis Bedell, from Gov. Odell's district, was the Chairman. It was he who made the motion that the bill be read the second time and then be put on third reading.

"Now, don't you recognize the fact that the stock that you took was in the company that succeeded the Fifth Avenue Stage Line?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"It is not within my knowledge, and was not then," said Senator Allds.

Q.—So that you bought this stock and paid your money without knowing what you got? A.—I bought it on the suggestion made that it was a good stock to purchase, the same as I purchased many others.

Q.—At whose suggestion? A.—Well, it was around the dinner table, as stocks were discussed, as they were frequently; I could not say whether it was Mr. Gilman or Mr. Price or John Hill Morgan or who it was in the house; it might have been any one of them.

Q.—Nixon? A.—Yes, Sir, Nixon was there; Graham was there.

Q.—Well, I notice that among those that voted with you on that were Assemblyman Price and Assemblyman Fallows. Maybe if you look over the list here, you can find out by looking for those voted in behalf of the bill on that vote, exactly who it was that let you have the stock. Would you mind looking over? A.—I could not find from that.

Q.—I notice that Mr. Bedell voted that way, too, Louis Bedell? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Do you think it might have been Louis Bedell that bought the stock for you? A.—No, Sir, I do not.

Q.—Do you not think that is possible? A.—No, no.

Allds's Safe Deposit Box.

After a protracted squabble over Mr. Osborne's demand for the certified bank accounts of 1900, on which there was no ruling, Senator Allds was asked if he had been to his safe deposit box in Norwich between Jan. 5 this year and the time when he demanded an investigation. Mr. Allds said he thought not. He admitted that he had opened the box last week.

"Did you take something out or put something in?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I took something out. I gathered up my securities so as to make a tabulated statement of them for my counsel," said the witness.

"Was there anybody present at the time that would know what you had in the box?"

"No, nobody that knew."

Q.—So that the Senate has to trust exclusively to what you testify upon that subject? A.—As to the actual physical papers that I took out? Yes, Sir, probably.

Q.—Now I ask you, didn't you think it was, at the time, when you contemplated going before your brother Senators and the State of New York and show what you really are worth, to have taken somebody with you when you opened that safe deposit vault? A.—Why, that the facts would be impugned never occurred to me.

Q.—Did not Senator Conger impugn it somewhat? A.—What do you mean?

Q.—You knew, did you not—did you not recognize the fact that to a certain extent you were impugned, and did you not go in and demand an investigation in order to show that you were not correctly or truthfully impugned? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—And then I ask you, under those circumstances, if you did not deem it advisable, when you went to this place where you kept your valuables, to have had somebody with you? A.—Why, the necessity of it never occurred to me.

Mr. Osborne began his cross-examination by asking Senator Allds with reference to his conversation with Walter Cook, manager of the Acme Road Machinery Company, who, according to his direct testimony, gave him the first intimation of any corruption fund to beat the Malby-Stevens Bridge bill. Cook, it will be remembered, told Allds that he had received a communication from Frank Conger asking for $1,500 from the company to aid in defeating legislation hostile to the road and bridge concerns.

"You believed Cook's story and you were leader of the Republican majority in the Assembly, were you not?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I was," said Mr. Allds.

"And it was part of your duty to watch legislation and to see that good bills were passed and bad bills were defeated?"

"Yes, Sir."

"And you represented the honor and dignity of the Republican Party on the floor, did you not?"

"I was the spokesman of the party and I suppose I did."

Q.—Did you take Walter Cook to any District Attorney to have Frank Conger indicted? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you take any steps toward that direction? A.—No, Sir, I assumed—

Q.—Did you do it? A.—I said "No, Sir."

Q.—You knew that money was going to be used in that Legislature to influence legislation, didn't you? A.—I cannot answer that question.

Q.—You believde it, didn't you? A.—I did not believe any money would be raised after my conversation with Mr. Cook.

Q.—You did not believe; did you go and talk with Frank Conger? A.—No, Sir; I never met Mr. Conger.

Q.—Did you go and talk with Benn Conger? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you go and talk with Speaker Nixon and tell him that there was a corruption fund coming down to Albany to influence legislation? A.—I had no knowledge that there was any such thing; I do not think so.

Q.—You believed Cook had been asked to contribute? A.—I believed that he had been asked to contribute.

Q.—Did you infer from what Walter Cook told you that there was a fund being raised by the bridge companies? A.—I judged that there was one contemplated.

Q.—You knew that Frank Conger had asked for money from one? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew that the legislation contemplated to be affected was either going to be passed or not passed in the very body in which you were standing at that time, didn't you? A.—I did.

No Steps to Prevent Bribery.

Q.—And you did not take any steps by getting up publicly before that Assembly and denouncing the proposition, did you? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—You did not take one solitary step to prevent the collection of that money, except that you have described? Is that right? A.—I regarded that as effective.

Q.—That is not an answer. Read the question. (Question read by stenographer.) A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you go to the Governor of this State and report to him that the American Bridge Company, one of the greatest corporations in the State, was contemplating raising a corruption fund to affect legislation? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you go to the Attorney General? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you go to any District Attorney and take Walter Cook before them and have this man Conger indicted or attempt to indict him or investigate him? A.—I did not.

Q.—You knew, did you not, that publicity would prevent the bringing to Albany of a corruption fund, if such was contemplated? A.—It would have a tendency in that direction.

Q.—And you knew that your silence, if anything, would tend toward a production of that fund in Albany, didn't you? A.—Silence would tend to promote it.

Q.—Now, I am going to ask you if you did not keep silent because you wanted the fund brought down?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I did not," Senator Allds replied.

"How many years had you known Senator Platt before 1901?" asked Mr. Osborne at this point. It was the first reference to the dead leader that had occurred.

"I think I first knew Senator Platt in 1884 or 1885," Senator Allds replied.

"He was a very warm friend of yours and had promoted your political interests?"

"He was my friend, and he certainly had helped me politically," said the witness.

"And you knew that he was or had been a United States Senator when you wrote him about those bills?"

"I knew that."

"You believed that he was the leader of your party?"

"He was the leader," said Senator Allds raising his voice in solemn emphasis.

"Did you write one solitary line to Senator Platt, your friend and political leader, to this effect: 'Senator, your reputation may be compromised in killing these bills because there is a contemplated corruption fund behind them'?"

"I did not."

"Do you feel as a gentleman and as a friend to your friend Senator Platt that you acted fairly and squarely by him in withholding that fact from him?"

"Why that fact did not exist that you are assuming."

Q.—How do you know it did not exist? A.—Well, I don't believe it did.

Q.—Well, you don't know it, do you? A.—No, Sir, nor I have nothing which would apprise me of it.

Q.—Did you have any reason to believe that Frank Conger would not raise the corruption fund? A.—He certainly was informed by Mr. Cook that he did not need to.

Q.—How do you know that? All you told Cook to do was to go and make his peace with Conger, didn't you?

Mr. Osborne then took up a letter from Mr. Allds to Senator Platt in which the latter had said that "Mr. Conger and those who particularly represent the bridge interests" had assented to the passage of another bill introduced by Malby and Stevens establishing a property qualification for voters on appropriations in townships and a telegram in which Senator Allds had spoken about "the bridge men." The lawyer asked the Senator what he meant with those terms. Senator Allds said that this phraseology had reference to other members of the Assembly who had bridge companies in their counties whose interests they wanted to protect.

Mr. Osborne asked the Senator if he did not realize that a word to Senator Platt about the corruption fund that was contemplated would have stopped the raising of the money.

"It certainly would have," said the Senator.

"I notice from your letters that you didn't once mention that any fund had been raised or contemplated."

"I did not know that any had been raised, and I did not say anything about one being contemplated," said Senator Allds

Q.—Now, didn't you know that if you had told Conger that Senator Platt was going to kill the bill that no corruption fund would then appear in Albany, even if one had been raised? A.—I think I would reply to that, "Yes."

Q.—Now, can you think of any act on earth that you did or failed to do that did not have a tendency to promote that fund? A.—No act I performed in any way had any tendency in that direction.

Q.—Can you think of any act in the world that you did or refrained from doing, the effect of which was not in the tendency of the fund? A.—I do not understand the question.

Conger Letter Comes Up Again.

Q.—You and Conger were very friendly, weren't you? A.—We were friends.

Q.—Conger had never during his life ever shown any hostility toward you personally had he, up, I mean, to this late unpleasantness? A.—No, I would not characterize it as hostility; no, Sir.

Q.—Now, let us be perfectly frank. Have you any act of hostility on Conger's part to which you want to call the attention of this honorable body? A.—No, not till the afternoon when he uttered the infamous lie.

Q.—Did you convey to Conger in 1901, at any time in 1901, the fact that you were kind to him regarding his interests in the bridge matter? A.—I have no recollection of either any correspondence or conversation with him on the subject.

Q.—That is in the letter put in to-day he says: "We all know Joe could be relied upon to assist us in our bills, and help us in every way he could, and personally I feel under great obligations to you and Fred for what you were able to do for me in protecting my business interests in the Rules Committee." When you received that letter did you recall what he referred to? A.—I probably did.

Q.—Now, don't you know that what he referred to is just what you have testified to; that you and Fred Nixon did protect his business interests in the Rules Committee? I ask you if that is what he meant, if he did not refer to the fact that you and Nixon had kept this bill in the Rules Committee? A.—I do not know what he meant.

Q.—Do you mean to tell this Senate, under the solemnity of an oath, that you do not know what that sentence means? A.—I do not know what was in Mr. Conger's mind when he wrote it; no, Sir.

Q.—Do you mean under the solemnity of your oath that you do not know what that referred to? A.—I certainly do know what it referred to.

Q.—When it referred to the fact that this Stevens-Malby Highway bill was not reported out of the committee, didn't it? A.—It certainly did.

Q.—I want to call your attention to this particular phraseology: "I feel under great obligations to you and Fred for what you were able to do for me." You understood that that "me" there meant Benn Conger, didn't you? A.—Yes, Sir.

"You and Fred Nixon—as far as you know it is Mr. Fred Nixon—never told Conger that you did it for the Senator, did you?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I have no recollection of any such conversation with him, no, Sir," said Senator Allds.

Q.—But you left Conger to believe and to believe up to this day, as far as you know, that you did it for him, didn't you? A.—I have no knowledge as to where it left him.

Q.—Up to the present day and until you were accused here of taking this money, you never let any of the Congers know that you did it for Senator Platt, did you? A.—As far as I know I never met any one but Benn Conger of the Congers.

Q.—Now, in all honesty and good faith, when you know, on April 16, 1901, that you were going to do this for Senator Platt why didn't you, in honesty and good faith, say to Conger, "I am going to keep that bill in the committee for Senator Platt's sake"? A.—I may have said so to him; all you have asked me is whether I remember that I did.

Names the Other "Bridgemen."

Mr. Osborne reverted to the expressions "bridgemen" and "those particularly interested in the bill," and asked him if he did not go down to 100 Broadway to see Frank Conger, at that time Vice President of the American Bridge Company.

"I want to say to you, Sir, that to my knowledge I have never been in the office of the American Bridge Company, and to my knowledge I have never seen Frank Conger," said Senator Allds. "I never had any conversation with Frank Conger. I will swear to that positively."

"Then whom did you intend to characterize by those phrases?"

Mr. Allds appealed to the presiding officer, declaring that he meant certain men whom, if it had not been for the fact that they had bridge companies in their counties, certainly never would have been opposed to the Malby-Stevens bill. Senator Davis instructed the witness he must answer.

Allds then said he had in mind Judge Rodenbeck, now a Judge of the Court of Claims; Martin Cadin, now Chief of Police of Syracuse; J. E. Smith, and one Gardner, who was an Assemblyman from Monroe in 1901.

"Do you remember that in 1903 Mr. Cadin introduced a bill which practically was a reproduction of the bill to which you say he was opposed?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"I do not, because I was not in the Assembly at the time," said the witness. "I would say that the phrase crept in on the haste of writing a telegram under great pressure of work."

Mr. Osborne then returned to Allds's defense that he had helped hold up the bridge bill at Senator Platt's instance.

"Is it your defense that you killed this bill because Senator Platt asked it?" asked Mr. Osborne.

Mr. Littleton objected. "The defense is that this charge is a concerted and fabricated lie," he averred with great warmth. "The explanation is that it was held in the Rules Committee because Senator Allds yielded to the request of Senator Platt. The act to which it is sought to ascribe a corrupt motive was due to party loyalty and to the fact that this was a party measure. This is history which will be repeated again until the end of earth or until the world is controlled by reformers or by informers."

"I beg to call attention to the fact that this was not a party measure, that it was done in behalf of a private interest," retorted Mr. Osborne. "It was to help the Owego Bridge Company, as Senator Platt frankly stated in his letter."

Then Mr. Osborne asked Senator Allds if he did not think he violated his oath of office when he allowed the bill to slumber in the Rules Committee, as he had expressed it.

"I submit that this is not only an improper question but an insulting question," broke in Mr. Littleton.

"Could anything be more palpable than that?" asked Mr. Osborne quietly.

Mr. Littleton declared this was insulting to the witness, too.

"Senator Allds is on trial for his life," he said. "He is a member of this Senate. These gentlemen are his colleagues and brothers. This is an honorable body and a clean atmosphere, and should it be all befouled and made fetid with these insulting remarks of counsel?"

Senator Allds finally replied that he did not think he had violated his oath.

Grady Tries to Justify Platt.

Then Senator Grady arose and put this question:

"Now, Senator Allds, do you think there was any more impropriety in Mr. Platt's suggestion to you for the defeat of that bill, as leader of the party in this State, than there would be in President Taft suggesting to the members of the National Congress a party line of tariff schedules?"

The question was objected to by Mr. Osborne and the minority leader did not urge it, but he made a long speech in which he attempted to prove that there really was an analogy.

Mr. Osborne concluded his cross-examination for the day by asking Mr. Allds what he understood Conger meant when he called on the Acme Road Company in a letter which was put in evidence for practical assistance to kill legislation?

"You could attach two meanings to it. Never having had any relations with that sort of thing, I don't know what I would call it exactly," said Senator Allds.

Owing to the funeral of Senator Platt to-morrow, the hearing went over until Thursday morning, when the cross-examination of Allds will be continued.

YOUNG KNOX FAILS TO GET FORGIVENESS

HE INTENDS TO GO TO WORK

Thinks His Father Will Relent After a Time, and Says His Wife Was Not a Shop Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Young Philander Knox, son of the Secretary of State, brought the Providence, R. I., bride whom he secretly married last week to Washington this morning with his mother-in-law. He took them away again late this afternoon without the parental forgiveness he came to seek. But he was not without hope that he would receive it shortly. He expressed the confident belief that soon after they get back to Providence, where, he said, they were going, they would get a letter from the Secretary of State that would remove the least shadow of a cloud from their happiness.

Mr. Knox did not disclose just what happened between him and his father during the day, and the Secretary of State was even more uncommunicative. At the Knox home and at the State Department the Secretary was inaccessible to newspaper men, and what he had to say or think about the action of his son and namesake was not permitted to escape over channels of publicity.

"I am very happy over my marriage," declared young Knox this afternoon. "It was a big surprise to my father and mother, of course, but I am hoping that they will forgive me for surprising them so and that everything will be all right before long."

He admitted that he had come to Washington in order to seek the forgiveness of his parents, and implied, although he did not say so directly, that he had seen the Secretary of State already. The matter in which he evaded the direct statement that he had met his father face to face, however, led to the suspicion that their conversation had been carried on over the telephone. He avoided going into details as to the manner of his reception by his father, and would only say that the affair had been a great shock to the Secretary of State. Then he added that he was about to return to Providence.

"We are going there for a time at any rate," he said. "I must get my things together up there, and must make plans for the future. Of course I expect to go to work to support my wife now."

In answer to a direct question, he said:

"I hope to hear from my father as soon as he has become accustomed to the idea of my being married."

Young Knox slipped into town with Dr. French, Principal of the Morris Heights School. The small army of photographers and reporters at the Union Station were so intent on finding a blonde young woman with a red feather in her hat that they overlooked this couple entirely.

The reports of a row with Dr. French, the result of which was his expulsion from school, young Knox vigorously denied.

"Dr. French came here as my friend," he declared, "to help me straighten the thing out with my father. He came down voluntarily. He didn't expel me or try to have me arrested. I resigned when I got married.

"And that's all rot about my wife being a shopgirl. Her mother got married a second time, and because my wife didn't get along well with her stepfather, her mother rented separate apartments for her. My father promised to set me up in business when I get through college; I hope he'll do it now."

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 8.—The marriage of Philander C. Knox, Jr., son of the Secretary of State, to Miss May Boler of Providence on Sunday evening was confirmed here to-day with the filing of the marriage certificate by the Rev. E. G. Guthrie, the clergyman who performed the ceremony.

Mr. Guthrie refused to-day, as he did last night, to discuss the matter.

COTTON PLANT USED AS FOOD.

Flour Said to be More Nutritious and Less Expensive Than Cereal Products.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The cotton plant is capable not only of clothing but feeding in large part the people of the South, Secretary Dickinson was told to-day by his nephew, who lives in Ennis, Texas. The Secretary's nephew has informed him of the shipment to him from Texas of samples of cotton seed flour, bread and cakes. This food has been privately tested for twenty years, and the Secretary's nephew wishes him to test it.

The cost of the cotton seed flour is said to be only 50 or 75 per cent. of that of cereals, while its nutritive value is declared to be from five to seven times as great. To give the necessary consistency about 40 per cent. of wheat flour is added to the cotton seed flour, but for cakes and such food no mixture is required. Analysis shows that the cotton seed contains 37.7 per cent. more protein than wheat flour, and though it is deficient to the extent of 44.7 per cent. in carbohydrates, the lack easily can be remedied by the use of vegetables or sugar.

VOTE FOR HIGHER SALARIES.

Bill Increasing Pay of Governor and Legislators Reported Favorably.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—Assemblyman Dana's constitutional amendent increasing the salary of the Governor from $10,000 to $20,000 a year was reported favorably to-night by the Assembly Judiciary Committee. Similar action was taken by the committee on Assemblyman John Gerhardt's amendment increasing the salary of State Senators from $1,500 to $3,500 a year and the salary of Assemblymen from $1,500 to $3,000 a year.

The committee also reported favorably the bill of Assemblyman Artemas Ward, Jr., providing for the Massachusetts ballot in a modified form. It combines the Massachuetts form with another scheme for the voting of a straight ticket with one mark in a circle if desired.

The committee, with the consent of Mr. Ward, amended the bill so that it will not apply to those cities where the voting machine is used or to a county in part of which voting machines are used.

Worcester Museum, Mass., Said to be Purchaser of "Fur Jacket."

LONDON, March 8.—The Scotsman states that Whistler's picture "Fur Jacket" has been sold by a Glasgow collector to the Worcester Museum of Worcester, Mass. The picture previously changed hands for $50,000.

port, who spoke in favor of the amendment, and then read the telegram from Senator Root.

"To ignore the directions of the Senator, whom we all hailed as our leader a year ago when he was elected, would be an action unprecedented and unheard of," said Senator Davenport. "He has the party's welfare at heart. He speaks from unselfish and disinterested motives, and we should heed what he says."

At once there was a storm of protest. Senator Alt of Kings, one of Chairman Woodruff's delegation in the upper house, said he resented this interference from Washington, and that the Senators from the Empire State knew enough to manage their own household. There were others who spoke in the same vein.

Even Senator Travis thought the speech of Senator Davenport was a trifle too strong. He said he felt assured that Senator Root had no intention of being a dictator. What he offered was intended merely as advice, but it certainly was good advice in the present position of the party before the people.

After Senators Brough, Alt, Gledhill, Emerson, and Meade had spoken in favor of immediate action and Senators Allen, Brackett, Davenport, Hill, Mackenzie, Travis, Hewitt, and Schlosser had advocated postponement until Thursday night, the vote was taken. It was as follows:

For Postponement—Agnew, Allen, Brackett, Cordts, Davenport, Griffith, Hamilton, Hewitt, Hill, Hubbs, Mackenzie, Newcomb, Rose, Schlosser, Travis, Wainwright, Witter, and White—18.

Against Postponement—Alt, Brough, Burlingame, Coates, Emerson, Gledhill, Grattan, Hancock, Holden, Kissel, Meade, and Platt—12.

Senators Davis, Cobb, and Hinman, whose names have been mentioned in connection with the leadership, refrained from voting. Senators Allds and Conger, having been excused from attending the sessions of the Senate, were not permitted to enter the caucus.

Root's Act Stirs Old Guard.

The active intervention of Senator Root for the first time since he declared a year ago that he would be willing to become a "leader in thought and action" has created a tremendous sensation at the Capitol. To-night the Old Guard element is beginning to realize that the period of non-retaliation from the Hughes camp is at an end.

By the time the caucus went into session most of the bosses were on their way to Owego to attend the funeral of the late Thomas C. Platt. For the last week or so it has been known here that they had their war paint on, and were out for a fight to the finish, regardless of whether the party should sink or swim.

State Chairman Woodruff had issued the most positive orders to his men from Brooklyn to oppose the election of any man but Cobb, the bosses' choice, and similar pressure has been brought to bear on Senators here from old-line leaders in other sections of the State. The old guard, as a result, was being arrayed again in battle formation, and the bustle of preparation and the evidence of what was going on has been written all over events at the capital for a fortnight or more.

The intervention of Senator Root, it is known positively, was due to a request which came from some of the Senators who have advocated the policies of Gov. Hughes. Senator Davenport was one of the men who appealed directly to Senator Root. Senator Newcomb, in the meantime, asked Lloyd C. Griscom, the newly elected leader of New York County, to use his good offices at Washington to bring aid to the cause they have been championing. Mr. Griscom has been at Washington for a week, and it was said here to-night that President Taft is closely in touch with the situation here and that what has been done has been done with his full approval.

TAFT DENIES TAKING A HAND.

Says He Is Not Concerned in Party Fight in New York.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—New York politics has been the subject of a number of conferences here during the last few days, the most important of which was held at the White House yesterday. Those present, in addition to President Taft, were Postmaster General Hitchcock, State Senator Brackett, and Representative Durey. President Taft denies that he is taking any part in the efforts being made to straighten out the difficulties of the Republican Party in New York State.

It was decided to-day, as a result of conferences between New York political leaders, that Hinman was the man whom they would support for Speaker pro tem. of the Senate. Accordingly Senator Root sent the telegram to State Senator Davenport urging the selection of Senator Hinman as Republican leader.

GRISCOM IS RETICENT.

Will Not Talk on Root Telegram—Situation on Surveyorship.

Republican County Chairman Griscom returned yesterday afternoon from Washington, where he has been conferring with President Taft and Senator Root on the situation in this State and the selection of a new Surveyor of the Port. He would not comment on the result of his talks or express an opinion for publication on the new turn in Republican State affairs, due to Senator Root's telegram on the State Senate leadership.

Other local Republicans of importance were talking of little else last night. The Hughes men were jubilant over the recommendation of Senator Hinman as Senator Allds's successor, declaring that the leaders have realized at last that Gov. Hughes and his policies are the best assets the party has in the State. The old Roosevelt-Parsons men were reticent, all of them seeming to fear that there was more behind Senator Root's action than appeared on the surface.

There is a general impression that Richard Parr has been eliminated as a likely appointee to the Surveyorship. The contention seems to be that the place should remain with the organization, and the Deputy Surveyor has no particular political strength.

Mr. Griscom would give no inkling of who the successful candidate was likely to be, declaring that the filling of the place was purely a State affair and would be settled by the Congressional leaders. He insisted that he would not take any part in the matter.

B. W. B. Brown is still an active candidate, but his strength seems to be purely local.

Cost of Aiding Shirtwaist Girls.

There is a statement of the number of meetings supported, including that for the shirtwaist makers at the Hippodrome, which cost $1,180.05. The subsequent fund raised for the strikers was $2,700.52. The statement tells of the Suffrage Settlement House opened in Harlem, 84 East 111th Street, known as the Harlem Club of the Political Equality Association, and six subsidiary clubs, the estimated cost of maintaining them being $4,000 per annum.

The Wadleigh High School girls were offered $100 in prizes for woman suffrage essays, 100,000 "Votes for Women" buttons costing $500 have been distributed, and 10,000 suffrage headquarters postcards, colored, costing $60. The Political Equality Association and its President (Mrs. Belmont) have been mentioned in 8,000 or more newspapers since Sept. 1, 1909. The association has guaranteed the expenses of the State Association's present headquarters at Albany, contributing $1,000 to the Legislative Committee for the purpose. In tabulated form the statement is thus summarized:

Through its own treasury	$4,980.05
Rent of headquarters for National, State, and own offices for two years.	8,200.00
Partitioning and furnishing offices..	5,000.00
Maintaining National Press Bureau for two years as agreed	12,000.00
Contribution to Susan B. Anthony Fund	500.00
Life membership in New York State Woman Suffrage Association	50.00
Contribution to State association for organizer, ($100 per month for one year)	1,200.00
Contribution to State Association Legislative Committee	1,000.00
One organizer employed in New York State	1,200.00
Press work in New York State	180.00
Buttons, post cards, and flags	607.50
Maintaining branches one year (estimated)	4,000.00
Suffrage dolls for Sittig Christmas Tree	150.00
Suffrage dolls for actors' fair	18.00
Fund raised for striking shirtwaist makers	2,709.52
Rev. Dr. Shaw, lectures at Newport and elsewhere	300.00
Contribution to work of other suffrage associations by purchase of tickets, &c.	506.00
Press clippings	270.00
Photographs for press work	42.00
Traveling expenses to meetings	212.17
Receptions	231.65
Total	$41,106.89

Much money has been given from time to time for the Suffrage cause, as many wealthy women have been interested in it, but this statement, given out by the donor, is unique in the history of the work.

WOMEN INVADE ALBANY.

Suffragist Hosts and "Antis" Drawn There by Hearing To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—There are two sides to the woman suffrage question, at least so Albany thinks to-night. The hosts of the suffragists and those of the anti-suffragists have filled the capital city. The Capitol itself to-night rang with eloquence in opposition to the "emancipation of women," and to-morrow the legislative halls will be filled with equally ardent advocates of "votes for woman."

The occasion of the second women's invasion of Albany this Winter is a hearing which will be given to-morrow afternoon by the Assembly Judiciary Committee on the Hill-Toomns constitutional amendment, which, if adopted, will remove the prohibition against voting by women in this State. To-day's demonstration will be followed by the submission of arguments for and against the change. Afterward the suffrage season in Albany will close with a mass meeting in the Assembly chamber under the direction of the societies which are pleading for the extension of the franchise to women.

The Assembly chamber to-night was filled by a brilliant throng, which included representatives of both the parties. The meeting was under the auspices of the association opposed to woman suffrage, of which Mrs. Francis M. Scott is President. The Chairman of the meeting was Henry P. Warren, Principal of the Boys' Academy of Albany, and the ushers were pupils of the school in military uniform. The address of the evening was delivered by Mme. Bell Ranske of New York.

STAGE AIDS SUFFRAGETTES.

Belasco Heads New League Containing Prominent Theatre Folk.

David Belasco is one of the organizers of the Actors' League of the Woman Suffrage party, which has been in process of formation for some time. The league's members includes managers, playwrights, and actors. Mr. Belasco, with Miss Charlotte Walker, will give a benefit performance of "Just a Wife" for the Woman Suffrage party at the Belasco Stuyvesant on the evening of March 21.

Forbes-Robertson and Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson are among the first names to be mentioned in the new league with Nance O'Neil, Charlotte Walker, and Mary Shaw, John Glendennnig, Bobby North, Dorothy Richardson, Mr. Belasco's personal representative; Frank Worthing, Ann Sutherland, Jane Cowl, Thompson Buchannon, the playwright, and Henrietta Crosman. Miss Crosman, being an old-time Suffragist, has left her name at the Woman Suffrage party headquarters with word to add it to the membership of any suffrage organization where it may be of value.

Julia Marlowe has not yet been approached in regard to membership in the new league, but it is known that she is a woman suffragist, and it is hoped she will become one of the pillars of the organization. Miss Nance O'Neil and Bobby North are among other members who have offered their services as speakers when they are at liberty and are needed.

A new member was added to the Woman Suffrage party yesterday in Miss Adelaide Johnson, the sculptor. Miss Johnson sent in the little yellow slip filled out for membership from the Story studio, Rome, Italy, and also sent word that from there she had written her Senator and Representative in New York asking their consideration for the suffrage amendment to the Constitution.

It was announced last night that Miss Forbes-Robertson would give a matinée the first week in April at the Maxine Elliot Theatre for the Equality League. Miss Forbes-Robertson will take the leading part in three playlets, "Before the Dawn," "A Woman's Influence," and "How the Vote Was Won," showing the evolution of the suffrage question.

HOW PLATT LOST A CABINET PLACE

"Easy Boss's" Posthumous Story of a Deal Whereby He Was to be Secretary of the Treasury.

HARRISON BROKE PLEDGE

Made Through Elkins for New York Delegates in 1888 Convention—Bound Friend to Secrecy.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—In Thomas C. Platt's own words is told to-day the story of how the once "easy boss" and United States Senator aspired to be Secretary of the Treasury and failed. He was to get the Cabinet place for delivering the New York delegation to Benjamin Harrison for President in the Republican National Convention in 1888. Platt carried out his part of the deal, but Harrison, after taking office, failed to keep a pledge said to have been given by Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia.

The Evening Star publishes the statement to-day in a signed story by W. E. Curtis, the newspaper correspondent. Mr. Curtis says Senator Platt gave it to him some years ago in New York, binding him not to publish it until after President Harrison and Senator Platt were dead. Mr. Curtis and Senator Platt had just been discussing the late John Sherman's memoirs, in which that statesman had referred to a "corrupt bargain" for the nomination of Harrison. Since then the statement had remained sealed in the envelope in which Senator Platt handed it to Mr. Curtis. It is written in the third person and says:

Platt's Own Story of the Deal.

"When former President Harrison was here he spent a day and a night under the same roof with the 'one member of the New York delegation' with whom Senator Sherman says he made a 'corrupt bargain' to secure his nomination in 1888. They did not meet, however. One of the newspapers says they 'exchanged salutations.' That is, when Gen. Harrison entered the dining room of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and passed the table at which Thomas C. Platt was sitting the two gentlemen bowed politely to each other. They always do that when they meet, and Mr. Platt visited the White House several times while Gen. Harrison was President. He went by invitation, and the interviews would make very interesting reading if they could have been reported. But neither gentleman is in the habit of talking of such incidents, nor will Mr. Platt discuss the allusions that are made to him in Mr. Sherman's book. He smiles grimly when approached on this subject, and says that he may want to write a book himself some day and prefers to save his material.

"But the circumstances of the 'corrupt bargain,' as Mr. Sherman calls it, are known to several people, and are as follows:

New Yorkers Favored Depew.

"The New York delegation went to the convention of '88 supporting one of their own number, Mr. Depew, for the Presidential nomination. They voted for him continually during the first week, but when Sunday came they decided that he could not succeed and held a meeting to discuss their future action. There were Blaine men and Harrison and Sherman men in the delegation and friends of other candidates, those who favored Harrison and Sherman being in the majority and about evenly divided.

"Stephen B. Elkins, who had paid a hurried visit to Indianapolis a few days before, returned with an undelivered letter in his pocket. It was signed 'Benjamin Harrison,' and was addressed to 'Thomas C. Platt.' It was brief but sufficient, and the writer informed Mr. Platt that Mr. Elkins was authorized to speak for him, and that any arrangements that the two gentlemen might make would be ratified.

"A memorable conference took place in Mr. Platt's rooms at the Grand Pacific Hotel at which Mr. Elkins stated that he was authorized to say that if the New York delegation would give Gen. Harrison their support the latter would appoint Mr. Platt Secretary of the Treasury in case of his election and allow him to control Federal patronage in the State of New York. The pledge was not made in those exact words, of course, but that was what it meant, and every one present so understood it.

Votes Thrown to Harrison.

"The New York delegation were informed of this proposition at their meeting Sunday afternoon, and accepting it in good faith, decided to cast a solid vote for Gen. Harrison for a certain number of ballots, and then, if it appeared that he could not be nominated, to throw their support to Mr. Sherman. As all the world knows, this movement on the part of New York brought reinforcements from other States, and Gen. Harrison was nominated.

"A few days before the election Mr. Quay, who was Chairman of the committee, came to Mr. Platt's office with a long face. He said he was utterly discouraged; that the demands made upon him for money were tremendous; that the treasury was empty; that he had exhausted every source from which he could hope to secure funds.

"'How much do you want?' asked Mr. Platt.

"'One hundred and fifty thousand dollars at least. We must have that amount or close the headquarters,' replied Mr. Quay.

"Mr. Platt is not a rich man, but his credit is good, and he went out and borrowed $150,000 upon his own personal note and turned the money over to the Treasurer of the National Committee. Mr. Quay has frequently asserted that that money elected President Harrison.

"Several weeks after the election there appeared in the newspapers certain reports from Indiana that caused Mr. Platt and his friends considerable surprise. So Senator Hiscock, who had been one of the Delegates at Large to the Chicago Convention and was familiar with the terms of the arrangements made by Mr. Elkins, went to Indianapolis.

Harrison Turns Against Platt.

"To the astonishment of Senator Hiscock the President-elect said he could not offer Mr. Platt a seat in his Cabinet and when pressed for his reasons declined to give them.

"Senator Hiscock then referred to the pledges made by Mr. Elkins at Chicago, and said that was the inducement which led the New York delegation to give Gen. Harrison their support. The President-elect admitted that he had authorized Mr. Elkins to say that New York should be recognized in the formation of the Cabinet, and that Mr. Platt would be consulted in the distribution of Federal patronage in his State, but Mr. Elkins had positively informed him that Mr. Platt desired nothing for himself; that he had no personal ambition, and that his circumstances would not allow him to accept a Cabinet appointment.

"Mr. Hiscock replied that, on the contrary, Mr. Platt had been arranging his private affairs with the distinct understanding that he was to be a member of the Cabinet and that such an expectation was general among the working Republicans of the State. They had voted for Gen. Harrison's nomination and had contributed their money, time, and talents for his election with that understanding, and would be greatly disappointed if the agreement were not carried out. Gen. Harrison was inexorable. He said he intended to invite a New York man into the Cabinet and would be glad to confer with Mr. Platt about the selection, but it was impossible for him to offer the Treasury portfolio or any other to that gentleman.

"There was no further communication on the subject until Gen. Harrison came to Washington shortly before his inauguration, when ex-Speaker J. Sloat Fassett of the New York Legislature called upon him at the Arlington Hotel to see if the decision given Mr. Hiscock had been reconsidered. Mr. Fassett had a pleasant talk with the President-elect and repeated to him in detail what had transpired at the Chicago Convention between Mr. Elkins and the members of the New York delegation.

Fassett Pleads for Platt.

"The President-elect regretted that there had been a misunderstanding which he was not responsible for, but it was impossible for him to offer Mr. Platt a Cabinet position. At the same time he would like to have the New York Republicans furnish him a list of gentlemen competent to perform the duties of Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Fassett replied that the New York Republicans asked the appointment of Mr. Platt as Secretary of the Treasury and had no other candidate for the Cabinet.

"Later in the day the President-elect sent for Mr. Fassett and explained that Gen. B. F. Tracy of Brooklyn and Gen. Seward of Auburn were being considered for the Navy Department, and that he would like to know which would be the more agreeable to Mr. Platt. The reply came very promptly that Gen. Tracy was preferred, as Brooklyn had sent thirty-three Republicans regularly to Republican conventions and never had been recognized in any way.

"Gen. Tracy was then sent for and informed that he had been selected for the Navy Department. He declined for the reason that he had no knowledge of naval affairs and did not feel competent to perform the duties of the office. He wanted to be Attorney General, but that position had already been offered to and accepted by the President's law partner, and Gen. Tracy finally consented to take the position which he filled so acceptably for four years."

DEPEW'S VERSION OF THE DEAL.

Didn't Know of Harrison's Promise, but Asked Him to Name Platt.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew returned to New York from Washington last night, but he announced that he would not attend Thomas C. Platt's funeral in Owego this morning.

"It would mean that I would have to spend two nights on a sleeper," explained Senator Depew, and I do not think I am capable of doing it."

Senator Depew was much interested in Platt's posthumous story of the inside history of the Republican National Convention in 1888, when Harrison was nominated for the Presidency.

"There are certain discrepancies in Mr. Platt's story," said Senator Depew. "Of course I do not know anything about the contract he may have made in regard to Gen. Harrison's nomination. I was not let into the secret of that. But in regard to certain things that did happen I am more familiar.

"I was the candidate of the New York delegation for the Presidential nomination. After the voting had gone on for a week the Iowa delegation announced that they had a candidate in Gen. Harrison, and it was suggested that I withdraw.

"Mr. Platt then declared he was for Allison of Iowa, but I said that if they put Sherman out of the race it would mean the loss of New York State. While we were still considering the matter Mr. Platt saw Mr. Harrison's friends, after which he announced that he was in favor of Harrison. Mr. Platt asked me to withdraw, and I said I was willing, as it was the general opinion that a President of the New York Central Railroad could not be nominated.

"After Gen. Harrison was elected he offered me any position in his Cabinet with the exception of that of Secretary of State, which he said he was reserving for James G. Blaine. I wanted the President to appoint Mr. Platt Secretary of the Treasury, but he said that it could not possibly be done."

ELKINS DENIES IT.

But Fassett Says Platt's Story Is "Substantially Correct."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Of the two men mentioned in the Platt story as having knowledge of the alleged offer of Harrison to make him Secretary of the Treasury, Senator Elkins and Congressman J. Sloat Fassett, one agrees with Platt and the other contradicts him. Senator Elkins, who was Harrison's agent in obtaining the support of the New York delegation, denied emphatically this evening that there was any such promise to Platt.

"Tom Platt never was promised the Secretaryship of the Treasury," declared Senator Elkins. "He did have assurances that he would be consulted in regard to New York patronage and that his recommendations would have weight. But it was impossible to give him the Treasury portfolio."

Representative Fassett, however, says that the Platt story is "substantially correct."

"There is no doubt," said Mr. Fassett, "that Harrison made certain promises to Mr. Platt as a return for his support. The character of Harrison's letter to Platt afforded an excellent opportunity for a misunderstanding. When Elkins, with carte blanche orders, offered control of New York patronage to Platt, Platt naturally supposed he would be able to take care of himself."

Senator Elkins does not agree with Mr. Fassett about the letter being addressed to Platt. He said this evening that he took three letters from Harrison to Chicago. One was for Platt, one for Whitelaw Reid, and the third for a man whom he did not name. He said he has all three of them now.

Representative Sereno Payne, who was a member of the New York delegation at the convention of 1888, said to-night that he was aware of Senator Platt's disappointment when he failed to receive the appointment of Secretary of the Treasury at President Harrison's hand. He denied, however, any knowledge of such a promise as the Platt story alleges.

HARRISON DENIED THE CHARGE.

Told Gen. Tracy He Didnt Break Faith with Senator Platt.

Special to The New York Times.

OWEGO, N. Y., March 8.—Gen. Tracy said to-night that he knew nothing of any deal between President Harrison and Senator Platt to make the latter Secretary of the Treasury in return for the vote of the New York delegation at the Republican Convention in 1888. His own appointment as Secretary of the Navy, he declared, was not the result of a compromise.

He said that he talked to Harrison about the matter of Platt's charge of broken faith a year or two after Harrison had assumed the Presidency, and Harrison denied that he had ever promised to make Platt Secretary of the Treasury. If Senator Elkins came to Senator Platt with such a promise from Harrison, the General said, he knew nothing about it. Gen. Tracy admits he was a supporter of Platt for the Treasury appointment.

DUKE'S DAUGHTER TO WED.

Miss Daisy Decazes to be Bride of Prince Francois de Broglie.

The Prince Francois de Broglie of Paris and Miss Daisy Decazes, the daughter of the Duke Decazes, son of the late Minister of Foreign Affairs from 1873 to 1877, and who was the initiator of the Franco-Russian Alliance, will be married at the Church St. Clothilde, Paris, the latter part of April. The Duke is the nephew of the Marquis de Bauvoir, who was chief of the "Political Bureau" of the late Count de Paris. Miss Decazes is half American, her mother having been Miss Isabelle Blanche Singer of New York before her marriage.

The Duchess died in 1896. She was one of six children of Isaac Merritt Singer, the inventor of the sewing machine of that name. He died at Torquay, Devonshire, in 1875, leaving a fortune estimated at more than $10,000,000.

Prince Francois de Broglie was formerly a Colonel of infantry. He is one of the sons of the late Duke de Broglie, who was Premier under Marshal MacMahon's Septennote. He is the possessor of a castle at La Moriaye, near Chantilly, and owns an estate at Lagrave, near Bordeaux. Always fond of yachting, the Duke was once reported lost on the Quand-Meme, which auto boat was lost in the famous race from Algiers to Toulon several years ago. The Duke was rescued by a French man-of-war, but the Quand-Meme was abandoned in the Mediterranean.

NEW "CHANTECLER" CLAIMANT

Miss Frances A. Matthews Says Her Play Is Based on Her Uncle's Novel.

A new claimant for the original idea of "Chantecler," Rostand's barnyard play, appeared yesterday when Miss Frances A. Matthews offered a one-act piece called "Chanticleer" to the Actors' Fund Fair as a competitor for the two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar prize offered by Martin Beck. Miss Matthews said that she had obtained the idea for her sketch from a novel by her uncle, Cornelius Matthews, that was published about forty years ago under the title of "Chanticleer." This novel, in which one character is a barnyard rooster, Miss Matthews said was translated into French by Philarete Chasles. Her sketch was written about ten years ago, and its scene is laid in a barnyard, where all of the characters are at home. The hero of the sketch is a Plymouth Rock rooster, and the principal female character is a white parrot.

Miss Matthews asserted yesterday that she had no desire to interfere with Charles Frohman's production of the Rostand play, but she also asserted that she would not permit its production to interfere with the presentation of her own play.

The first American claimant of the idea of Rostand's play was a Mr. Gross of Chicago, who said the idea had been taken from his own play. "The Merchant Prince of Corneville," which some years ago he claimed as the source of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac." Earlier claimants for "Chantecler" honors include Aesop, La Fontaine, and Aristophanese, whose satire, "The Birds," was popular in Athens some twenty-four centuries ago.

CLEARS WITH $5,000 LOOT.

Burglar's Bold Invasion of East Fifty-fifth Street Home In Early Morning.

If the bold burglar whom Mrs. C. Russell Auchincloss, wife of a broker of 20 Broad Street, found in the room where she and one of her children were sleeping in their home, 119 East Fifty-fifth Street, early Sunday morning, will send the police his name and address, they will be pleased to make his nearer acquaintance. Likewise, if he informs them as to what he did with some $5,000 worth of jewelry which he took with him, and to which no clue has so far been obtained. The nurse of Mrs. Auchincloss's three children left on Saturday, and Mrs. Auchincloss slept in a room on the third floor with the youngest child Saturday and Sunday nights, until she could find another nurse. Mr. Auchincloss slept on the floor below.

Some time on Sunday morning a burglar pried open a window on the ground floor, gaining entrance into the hall. He reached the parlor, gathered up several heavy silver candelabra, and went through the house in search of further booty. Every door in the house was locked except that of the room where slept Mrs. Auchincloss and her child.

Mrs. Auchincloss suddenly awoke, with a feeling that some one was in the room. Silhouetted against a window she saw a figure, which she took to be that of her husband.

"What are you hunting there, Bussell?" she asked.

The man glanced up at her, then swept everything from the top of the dresser and rushed from the room. Mrs. Auchincloss rushed after him, calling upon her husband for help, and while Mr. Auchincloss and the servants rushed from their rooms in pursuit he escaped.

In his haste he forgot to take the silver candelabra. A search revealed, however, that he had taken considerable jewelry besides, including two old and valuable rings which had been heirlooms in the family. Altogether he carried away from the dresser in the room on the third floor jewelry worth nearly $5,000.

Start Made on New Philosophy School.

In the presence of a few professors and a handful of spectators who happened to be in the neighborhood, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia turned the first shovelful of sod yesterday morning on the site of the projected $350,000 graduate Faculty of Philosophy structure. The building will be erected on the plot south of St. Paul's Chapel, and will face on Amsterdam Avenue, resembling in appearance the School of Mines Building at Broadway and 117th Street. A $350,000 gift, made anonymously a few days ago, provided the necessary funds for the building. It is intended to have it ready by January, 1911.

COLD SWIM IN SEWER FOR BRONX OFFICIALS

CAME ABOVE THEIR WAISTS

All Hands Reached Highbridge Exit Safely, However—Water Clean, So Mr. Miller, ex-Athlete, Enjoyed It.

Owing to a slight miscalculation about the tide, Borough President Cyrus C. Miller of the Bronx, Commissioner of Public Works Thomas W. Whittle, and members of their staffs, had an unexpected swim yesterday in the new storm relief sewer from Webster Avenue to the Harlem River, at Highbridge, which they were inspecting. Before they got out or the tide got altogether in, they were floundering in water up to their waists.

The sewer, which extends from Webster and Wendover Avenues to the Harlem River, a distance of one and a half miles, has been in course of construction for four years. At Wendover Avenue it is 20 feet deep, and at other points is 150 feet deep.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning, President Miller, Commissioner Whittle, President Miller's secretary, George A. Donnelly; Consulting Engineer A. L. Schaeffer, and G. L. Christian, engineer in charge of the construction of the sewer, each equipped with a lantern and dressed in yellow slicker and boots, got down into the sewer by means of a rope ladder, through a manhole in Wendover Avenue. The water there was only 15 inches high.

They walked the length of the sewer in three hours, finding the construction in good shape in every detail. So interested were they in their inspection that they forgot all about the tide and dallied overlong in the musty sewer. Presently, as they neared Highbridge, President Miller suddenly awoke to the fact that they were splashing around in water up to their waists. Worse still, the water was rising steadily, and they then remembered that the tide must be coming in from the Harlem River.

"We'll have to get out of this!" exclaimed President Miller. The sewer was flooded with water by this time to the depth of three feet.

It was easier to go forward to the not very distant outlet of the sewer than back to its beginning, so, despite the drop of two feet from Webster Avenue to the river, they pushed on, the water rising considerably above their waists as they reached Highbridge. Had they waited an hour longer, according to the engineers, the water would have been up to their necks.

As they emerged at Highbridge they found President Miller's auto awaiting them with a change of clothing for each. A little later in their new and dry garb they sat down to dinner and made light of their floundering and what might have been. President Miller was on time at the regular Tuesday afternoon meeting of the Board of Estimate at 1 o'clock, despite his experience of the morning.

ELLIS AGREES WITH TAFT.

Says Letter Was Misread and Taft Is Not Interfering in Ohio.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 8.—Chairman Wade H. Ellis of the Republican State Executive Committee says that the newspapers of this country are making entirely too much out of President Taft's letter to President "Hy" Davis of the State League of Republican Clubs, in which he disavowed any participation in the Ohio Republican affairs, and stated that he had not chosen Mr. Ellis for his position in Ohio. He says that if the newspapers will just consider the matter in the same manner they will see that the President was not endeavoring to cover up anything. He also said:

"My visit to Washington had no bearing whatever on the letter. I went because I had an appointment, made several weeks ago, with the United States Attorney of Chicago in regard to the Beef Trust investigation.

"I did see the President while I was in Washington, but merely to talk over the Ohio situation. The President's letter has been subjected to unwarranted interpretations. It contained nothing with which I was not already familiar as to the President's attitude. He simply wanted to remove the false impression which had gained ground that he intended personally to take a hand in Ohio politics. He never at any time intended, while President of the United States, to interfere in any way with Ohio politics. But, although he is President, he is also a Republican, and an Ohio Republican, and, therefore, is much interested in the welfare of the party in his own State. That is as far as the President has intended at any time to go, and I believe the situation is now clear to every one in Ohio."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 8.—The first bet on the coming Ohio Gubernatorial election was offered to-day by Jake Mintz, a prominent Democrat of this city.

"I have $500 with me," said Mintz, "to bet that, barring death, Harmon will succeed himself as Governor of Ohio. I am willing to put up that amount now that Harmon will be nominated and elected, no matter who is opposing him, I bar nobody—Garfield not excepted."

HOLDS UP FIRE BADGE BILL.

Controller Says Old Emblems Should Have Been Given to New Officers.

Controller Prendergast is holding up a bill for $137, representing the cost of gold badges for the new heads of the Fire Department, and has written to Commissioner Waldo asking him what has become of the badges of the men who went out of office on Jan. 1.

In his letter the Controller says that he has found that when similar badges were paid for by ex-Controller Metz it was expressly agreed that they should stay the property of the city and be turned over to the successors of the men for whom they were purchased.

The bill is for three badges at $35 each, for the Commissioner and two Deputies, and one for the Commissioner's secretary at $32.50.

To Announce the Advent of the New and Authoritative Models of Spring & Summer Suits & Coats for Men.

New in the sense of departing radically from the models of last season; authoritative in the sense that we have not been arbitrary in the design of the garments—that the innovations express and define the character and individuality which good taste and discernment sanction and demand.

The series of models is varied and the variety of fabrics and patterns is extensive.

Our productive facilities are "a condition, not a theory." Our uniform success with the designs for each recurring season contains not the slightest element of luck. Every effort, time, thought, energy and experience are bent upon that one thing—success—and it comes.

Spring Suits & Topcoats for Men

Saks models, $15 to $45, ready for service

Unlike the average clothes shop, we suffer no handicap. No manufacturer sends us his conceptions—right or wrong—of the season's new modes. Every garment that is sold by us is a creation of our own designers and tailormen—an exclusive product from the hands of trained and talented craftsmen.

"Completely Satisfying"

The Hardman Piano

The Piano That Improves with Use

Mr. De Segurola, of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

COMPLETE satisfaction in a piano is only attained when it fulfils the most exacting of requirements in regard to tone, touch and quality of endurance.

For near three-quarters of a century Hardman Pianos have been growing better. Meantime—chosen after much experience by schools and colleges, where a piano gets ten times the use it gets in the home—the Hardman continues to demonstrate that it holds its excellence longer than any other Piano.

Mr. de Segurola sums up that position in a phrase when he writes: "I know of no other Piano that is so completely satisfying as the Hardman."

The Hardman Piano is made in three forms:

THE HARDMAN GRAND PIANO — The Small Grand, the Baby Grand, the Parlor Grand.

THE HARDMAN UPRIGHT — Made in six styles, and in many varieties of artistic cases

THE HARDMAN AUTOTONE — The Piano all can play by hand or perforated Music Rolls.

Prices $425 and Upward

be given out by the police from the barn as to how many of the strikebreakers had been hurt or who they were.

All Frankford and Kensington are in a turmoil as a result of the battle, and more serious disturbances are feared for to-morrow.

General Strike at a Standstill.

There was little change in the general strike situation to-day, although employers are beginning to believe that high tide has been reached. Nearly all building operations of importance are suspended, and the men give no signs that they mean to return soon.

The Rapid Transit Company appears to be meeting with increased success in the operation of its cars. There appeared to be more cars in service to-day than at any time since the railway strike started.

Director of Public Safety Clay said to-night that a recanvass of the city's industrial establishments made to-day shows that while 1,000 workers walked out to-day, 2,600 strikers returned to work. work. He says less than 20,000 men are out.

Union labor leaders asserted that the general strike was rapidly extending to every nook and corner of the city, and despite the assertions of Director Clay, declare that from 125,000 to 150,000 men and women have quit work. On account of the magnitude of the strike the trade union representatives say that it is next to impossible to give a complete list of the places and exact number of men affected. Delegates of the unions covered the entire city to-day and obtained data in the way of figures, and the labor men say that when these figures are presented to the public to-morrow it will convince the most skeptical as to the correctness of their claims.

Labor leaders say that 1,000 men from the Baldwin Locomotive Works joined the strike to-day, but this is denied by Samuel M. Vauclain, Superintendent of the works. He said that perhaps twenty-five men stopped work, and that their absence would make no difference.

The strike leaders say that 4,000 cloak and suit workers in 61 establishments quit work to-day.

Two hundred cigarmakers of the Boltz & Clymer factory walked out at noon and forced the shop to close. Others had joined the strike earlier in its history, and the defection to-day left the place without a working force.

Other accessions to the ranks of the strikers were reported by Frank McCusker, business agent of the Textile Union, who announced that 100 men quit work this morning at the Westmoreland Dye Works, and that 75 failed to report for work at the Beulah Hosiery Works.

The annex to the Union League Club, that gave employment to about 100 men, is deserted, and so is the big Morris Building, in Chestnut Street, above Broad. This job employed 350 workmen of different kinds in the building trades.

The Philadelphia Hosiery Manufacturers' Association met this afternoon with three-fourths of the membership present and voted to close all hosiery mills until next Monday. The association represents mills employing 20,000 hands. It was said that the mills might be closed until the Autumn if the employes had not returned to work by the first of next week. A considerable proportion of the employes in the hosiery mills were reported to have gone out on the first day of the general strike.

INDORSES GENERAL STRIKE.

Pennsylvania Labor Convention May Order State-Wide Walk-Out.

NEWCASTLE, Penn., March 8.—The State Federation of Labor, which began its annual convention here to-day, resolved to indorse the general sympathetic strike in Philadelphia and pledged moral and financial support to the cause.

While this was the only action taken to-day on the Philadelphia situation, there was evidence enough that some time during the next three days the convention will consider the question of a State-wide strike in sympathy with the Philadelphia workmen.

STRIKERS SEEK HELP HERE.

Will Operate Hand Organs to Raise Money for Relief Fund.

Four of the Philadelphia strikers, one motorman and three conductors, obtained licenses at City Hall yesterday to operate hand organs in the streets of this city.

They told Chief Oliver of the Bureau of Licenses that the money they take in will be turned over to the strikers' relief fund.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 8. — Representatives of the Philadelphia street car employes are in Pittsburg to-day collecting funds from the employes of the Pittsburg Railway Company for use in continuing the strike. That the motormen, conductors, switchmen, and other street car men here are giving liberally was shown at the various points where the Pittsburg Railway's pay car stopped to pay off the employes.

LOST RACE WITH DEATH.

Wealthy Man Lent His Auto to Try to Save Poor Child's Life.

A race for life in an auto from Astoria to the German Hospital, Seventy-seventh Street and Lexington Avenue, this afternoon proved in vain.

About a week ago, Hilda Stein, the six-year-old daughter of a laborer, living at 236 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, L. I., was stricken with kidney trouble. Local medical attendance was unavailing, and on the advice of friends, Anna Stein, the child's mother, decided to take the child to the German Hospital. The child's condition was so serious when the decision was made, that it was apparent that unless she could be got to the hospital speedily, she would die.

The owner of an automobile, a well-to-do man, who had done what he could for the Stein family, put his car at the mother's disposal and himself drove it to the city. The name of the owner of the car and the time of the run are woth withheld by the hospital authorities. The child was received at the hospital at 5:15 P. M. and died at 5:45.

FIREMEN VOTE FOR STRIKE.

Dispute with Western Roads, However, Probably Will Be Arbitrated.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Unless the railroads of the West, Northwest, and Southwest make additional concessions to their firemen and the enginemen on switch engines those employes will strike for higher wages and improved working conditions. This is the ultimatum of the employes as expressed by complete returns made public to-day from the strike vote recently taken by the men on about fifty railroads.

A committee representing the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, which counted the ballots, announced that more than 86 per cent. of the union employes of the railroads were opposed to accepting the offer of the railroad managers' committee and more than 80 per cent. of the non-union employes voted against the offer.

Although the strike was authorized, the employes, it is said, are willing to submit their grievances to arbitration. A conference between the managers' committee and a committee representing the men is scheduled for to-morrow, when negotiations will be resumed.

President W. S. Carter of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen expressed the hope that the problem would be solved without the necessity of a strike.

Republicans Win In Ossining.

OSSINING, N. Y., March 8.—The village election here to-day resulted in a victory for the Republicans, who regain control of the Village Board. For a year the board has stood 6 Republicans and 6 Democrats. As a result of to-day's election the new board will stand 8 Republicans and 4 Democrats.

the lobby of the Knickerbocker. Caruso was not looking especially worried as he stepped out of the elevator and looked around. A TIMES reporter recognized him and inquired about developments in the blackmailing plot.

Own Story of His Troubles.

"Ah! it is bringing me so many, many letters," said Caruso, with a shrug of the shoulders. "They keep coming in all the day. They ask me to give money. If they come to my face and ask for money, I give; but to my back with a knife, no. I work for my money. I do not give it to those who come to my back and threaten for it. Charity? Yes. I always give to charity. I give my hat to those who really need and who ask me to my face."

Caruso lifted his hat to suit the action to the word.

"Have you received many more demands for money such as the ones of last week?" he was asked.

"Ah yes, many more," he said. "But I will give them nothing. I turn some of the letters over to the police as soon as they come. I am annoyed, yes, for these stories in the newspapers make the people keep on writing me letters."

"Will you fill your engagement to sing in Philadelphia on Thursday night?" he was asked.

"Why not?" he exclaimed. "To be sure I will. You think I am afraid?"

The Signor rapped his Malacca cane on the floor. It rattled as though a sword was inside.

"You think I am afraid. Oh no, not afraid—only annoyed. These people cannot get my money by writing letters. I will not be bullied that way."

And with that he said good evening and followed his two friends out in Forty-second Street and turned down Broadway. The man from Headquarters followed a short distance behind.

Popular at the Knickerbocker.

Caruso is known about the Knickerbocker as the most generous of men. When he went there to live several months ago there used to be a throng of poorly dressed Italians who called to receive alms from the singer. It is said at the hotel that he never used to turn a beggar away. News of his generosity seemed to spread through the Sicilian quarter here, and after a while the hotel management objected to the presence of so many ill-dressed foreigners in the lobby of the hotel. A few weeks ago the beggars stopped coming. Word went out that Caruso was tired of supporting so many worthless idlers, and that he felt as though he had been imposed upon by some of those who for weeks had been receiving aid from him.

Harry Blades, house detective at the Knickerbocker, said yesterday that he thought the blackmailers who sent the first two letters to Caruso were among the men who used to benefit by the singer's generosity.

LONG TERMS FOR BURGLARS.

Total of 46½ Years for Three Men Who Shot Policeman.

Three men convicted of robbing the country house of Allen Robinson, a Manhattan lawyer, at Pelham Manor, and shooting Policeman Savage, who surprised them at work, received sentences aggregating forty-six years and six months at hard labor in Sing Sing yesterday from County Judge Platt at White Plains. The robbery and shooting occurred on Dec. 21 last.

William Bender, alias William Barnett, alais William De Snow, who it was alleged shot the policeman, and Joseph White, an accomplice, pleaded guilty to robbery and assault, while their pal, Albert Wilson, stood trial, but was convicted after the jury had been out about half an hour.

According to the District Attorney's office Bender had served four years in Sing Sing for another robbery and Judge Platt gave him twenty-one years and six months in prison. Wilson and White each received ten-year sentences.

TCHAYKOVSKY TRIAL NEARLY CONCLUDED

Testimony for and Against Him and Mme. Breshkovska Finished on the First Day.

PROSECUTION IS WEAK

Whole Case Rests on Statements of Pateuk, an Admitted Brigand and Murderer—Juror Thought Prejudiced.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Nicholas V. Tchaykovsky pleaded not guilty and Mme. Breshkovskaya responded, "I admit that I am a Social Revolutionist," when their trials on charges of criminal activity in the revolutionary organization was begun to-day. The public was not admitted to the courtroom, the audience being confined to the prisoners, court officers, Tchaykovsky's wife, and forty gendarmes and plain clothes officers.

Judge Krashennikoff presided and the Government was represented by Vice Prosecutor Chervinsky. M. Zarudny appeared for Mme. Breshkovskaya and Vassili Malakoff for Tchaykovsky. At the opening the court denied a motion for separate trials as well as the request by the State for an adjournment of Tchaykovsky's case in view of the non-appearance of Feodoroff, the political agent of the secret police, and three other important police witnesses. The issuance of subpœnas for American witnesses was also denied.

Following the reading of the long indictment the pleas of the prisoners were made and Mme. Breshkovskaya announced that she was ready for trial. Save for her counsel, the woman had no friend in court.

The court adjourned its sitting at 11 o'clock to-night with the testimony of the prosecution and defense entirely in. The prosecutor's whole case rests on the statements of Pateuk, who added nothing to what he had already given in the indictment. The cross-examination, in which the presiding Judge played a prominent part, brought out, over the objections of the prosecutor, Pateuk's criminal record of murder and brigandage. Pateuk has been cited as a Crown witness in eight political trials yet to be held.

Both Tchaykovsky and Mme. Breshkovskaya flatly denied several points in the accusation on the ground that they were not in Russia at the time specified. The only other Crown witnesses were the Colonel of gendarmes who arrested Tchaykovsky, the landlady in whose house he lodged under a false passport, and a police officer who testified that the passport was false.

Tchaykovsky's witnesses included business associates from England. The court also admitted as a witness a committeeman of the Labor Party, who testified that Tchaykovsky had been delegated by the Labor Party to collect funds in America for the benefit of exiles. A large number of old-time Radicals and men of letters gave evidence as to the past history of the accused.

Before the proceedings began Mme. Bracey, the daughter of Tchaykovsky, was admitted to the courtroom momentarily to state on behalf of the sureties whether they were willing to continue on her father's bail bond until a verdict was reached. The father asked the court to permit Mme. Bracey to remain at the trial, but this was refused.

The witnesses, including several prominent Radicals and a political convict, who appeared in chains, were excluded from the courtroom during the preliminaries. Just before the opening of the trial Mme. Bracey received a letter from Premier Stolypin in which he declined to revoke the order that the trial be within closed doors, "in view of the possibility of a demonstration."

The large and usually crowded courtroom, the doors of which were heavily guarded by the police, had an almost deserted appearance, the little group of accused and counsel being huddled in front of the red-covered dais upon which were seated the Judge and the three class representatives of the nobility, urbanites, and peasantry. The presence on the dais of Admiral Delivrion, a prominent personage who represented the nobility, was construed as a bad omen by the defense, since his son was killed by the Terrorists in St. Petersburg. An Alderman and a peasant elder completed the jury.

Tchaykovsky was brought to the courtroom in a carriage escorted by ten gendarmes. As he was seated between two swordsmen in the dock he waved a cheerful greeting to acquaintances, and his face was radiant as though at the thought of again suffering for "the cause." His emotion was marked as he replied to the customary questions. His occupation he said was that of a preacher and the doctrine he expounded was "Socialism."

COST OF BUDGET REJECTION.

Chancellor Lloyd-George Says It Amounts to $142,500,000.

LONDON, March 8.—The rejection of the budget by the House of Lords in the preceding Parliament cost the country, in loss of revenue, $142,500,000 in the current financial year, according to a statement made by David Lloyd-George in the House of Commons to-day.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer added that it was impossible to say what proportion of this loss could be ultimately recovered.

ITS BUSINESS LEGAL, SAYS STANDARD OIL

MONOPOLY CHARGE ANSWER

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Standard Oil Company to-day filed in the Supreme Court of the United States its brief in opposition to the attempt of the Government to dissolve it as violating the Sherman anti-trust law. This comes as a prelude to the oral argument of the case on Monday.

The keynote of the defense is the so-called preservation of the "rights of individual citizens of the United States."

The issue, according to this brief, is the charge that the seven individual defendants, John D. Rockefeller, William R. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne, Henry M. Flagler, Charles M. Pratt, and Henry H. Rogers, combined and conspired to restrain inter-State trade in oil and to gain a monopoly of it.

The brief asserts that the decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri, which the defendants seek to overturn, is unjust to the men who "were a lawful group, lawfully doing business," and who after what is described as a mere conveyance of their oil properties to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1899, and solely by reason thereof became a "group of lawless conspirators," it is charged.

"The Standard Oil business as it existed in 1906 and still exists," says the brief, "was the natural development and outgrowth of the business begun in 1862 and steadily pursued by the Rockefellers and others. By untiring energy, with infinite skill, with abundant capital, and the steady reinvestment of early profits, these men and their associates created out of an entirely new, unique, and unprecedented production of crude oil a new, universally used, and cheapest illuminant the world has known.

"By creative skill they secured from refuse oil valuable by-products. They invented the huge reservoirs for storing oil—the combined pipe line system which gathers up and carries the natural products—the tank cars which carry the refined products.

"They created the export trade in oil, transporting it in ships of their own construction and selling it in Asia, India, China, Japan, Russia, and all Europe. They devised the trading stations—the tank delivery wagons—and used every means to cheapen the product and the quality.

"From 1862 to 1906 (forty-four years) the work went on. They took the risk of the failure in production, of destruction by fire and tempest, besides all the ordinary risks of trade. They met all emergencies with competent skill and sufficient funds. The unexpected, enormous increase in production greatly increased their business and added to its importance and profit.

"Their methods of holding their joint properties and the management of them were dictated by economic reasons. They used the best and cheapest methods in the holding of titles and in the transportation, production, refining, and sale of oil, and they sought to and did always produce the best and cheapest product.

"They competed with the same energy and skill they built up. They succeeded, as if one had developed unexpectedly a gold or diamond mine, and abundant revenue legitimately became theirs.

"Their business thus created was a lawful one, and the owners thereof were and are lawfully entitled to continue the same, and if in 1906, when the petition was filed, they were not restricting inter-State trade or by unlawful means seeking a monopoly, (which it was not,) the court should not have interfered with it."

Point after point is made by counsel in an endeavor to prove that the seven individual defendants did nothing more in 1899 than to change their method of business.

"Seven men controlling for, say, 5,000 people 70 parcels of property devoted to private business enterprise and for which the 5,000 hold trust certificates of trustees, in 1899 determine that thereafter the 5,000 shall hold stock certificates of the New Jersey Standard Oil Company for the same properties in the same proportions and with the same power and management.

"Neither the 5,000 owners nor the seven managers gained any new power or property or changed their status or smothered competition by the change, but they did gain, as they think, an easier and more economic method of holding and managing the joint properties."

The position of the Circuit Court that some of the companies were "potentially and naturally competitive," and that their competition was prevented by the organization of 1899, is attacked.

"We submit," says the brief, "that the idea of competition between properties all owned by the same persons is a novelty. Competition between joint owners is also novel."

The ownership of properties, it is contended in the brief, is wholly under the laws of the State, and Congress cannot and does not pretend to regulate their acquisition.

The objections to the decree are summed up in the statements that it is too general, too vague, too indefinite, too broad. "It denies to each individual the right of holding his property as he chooses," say the counsel, "either by legal or by equitable title."

AMERICAN LEGATION STONED.

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 8.—A quarrel between the manager of an American-owned street railway line and a police officer late yesterday was followed by a riot, during which a mob attempted to wreck the street cars. Traffic was stopped and the manager was placed under arrest.

The rioting continued for some time and reached the block in which the American Legation is located. The police gathered in force in the vicinity, but the mob, after wreaking its vengeance on the rolling stock of the company, attacked the United States Legation, stoning the building. The members of the legation were protected, and though there were further disturbances during the night, the authorities this morning appeared able to afford protection to the Americans.

Elliott Northcott is the American Minister in Bogota. He came here last August from West Virginia, and was formerly Judge of the District Court for the Southern District of that State.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—News of the anti-American demonstration in Bogota last night reached Washington to-day in a report to the State Department from the American Legation there.

The department is assured, however, that the Colombian officials are affording every protection to the American Legation.

Harburger Finds Gaynor a Great Man.

At a meeting of his Tammany Club in the Tenth Assembly District last night at the club's quarters, 42 Second Avenue, Leader Julius Harburger said among other things: "Mayor William J. Gaynor has made good. He is an able, conscientious man of extraordinary ability, of leonine courage, understands governmental affairs thoroughly, and will be the strongest Democrat to be nominated for the Presidency. He is not an accident, but a genius and a champion of the people."

CONEY ISLAND FARE STAYS 10 CENTS

Public Service Commission Finds That Brooklyn Rapid Transit Rates Are Not Unfair.

VALUATION AND EARNINGS

Percentage of Return Not Unreasonable—No Profit to Companies in the Through Business.

The Public Service Commission by a vote of three to two dismissed yesterday the complaints of Jonas Monheimer and Scott MacReynolds against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and its subsidiary corporations seeking to have a 5-cent fare established to Coney Island on all the lines in the combination. Commissioners McCarroll, Bassett, and Eustis voted for the order dismissing the complaints. Commissioner Maltbie voted against dismissing the complaints at this time and filed a dissenting memorandum. Chairman Willcox voted in favor of dismissing the complaints as against all lines but the Brighton Beach line, operated by the Brooklyn Union Elevated Company.

The prevailing opinion was written by Commissioner McCarroll, who presided at the hearings. Commissioner Bassett found it necessary to file an opinion stating why he concurred with the majority; Chairman Willcox contented himself with a brief informal statement of his position, and Commissioner Eustis refrained from individual comment upon the matter. The opinion of Commissioner McCarroll, after defining the various lines against which the complaint was lodged, and the contention of the complainants that the 10-cent fare was illegal under the decision of the Court of Appeals, notes that in the case of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company the various routes to Coney Island are broken up into their individual operating companies so as not to come under this provision.

As to the allegation that the 10-cent fare is inherently excessive Commissioner McCarroll presents this table of distances to be traveled on the lines in question, exclusive of transfer privileges, on a 5 and a 10 cent fare respectively:

Route.	Mileage for Five Cents.	Mileage for Ten Cents
Brighton Beach Line.....	8.763	11.878
West End Line.....	9.879	11.327
Sea Beach Line.....	8.080	11.533
Culver Line.....	9.027	11.393
Nostrand-Culver Line.....	9.846	12.353
Tompkins-Culver Line....	10.462	12.088
Reid Avenue Line.....	11.314	13.814
Vanderbilt Avenue Line..	8.544	11.051
Union Street Line.....	8.620	10.927
Fifteenth Street Line....	6.087	8.294

The Commissioner makes note that with the transfer privileges that are in force in Brooklyn, considerable distances may be traveled on a five-cent fare beyond those shown in the table, so that in some instances a total ride of twenty-one miles from Coney Island may be had for 10 cents.

Valuation of the B. R. T.

On the second question, relating to the capitalization, valuation, and earning capacity of the properties, Commissioner McCarroll presents this table summarizing the results of Mr. Arnold's work and the commission's own investigation of the financing of the B. R. T.:

Company.	Value of Property.	Income.	P.C.
Brooklyn Union El. R. R. Co.....	$25,262,154
Brooklyn Heights R. R. Co.....	$510,726
Bklyn City R. R. Co. (leased to B. H. R. R. Co....	25,066,297
Nassau Electric R. R. Co.....	11,924,349	902,452	7.56
Bklyn, Queens Co. & Sub. R. R. Co.	4,962,498	$25,964	6.57
So. Bklyn Ry. Co.	2,799,279	31,024	1.10
Sea Beach Ry Co., (deficit)	1,493,519	7,766
C. I. & Gravesend Ry. Co..... ...	463,511	7,032	1.51
Grand total...	$75,761,708

Commissioner McCarroll concludes that the percentages of earnings for all the companies, including the Brooklyn Union Elevated, are not unreasonable, and the commission is forced to the conclusion that the complaints should be dismissed on the merits.

Mr. McCarroll says finally:

"The trend of the testimony offered would indicate that this Coney Island business is not profitable to the companies, and there is nothing to justify the commission in ordering a five-cent fare."

MORE SUBWAY TRAINS PUT ON.

Expresses on Shorter Headway and Still There's a Rush-Hour Crush.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company began yesterday to operate its express trains in the Subway during morning and evening rush hours on a headway of 1 minute 48 seconds.

General Manager Frank Hedley reported that the new schedule was working satisfactorily. It means that 100 trains in the three hours of morning rush, from 7 until 10 o'clock, were sent south from Ninety-sixth Street.

In the afternoon rush hours the system appeared to outside observers to be working quite as well. The increased speed of operation did not, however, appear to decrease the Subway crush, nor is that expected, during rush hours at least, until the arrival of additional equipment.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

Last Concert of Its Regular Series Marks Completion of Its 25th Season.

The concert of the Kneisel Quartet given last evening in Mendelssohn Hall marked the completion of the twenty-fifth regular season of this organization, though not the end of its work in New York at the present time, for two extra afternoon concerts are to be given within the next month. The audience, which entirely filled the hall, did special honor to the players that have done so much for the interests of the highest form of chamber music not only in New York but also throughtout the country; for the influence of the Kneisel Quartet has extended from Maine to California by its travels in the quarter of a century in which the organization has been in existence.

Thus the applause and the enthusiasm which were liberated in so ample measure last evening meant more than delight at the beautiful performance of the music that was presented at the concert. It was a tribute to Mr. Kneisel, to whose lofty ideals and unyielding maintenance of the highest standards, and to whose passion for perfection the more than National reputation of his organization is due, and also to Mr. Ssecenski, who has been his faithful and untiring associate in the quartet from its foundation. To these, especially; but the tribute was rightfully shared by the two younger men, Messrs Roentgen and Willeke, who have more recently been associated with Mr. Kneisel and have shared his spirit and carried out his purposes.

The programme of the concert comprised César Franck's quartet in D major; an andante with variations from Glière's quartet in A major, Opus 2, and the octet in F for two violins, viola, 'cello, double bass, clarinet, bassoon, and horn, Opus 166, by Schubert. Two movements of Franck's quartet were played at the third concert in January, and they gave so much pleasure that the performance of the whole work was a natural outcome. The two movements Mr. Kneisel has more than once put on his programme, but before the style represented by the French composer had made its way into the ears and the sympathies of his listeners Mr. Kneisel hesitated to play the whole quartet. The repetition and reworking of the same themes, the "generative themes," his interpreters call them, throughout the four movements might bring danger of monotony were not Franck's resources in treating them so varied and ingenious. The whole quartet is full of rich and individual beauty, sounding depths of original harmonic combinations, and there is the expression of dreamy ecstasy, uplifted mystical feeling, passionate energy that are truly impressive. The performance of this music, difficult in its intonation, was remarkably fine.

Mr. Kneisel played the whole of Glière's quartet early in the season of 1906-7, and it had also been heard here in the previous season. The composer is one of the youngest of the younger Russian school, and has set forth his Russian birthright in this quartet by his use of Russian themes with the characteristic traits of melody and rhythm to be found in the native folk-song. The theme of the andante has this quality. The variations are fluent and agreeable music, admirably written for the four instruments, entirely to Schubert. He sang the twenty songs making up the cycle of the "Schöne Müllerin" and five other of the more dramatic of the master's songs.

Schubert's octet is rarely heard, its instrumental apparatus putting it outside of the beaten track of most chamber music organizations. In addition to which it has some of those "heavenly lengths" into which Schubert fell when he became enamored of his ideas, and could with difficulty break loose from them. But it is true Schubert, full of delightful melody; and the instrumental combination is made productive of unceasingly beautiful effects—effects that have the effect of spontaneous and, as it were, inevitable utterance. The work was played with finish, and the assisting artists seemed all imbued with its poetical spirit. They were Messrs. Leroy, clarinet; Franzel, horn; Mesnard, bassoon, and Manoly, double bass.

There was much applause at the close of the concert; a laurel wreath was brought to Mr. Kneisel. A banquet was given to the members of the quartet after the concert at the Café des Beaux Arts, at which about 130 people were present.

Dr. Wuellner's Recital.

Dr. Ludwig Wüllner began yesterday afternoon a series of three subscription matinée song recitals in Mendelssohn Hall. The first of these was devoted THEATRICAL NOTES.

John Mason in "A Son of the People" will follow "The Turning Point" at the Hackett Theatre, opening on March 21. Mr. Mason will be supported by the same company that has been appearing with him at The New Theatre.

The first performance of Henry B. Harris's first musical production, "A Skylark," will take place at the Columbia Theatre, Washington, on March 14.

Two extra performances of "Everyman" will be given at the Garden Theatre next week, on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The performance on Monday will be the one thousandth of the play in America. "She Stoops to Conquer," "The Rivals," and Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus" will be given during the rest of the week.

The Bon Ton Burlesque Company is appearing at the Columbia Theatre this week, presenting two one-act musical pieces called "A Night in the Tenderloin" and "Teddy's Trip to the Jungles." There is also a special vaudeville bill.

Joseph Weber and Maurice Campbell yesterday completed contracts by which Mr. Campbell's farce, "Where There's a Will," will remain at Weber's Theatre until some time in June. At the conclusion of the run of this piece Mr. Weber will begin rehearsals of "Alma, Wo Wohnst Du?" in which Kitty Gordon will have the principal role.

PLATT'S BODY TAKEN TO HIS OLD HOME

FRIENDS START FOR OWEGO

Delegations from Legislature and Other Public Bodies to Attend Service—Many Telegrams of Condolence.

Simplicity marked the removal yesterday afternoon of the body of ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt from the home of his son, Frank H. Platt, at 242 West Seventy-fourth Street, to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western station in Hoboken, whence it was shipped to Owego, Tioga County, to be buried to-day in the Platt family plot. Seldom has so little ceremony been observed at the death of a public man.

After a brief religious service in the parlor of the Platt home, where the body of the ex-Republican leader lay amid wreaths of orchids, lilies of the valley, roses, lilacs, and other flowers from the dead man's friends, the coffin, covered with flowers, was put in a hearse and, without any followers, it was taken across the Twenty-third Street ferry to the Hoboken station and put in the baggage car of the regular 2:05 P. M. train for Owego. At the station several prominent politicians and business men, close personal friends of the Senator, took the train for Owego to take part in the final services.

Services at His Son's Home.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning, the members of the family, including Mr. Platt's sister, Mrs. C. B. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Platt, Henry B. Platt and his two children, Miss Charlotta and Sherman P., and Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Platt, gathered about the coffin in Frank H. Platt's home, while the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell of the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, offered prayer. Mr. Platt had been a member of the Marble Collegiate Church ever since he left Dr. Parkhurst's church.

Anticipating a crowd in the street in front of his home, Frank H. Platt telephoned to the West Sixty-eighth Street police station and asked the Lieutenant to send around several policemen. Lieut. Kraus arrived with six men, but there wasn't anything for them to do. Not a person stopped even to look at the house. When the coffin was carried out there wasn't a stranger in sight.

Whether by design or not, the driver of the hearse on his way to the ferry drove by the Fifth Avenue Building, the former site of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where the dead Senator had long lived and met his political followers. There were only a few railroad men on the platform when the coffin was borne to the baggage car at the station. A few minutes before the train left, three automobiles, containing the members of the Platt family, drove up. The party boarded the special car Minkahda, which General Superintendent Clark of the Lackawanna had put at their disposal. In the party were Chauncey H. Crosby, Albert Boardman, and Gen. Tracy. On the same train, but not with the party went Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Abel of 133 West Eleventh Street, who owned the apartment where Mr. Platt lived for four years, and where he died Sunday night. Mr. Platt's private secretary, E. R. Merry, Jr., also went on the train.

In the delegation which left early this morning on the regular 2 A. M. train, to which was attached a special sleeper, were Timothy L. Woodruff, ex-Gov. Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., George Cromwell, Borough President of Richmond Borough; United States Appraiser George Wanmaker, F. J. H. Kracke, Lewis M. Swasey, and John H. Campbell, members of the Republican State Committee, and Anderson D. Lawrence. There was also a representation from the Amen Corner. Mr. Woodruff planned to have every member of the State Committee present at the funeral if possible.

There will be funeral services in the Owego Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock this morning, at which the Rev. Dr. Young will officiate. The ceremonies both at the church and the grave are expected to be very simple.

Telegrams of Condolence Received.

Among those who left early this morning on the regular 2 A. M. train, to telegrams of condolence were received. Some of them came from Chauncey M. Depew, who wrote that on account of illness he would not be able to attend the funeral; M. Linn Bruce, ex-Gov. Warfield of Maryland, Isaac V. Baker, Jr., Ferdinand Eldman, George W. Aldrich, Lieut. Gov. Horace White, William R. Willcox, Supreme Court Justice Warren B. Hooker, United States District Judge John R. Hazel, Frank S. Witherbee, Gen. Clinton B. MacDougall, August Belmont, ex-Senator George E. Green of Binghamton, William A. Smyth of Oswego, ex-Collector Nevada N. Stranahan, Charles R. Skinner, Otto T. Bannard, John B. Stanchfield, A. H. La Monte, E. W. Bloomingdale, Francis E. Flagg, James Forsyth, Mrs. H. O. Armour, Mrs. William Brookfield, Mr. and Mrs. Macgrane Coxe, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Eno, Major John A. Butler, Frederick I. Allen, Frank Brookfield, Frank Brainard, Lispenard Stewart, George R. Sheldon, Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ide, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Candix Hay, Gen. Michael Kerwin, Gen. and Mrs. Anson G. McCook, Frank H. Kathorn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan Smith, Dr. and Mrs. M. Allen Starr, H. Reimore Duval, the Rev. Henry E. Cobb, Gen. and Mrs. James S. Clarkson, J. Langdon Ward, Col. Henry L. Swords, Mrs. Josiah C. Reiff, E. A. Sumner, Charles H. Boynton, J. Rhinelander Dillon, Orin Clinton Frost, Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead Ladd, Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Vernon M. Davis, Mrs. Thomas Rutter, and Mr. and Mrs. William Congdell Fargo.

ALBANY, March 8.—The joint legislative committee, which will attend the funeral of ex-Senator Platt at Owego tomorrow, was announced to-day. Those appointed are Senators Hinman of Binghamton, Schlosser, of Fishkill Landing, Heacock of Ilion, Witter of Wellsville, and Cullen of Brooklyn, Assemblymen Howard of Tioga, Lee of Kings, Perkins of Broome, C. F. Brown of Cortland, De Lano of Madison, Hackett of New York, and L. H. White of Schenectady. The committee will leave Albany at 11:30 o'clock to-night in a special car.

THEIR HOSPITAL INADUQUATE.

J. Hood Wright Officials Admit It in Inquest of Transferred Patient.

Officials of the J. Hood Wright Hospital at the inquest yesterday into the death of Matthew Farrell of 703 Amsterdam Avenue, before Coroner Shongut, in the Bronx, stated that the hospital was inadequate to serve the needs of the west side of Harlem. Following this statement, the jury recommended that the city build a hospital to meet the demands.

Farrell died in the Lincoln Hospital following his transfer from the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and the jury in their verdict said that they believed that the man's death had been hastened by his transfer. At the conclusion of the inquest, Coroner Shongut said that he was going to submit the verdict and the minutes to the District Attorney and the Grand Jury.

Farrell received a compound fracture of the leg on Feb. 28, and was operated on in the J. Hood Wright Hospital. The following day he was taken to the pier at East 120th Street, where the Charities boat leaves for Bellevue Hospital. The day was foggy and the boat was delayed. Dr. Baker of Lincoln Hospital was at the pier, and the patient was turned over to the Lincoln surgeon.

DEFIANT "BANDIT KING" OF 12.

Dug Out of His Bronx Cave by Italian Laborers and Mother's Purse Rescued.

Frank Yockel, a twelve-year-old boy living at 806 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, known among his companions as "Chief Yockel, King of the Bandits," gave the police reserves of the Morrisania Police Station several hours of worry yesterday when he hid himself in a cave of rocks and refused to come out. After the heavy stones had been removed by the police and a gang of Italian laborers, "Chief Yockel" was locekd up in a cell on a charge made by his mother that he was incorrigible.

"My pals wouldn't stick by me; they all went home," he sobbed as he was being locked up.

For several weeks "Chief Yockel" and his companions have been using the cave in a lot at Fox Street and St. John's Avenue as a place to read dime novels and play Indian. The cave was about ten feet deep and the entrance was so small that only one boy could enter at a time.

Monday afternoon Yockel discovered his mother's pocketbook on the kitchen table. In it was $20. Quickly "The Chief" gathered his followers, and announced that the time had come to celebrate. In the meantime the boy's mother missed him and her purse.

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning Philip Yockel, an uncle of the boy, saw "Chief" seated near the pile of stones in which he had slept all night. He started after him, but the "Chief" wriggled through the opening and refused to come out. Yockel apealed to the police. Capt. Tappen of the Morrisania Station appealed to a gang of laborers across the street, and the work of pulling away the rocks began.

The police and the laborers were afraid to work fast, for the whole structure might give way and the boy in the cave be crushed if the keystone rock was moved. After an hour's work the boy's legs could be seen, and the police tried to throw a noose around them. "The Chief" was prepared for this emergency, and when the rope slipped across his feet he cut it. After another hour's work the rocks were removed and the boy was dragged from the cave and taken to the police station.

GIRL DESIGNS GOULD CAKE.

Student of Applied Design School to Model Wedding Confection.

There was some excitement in the School of Applied Design for Women when it was learned a short while ago that one of the girls there was designing the wedding cake for Miss Marjorie Gould. Probably Miss Gould was as much surprised as the school to learn this, for the commission was originally given to a caterer.

Miss Gould decided that she wanted a reproduction of Georgian Court, the Gould home at Lakewood, represented in the icing. Apparently that was somewhat beyond the caterer, who immediately sought the school, and the commission was turned over to one of the young women there.

Two designs of Georgian Court were made and sent in. Soon that personage returned with the news that Miss Gould had changed her mind and wanted also a model of Lyndhurst, the home of Miss Helen Gould, upon the mammoth cake. After further consultation, the caterer announced that there were to be three cakes, rather than one. The three were to be one on top of the other underneath an arch. At the bottom was to be Lyndhurst, and above that, on two shelves, as it were, Georgian Court, and then a Temple of Love for the top.

WHITE SLAVE VICTIMS UP.

One Sent Home—Another Stabs Officer When Sent to Reformatory.

Three girls, rescued from two young men indicted for carrying them off to Hartford, were taken before Judge Rosalsky yesterday for release from the House of Detention. Of the men in the case, Dicicco was convicted of abduction; Marifo is scheduled for a second trial.

Two of the girls are the daughters of Mrs. Lizzie Frohne of 58 West 119th Street. The younger was paroled in her custody. When Lizzie, the 19-year-old daughter, heard Judge Rosalsky suggest that she be sent to some reformatory she raised the most spectacular fuss that General Sessions has seen for some time.

"Are you wounded?" cried Assistant District Attorney Jacoby, in great alarm.

"It's a mere scratch," said the process server, smiling bravely.

The girl was carried screaming from the room, and in the Tombs Court, between screams, was committed to the Tombs in $500 bail.

The third girl was returned to the House of Detention.

BUYS THE EDISON BUILDING.

Wall Street Journal Completes Purchase of Broad Street Structure.

The Wall Street Journal, owned by Dow, Jones & Co., yesterday purchased the southern half of the Edison Building, at 44 Broad Street, extending through to 40 New Street. The new owners now control the entire plot.

The Edison Building is an eight-story office structure, situated one block south of the Stock Exchange. The northern half was purchased by the Wall Street Journal Building Company in foreclosure proceedings at auction a month ago for $394,300. The southerly half has been purchased through Lewis B. Preston from Charles and H. Casimir De Rham. This plot has been owned by the De Rham family since 1825, and has been held at $550,000.

COURT ORDER FOR CONTEMPT.

Surrogate Thomas Summons Before Him Executors of Hurtig Will.

Surrogate Thomas, on the application of creditors, signed an order yesterday directing the Sheriff to bring into court Sarah Hurtig, Samuel Blum, and John J. Keit, executors of the will of Benjamin Hurtig. Surrogate Thomas wants the executors before him on March 11 to answer for "trespass and contempt" in disobeying an order of Jan. 4, 1910, to present an accounting and inventory of the estate by Jan. 18.

The order provides that the executors may give $250 bond for their appearances. It is alleged that the most of Hurtig's estate is in the form of theatrical productions, interests in plays, and dramatic and musical ventures staged by Hurtig & Seamon.

BIG RUSH TO SEND TELEGRAM-LETTERS

Companies Express Satisfaction with Patronage of Social and Business People.

LOVE LETTERS BY WIRE NOW

And Husbands Telegraph to Their Wives on the Morning After—The Handwriting Isn't Seen.

Both the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies expressed themselves yesterday as well pleased with the first day's patronage of the new night fifty-word telegraph letters. Returns were not fully in, but it was said that the figures, so far received, have been quite satisfactory. The letters sent were fairly well divided between the business and the purely social, and the officials saw signs of distinctly new uses being developed for the telegraph.

In the first place quite a number of market letters were dispatched by Stock Exchange houses and other firms which take an interest in quotations of various kinds. By this means they were able to extend their business beyond the 300 or 400 miles that a letter will carry in the twelve hours which elapse between the end of one business day and the beginning of the next.

Then there were symptoms that firms, which depend on advertising to push their wares, will think a letter-telegram at the old ten-word rate a great aid to their business. They know too well, the telegraph officials pointed out, that circulars find the way to the waste paper basket unopened, but a telegram is sure to be looked at, and the addressee is likely to be somewhat impressed by the enterprise of a firm that booms itself by wire.

A good deal of the business originating outside the city and some of the letters sent from the New York hotels consisted of orders from commercial travelers to their firms. Lately there has been a great delay in the mail service across the Continent owing to the severe storms in the Rockies, and a firm may well think that $1 expended on wiring two or three orders from San Francisco is well spent when it saves not only the five days the ordinary letter takes but also the problematical delays occasioned by trains stuck in the snow.

It's a Boon for Drummers.

Perhaps, it was suggested yesterday, one of the great services the new service will render will be to the commercial travelers just beyond the twelve-hour mail to their home cities. A traveler, who knows that he is just far enough way to make it impossible for his letter to reach the New York office till noon after the day it is sent, feels that his customer will not realize this difficulty in the prompt filling of orders, and will be willing to spend the extra money to have his order with his firm as soon as it opens for business in the morning. Moreover as he can file his message any time before midnight he is not rushed in getting it ready.

Then there were any number of different kinds of social messages. The telegraph officials believe that the informality of the telegram will make it popular in this field. No one can deny that there is a certain air of consideration for one's correspondent about a telegram, and there has always been a good deal of business of a ceremonial nature that might just as well have been mailed, sent over the wire to produce the effect of letting the expense go hang when a courtesy is intended. Thus, theatrical folk have loved to get telegrams of congratulation. They are expected to make full use of the new system.

Excuses to Their Wives.

On the other hand no one expects a telegram to be formal, so on many social occasions it is likely to be a refuge to the bewildered. It was also found last night that a number of business men sent letters home by wire. The telegraph officials smiled a little as they were handed in. As far as they could make out, many husbands knew their wives wanted a daily report of their doings and decided that it was much easier to scribble off fifty words of telegram than fill up in their own handwriting the large sheets of note paper which the hotels persist in providing.

Stranger still were the love letters that went by wire. One official admitted that he had felt disposed to dispatch one himself, and only held his hand when he found how crowded the wires were. Quite a number of such messages were handed in, carefully veiled, of course, but to the telegraph operators plainly brimming over with affection that could not endure longer the dilatoriness of trains.

The messages were delivered by hand yesterday morning, if addressed to residences, as soon as possible after 8 o'clock, and if sent to business houses at the hour that their offices are usually open.

EXTRA COURTS BEGIN MONDAY.

Justice Goff and Judge Malone Will Relieve Congested Criminal Calendar.

To reduce the lengthening calendar of the criminal courts two extra courts will go into session next Monday. Judge Malone telephoned District Attorney Whitman yesterday that he would resume his term in General Sessions, and Justice Ingraham of the Appellate Division directed Mr. Whitman to ask Justice Goff for a continuance of his January term in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

"I don't care whose fault it is, and I blame neither courts, Judges, nor lawyers," Mr. Whitman said last night, "but I do not like to see those 165 prisoners in the Tombs awaiting trial, and I am glad we are to have more courts.

"I appealed to the Appellate Division, and as a result Justice Goff is to continue in the County Court House the term that he adjourned last Thursday. Assistant District Attorneys Bostwick and Rubin start work down there on Monday."

The appraisal of the estate of William Rhinelander, who died on Jan. 3, 1908, was filed yesterday in the Transfer Tax Office. The gross estate, real and personal, totals $1,833,105. The net estate is $1,307,470, of which the personal estate is $814,605. The will left a $5,000 annuity to a son, William C. Rhinelander, and the residue to Matilda O. Rhinelander, the widow.

WOMEN'S RELIGIOUS LEGACIES

Ann Gray Benefited Presbyterian, Sarah B. Donnel Baptist Missions.

The will of Ann Gray, who died Feb. 22, at 203 West Seventy-eighth Street, leaving an estate estimated at $15,000, was filed yesterday. The will leaves $1,000 each to the Presbyterian Board of Relief for Disabled Ministers and the Widows and Orphans of Deceased Ministers. The Women's Board of Foreign Missions and the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church and $200 each to the Dobbs Ferry Hospital Association and the Presbyterian Church of Dobbs Ferry.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Niven, widow of the Rev. Thornton M. Niven of Dobbs Ferry, is the sole executrix of the will. She employed in 1877 the testatrix as a nurse for her children. The will gives $4,300 to members of the Niven family, three of them children, who were formerly under the care of the testatrix as nurse.

The will of Sarah B. Donnel, who died Feb. 10, 1910, was filed yesterday. The will was executed Nov. 25, 1905. The principal bequests are to the New York City Baptist Missionary Society, $2,200; the Baptist Home Society, $2,000; the American Baptist Home Mission Society, $3,000; the American Baptist Missionary Union, $3,000; the Female Guardian Society and the Home for the Friendless, $1,000; the Hebron Academy, Hebron, Me., her collection of stones, corals, and unornamented shells, to the Rev. Dr. Henry G. Weston, President of the Crozier Theological Seminary, $1,000, and the residue of her estate to the Mount Morris Baptist Church.

WON'T WED RYERSON NOW.

Mrs. Walters Testifies She Wouldn't Consider It Safe.

The $50,000 breach of promise suit of Mrs. Helen M. Walters, the Chicago widow, against Theodore A. Ryerson, a broker's clerk, went to a jury in the Supreme Court before Justice Dugro yesterday. Justice Dugro instructed the jury to return a sealed verdict to-day. Mrs. Walters, recalled to the stand after her testimony of the previous day that she still loved Ryerson and Ryerson's testimony that he was willing to marry her, testified that she did not consider it safe to marry Ryerson now.

Mirabeau L. Towns, counsel for Mrs. Walters, sought to have Justice Dugro charge the jury that Ryerson's present willingness to marry Mrs. Walters, whom he met in Atlantic City in 1908, would not mitigate the damages for disappointing her. Justice Dugro quoted a case in opposition, but Attorney Towns insisted that no such principle had been embodied in the laws of New York State. Robert Weeks, counsel for Ryerson, did not cross-examine Mrs. Walters, and spent only four minutes in summing up his side of the case. He took no exceptions in the trial and made no requests for charges by Justice Dugro to the jury.

STABILE JURY BOX FILLED.

Eighty Talesmen Quizzed First—Witness Tells of the Shooting.

It was not until after the examination of eighty talesmen that the twelfth man was selected yesterday for the jury that is to try Vincent Stabile, the young City College student indicted for murder in the first degree. On the first night of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration he shot and killed John McGrath in front of 540 West Fifty-third Street.

Stabile's defense is that he had suffered unceasing persecution from the Irish in the neighborhood, and that he fired in fear for his life. The prejudice of nationality involved was one of the chief difficulties in drawing a jury which would satisfy both defense and prosecution.

The chief witness yesterday was Mrs. Agnes Brennan, who told of seeing Stabile walk up behind McGrath and shoot him through the back of the head. As the boy reeled and caught at the railing against which he had been leaning, she ran forward just in time to prevent his falling to the pavement. He died in her arms.

New Medical Teachers at Columbia.

Closer connection between the College of Physicians and Surgeons on the one hand and the Mount Sinai and German hospitals on the other, it is believed, will result from the appointments of representatives of these hospitals to the teaching staff of the Columbia Medical School. From the medical and surgical staff of the Mount Sinai Hospital, it was announced, Drs. Brill, Libman, Gerster, and Berg have been chosen, and Drs. Kammerer, Stadtmuller, and Hensel from the staff of the German Hospital.

New Aviation Ground on Long Island.

The Aero Club of America broke ground yesterday near the Mineola Fair Grounds, at Mineola, L. I., for an aviation building. The ground will be used for the erection of a building and sheds for experimental purposes. The club expects to add to it in time a National Aviation School.

More Aid for the Cotter Family.

THE TIMES has received a check for $10 from "D. L." and an anonymous contribution of $1 for the Cotter family of 426 East Seventy-ninth Street.

PEARY'S LECTURES ABROAD.

The Explorer Will Speak in London, Paris, Berlin, and Other Capitals.

Commander Robert E. Peary will deliver eight public lectures abroad in addition to those before the Geographical Societies of London, Edinburgh, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Rome, and possibly Brussels and Antwerp.

The first of these will be given in Queen's Hall, London, on May 5, after the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society in the Royal Albert Hall, at which a gold medal is to be presented to Commander Peary and a silver one to Capt. Robert A. Bartlett. Six public lectures in all will be delivered in England.

The other two will be given in Paris and Berlin. They will be delivered in English, as the explorer has heard that when Sir Ernest Shackleton began to read in Paris an address in French, his audience besought him to revert to his native tongue. Ambassador Hill will preside at the Berlin lecture and Ambassador Whitelaw Reid at the London and Paris addresses.

Oak and Walnut For the Library

A CERTAIN dignity and gravity accordant with its literary associations seem to be demanded in the furnishing of the Library.

Nor are these qualities incompatible with the ease and comfort which should belong to a room so often set aside for the intimate reception of his friends by the head of the household.

Our new Gallery, in which we have gathered together some interesting Replica-Reproductions of the fine Oak and Walnut furniture of the Tudor, Stuart and William and Mary periods, affords an unequalled opportunity for the judicious selection of Library furniture of precisely the character indicated.

HARVEY DEPRECATES POSTAGE INCREASE

Editor Tells Sphinx Club Periodicals Counted on Government's Keeping Old Rates.

BUILT THEIR TRADE ON THAT

To Depart from a Policy So Firmly Grounded Might Be Construed as Bad Faith, He Says.

Col. George Harvey of Harper's Magazine spoke last night at the dinner of the Sphinx Club at the Waldorf on the proposed advance of the postage on magazines. He declared that he had nothing but his own interest to serve and had no intention of speaking in behalf of the intellectual culture of the people. As the representative of a vested interest which had built up a great business, believing that the Government would be true to the policy which it had followed for a hundred years, he protested against any change in its attitude by the sudden change in its postal rates.

Harvey Opposes Postal Increase.

Col. George Harvey of Harper's Magazine, in discussing the proposed increase of magazine postage, spoke of those who opposed the change in the name of good literature and declared that his own attitude was assumed for purely personal reasons.

"I can sympathize," he said, "with those more altruistic than myself who are affected, not by sordid considerations, but by a sense of resentment that the masses should by any possibility be deprived of the great advantages which they now derive through the dissemination of pure literature upon the existing quite reasonable terms. But as I am not certain that I have a divine appointment to guide the people and profit by it, I oppose the measure because I do not want, and cannot comfortably afford, to pay any more than I am paying now.

"Since everybody else who has invested money and brains under certain conditions established by the Government is regarded kindly, I assert an equal right to fair consideration of—shall I utter the hateful words?—a vested interest. To me it is not material whether or not there is an actual deficit from the Postal service. What should be insisted upon is the maintenance of good faith between Government and citizens.

"There have been many changes in postal rates, but invariably they have been reduced. In England a succession of precedents over a long period constitutes a law; here I believe they should establish a policy. On that just assumption large sums of money have been invested and great businesses built up. To depart from a policy so clearly implied and so firmly grounded might be construed an act of bad faith on the part of the Government toward those who have relied on the continuance of a policy definitely fixed by a line of precedents unbroken in more than a century of time. As publishers and editors with large interests at stake, I feel we can take this position and maintain it frankly, squarely, and successfully."

Col. Harvey also spoke of the effect of the new school of lower-priced periodicals on the older magazines.

"Ten years ago," he said, "I was confronted by the virtual necessity of either reducing or increasing the price of Harper's. I increased it from $3 to $4 a year. The experiment was questionable, perhaps even daring, but it proved successful. Comparing the net paid subscription list of June 1, 1900, and March 1, this year, I found that the net paid subscriptions had a little more than doubled. On March 1 we had exactly 3,897 more subscribers than double the number we had on June 1, 1900. The experience of the Century, I am informed, has been correspondingly gratifying. There seems to be for the present ample room for both classes of magazines and good reason to believe that one class supplements and helps the other."

Robert Frothingham, President of the Quoin Club, and Truman A. de Weese, advertising manager of the Shredded Wheat Company, were the other speakers.

LUSITANIA MAY GET RECORD.

Chief Officer Says New Propellers Have Increased Steamer's Speed.

Chief Officer McNeil of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sails to-day for Liverpool, said yesterday that the four new, solid brass, four-bladed propellers which had been fitted to the steamer in Liverpool had made a considerable difference in the speed of the ship.

"The only time we had a chance to test the speed," said the Chief, "was between Nantucket Lightship and Sandy Hook, when the steamer averaged 27 knots an hour for the 196 miles. In my opinion the Lusitania will prove yet to be the faster ship and the Mauretania will have hard work to uphold her record of three minutes ahead of our fastest run westward made last Fall on the short course."

The propellers worked so easily, he said, that they could hardly be heard on deck.

Newark Union Not Recognized.

Thomas N. McCarter, President of the Public Service Railway Company of New Jersey, in Newark yesterday talked with a special committee of the State Federation of Labor. The labor leaders tried to persuade Mr. McCarter to agree to a conference with the officers of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. Mr. McCarter refused to recede from the stand he had previously taken, that he would not agree to such a conference. The union has made a demand for a ten-hour day and wages of 25 cents an hour.

THOUGHT MARTINS GENUINE.

Clausen, Sued by Evans, Tells of Buying Questioned Paintings.

William Clausen, the art dealer of this city, who is being sued in two actions by William T. Evans, the art collector of Montclair, N. J., to recover money paid for paintings represented to be the work of Homer D. Martin, but which Mr. Evans is now convinced are spurious, has been examined before the trial of the actions by a referee. The report of his testimony was filed yesterday with the County Clerk.

The two paintings in question are entitled, "Near Newport" and "The Old Mill Near St. Cloud." For the latter Mr. Evans paid $2,700 in 1904. Clausen said that he had been an art dealer for twenty-six years. He bought the "Near Newport" painting, he said, from a man named Andrew Chittenden. He had paid Chittenden $1,250 by check for the picture, but had lost his check book he said. Clausen declared that the painting had all the appearance of being the genuine work of Martin.

"The Old Mill Near St. Cloud," he said, had been brought to him by a man named Swift, who said that he was acting for a man named Hamilton in Syracuse. This picture Clausen also believed was genuine, he said, basing his judgment on his own acquaintance with Martin and his work. Swift he described as a tall man, who talked with a Yankee twang and had many Yankee mannerisms. He paid Swift $1,200 cash for the picture he said. Both pictures, Clausen said, had been relined and retouched.

CITY PAYROLL CUTS SHOWN.

Controller Gives Detailed Figures of Savings Effected in Two Months.

Controller Prendergast issued a statement yesterday on the payroll cuts made by the heads of the various city departments since Jan. 1, giving comparative figures for December and February.

The Controller explains that the totals are not all complete, several of the departments employing per diem men who are paid by the week.

The portion of the payroll covered by the statement in December totaled $4,329,964. Last month this was cut to $4,104,242, a saving of more than $225,000. President McAneny of Manhattan saved $79,307, President Miller of the Bronx $38,041, President Steers of Brooklyn $60,944, President Gresser of Queens $22,732, and President Cromwell of Richmond $17,580.

Decreases in other departments were these: Finance, $8,401; Law, $1,878; Bridge, $7,295; Elections, $10,308; Street Cleaning, $43,868; Fire, $50,274; Parks, $29,625; Board of Estimate, $1,093; Water, $22,214; Charities, $2,064, and Docks, $48,006.

A few of the departments show increases. Most of them are under $100, however, the only ones of importance being the Police Department $211,855 and the Health Department $7,397.

TRIED BY A MEDICAL COURT.

Findings of Physicians Accepted as a Judgment of Supreme Court.

The report of a special board of medical commissioners, which by consent becomes a judgment of the Supreme Court, was filed yesterday with the County Clerk. The report decides that Dr. Robert H. M. Dawburn of 105 West Seventy-fourth Street has no claim to a thousand-dollar fee for which he sued Dr. Grace Peckham Murray of 50 West Forty-fifth Street. Dr. Dawburn sought the $1,000 for an operation he performed on one of Dr. Murray's patients at her request.

The board consisted of Dr. Frederick Holme Wiggin, Advocate Judge for Dr. Dawburn; Dr. Alexander Lambert, Advocate Judge for Dr. Murray, and Dr. George Tucker Harrison, neutral Judge, selected by the other two. None of the Commissioners will receive a fee for his services.

The woman operated on was a charity patient of Dr. Murray's. Dr. Dawburn asked traveling expenses of $74.40, which also were disallowed.

MOVE $10,800,000 IN GOLD.

Bars Taken to Sub-Treasury from Assay Office, Now Being Repaired.

The rebuilding operations at the old Assay Office in Wall Street had progressed yesterday to the section where gold is kept in storage, and preliminary to the appearance of the workmen in that part of the old building the Government's store of gold bars was removed to the strong rooms of the Sub-Treasury basement next door.

The Assay Office had on hand only $10,800 00, but it took several trips by the Assay Office hand trucks to transfer the boxes of bars.

While the gold was in transit two policemen from the John Street Station and half a dozen detectives kept their eyes on the large crowd which gathered.

First Polo Game Defaulted.

The National Indoor Polo Association was to have opened its season last evening at the Tichenor-Grand Riding Academy with a game between the Manhattan Polo Club and the Tichenor-Grand special team. The Manhattan polo team did not put in an appearance, and the game went to the Tichenor-Grand team by default. A good-sized gallery was present to see the game, and two teams picked for the occasion played a game which kept the crowd interested. The players divided themselves into the Reds and the Blues, the Reds winning the game, 2 goals to 1.

GAYNOR PRAISES NEW YORK'S MORALS

WE OBSERVE LAWS BETTER

In Suffolk County on Sundays He Says Saloon Blinds Are Up, but Side Doors Swing All Day.

Some 300 members of the New York State Master Plumbers' Association, which opened its annual convention yesterday in the Hotel Astor, applauded Mayor Gaynor, who had been invited to speak in the forenoon, when he made an address of welcome, laughed heartily at witticisms sprinkled here and there through his speech, and a band which was ready to play on the slightest provocation started up patriotic airs with every burst of applause.

The Mayor was introduced by President Hill of the New York branch, who presented to him on behalf of the convention a silver medallion of a woman holding in her hand the seal of the city.

Mayor Gaynor in his address said:

"The plumbers are like the doctor who feels your pulse and looks wise and the lawyer who talks to convince you that he knows a great deal. The plumber does all sorts of mysterious things. He looks under floors and rips walls and you cannot understand what he is doing. The next thing, however, is a bill. On the whole, I believe most plumbers are honest. They can be profitable to the city in saving waste of water by leakage for the city Water Department."

He switched off to the cricitisms of New York in out-of-town papers. In Elmira, Rochester, Syracuse, and other places the people were led to think of New York as very bad.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "it is the other way. New York is much better than Elmira, Rochester, Syracuse, or Buffalo, and is a pretty good city."

Then he said that the people, for instance, were better watched in New York than in other places, especially on Sunday. He lived in Suffolk County, a prohibition place, and there on Sundays the blinds of the saloon windows were up all day and people could see clear into the very kitchen, while the side door swung all day long.

"But in New York," he said. "Oh! my! What a fuss is made about the side doors and Sunday laws. You in the up-State cities had better conform to the exquisite morality of New York. When you come here you will find it orderly and moral and can take a lesson from it."

Young Wildfang Stings Savage.

Young Wildfang defeated Dan Savage in a ten-round bout at Brown's Athletic Association last night by forcing the fighting in the first six rounds and giving Savage a severe drubbing. In the fifth round Wildfang floored Savage with a vicious right swing for the count of nine. After the sixth round Wildfang tired and Savage revived and made the match more even. He reached Wildfang's body, but could not land effectively on his jaw. In the preliminaries Young Terry defeated George Hoey in a four-round go; Kid Burns beat Fred Hicks, and Frankie Sheehan defeated Joe Harris.

Flynn and Mellody Win Bouts.

BOSTON, March 8.—Jim Flynn of Boston beat Morris Harris of Philadelphia in eight rounds before the Armory Athletic Club tonight, while "Honey" Mellody of Boston got a decision from "Unk" Russell of Philadelphia in another eight-round contest. Young Nixon of Cambridge pummeled "Biz" Mackey of Cleveland so badly in two rounds that the latter's seconds carried him from the ring.

SPORTING ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Tommy Maloney and Joe Hyland will furnish the star bout at the Long Acre Athletic Association to-morrow night. Maloney is a clever boy, having won the amateur bantamweight championship at the National Club. Hyland recently set the fans talking when he defeated the pride of the Mango family. Joe is a comer, and if he puts Maloney away he will go after some of the big fry. Young Fitzsimmons will meet some good boy in the semi-windup.

When Young O'Leary and Frankie Burns finished their ten-round bout at the Bedford Club a few weeks ago it was voted one of the best fights of the year around New York. Jimmy Kelly, manager of O'Leary, not being satisfied with the result of the go and remembering the clean-cut victory of his boy over Burns in a previous Long Acre fight, asked Rod McMahon to have it out all over again Monday night at the Olympic Athletic Club. McMahon has decided to make this his card for the next show. In the semi-windup Tommy Houck will box the Bronx fighter, George Lehman.

Two ten-round bouts will be the attraction at the entertainment of the Sharkey Athletic Club to-night. In the star feature Freddy Corbett, the rugged fighter from Philadelphia, will go against Dave Ryan. The semi-final will also be a ten-round affair, and will bring together Jimmy Dolan and Young Wildfang.

The second annual games and reception of the Harlem Evening High School will be held on Saturday evening, April 16, at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. The list of events follows: Seventy-yard dash, novice; 70-yard dash, handicap; four-mile run, scratch; 600-yard run, novice; 1,000-yard run, handicap; one-mile relay, handicap, open to Church Athletic League, Young Men's Christian Association, Sunday School Athletic League, and Intersettlement Athletic League; Public Schools Athletic League 880-yard relay race, unlimited weight handicap; 300-yard run, handicap; one-mile relay, (teams to consist of four men,) open to all preparatory, private, public, high schools, and evening high schools. Closed events to Harlem Evening High School students are a seventy-yard dash, handicap; 600-yard run, handicap; two-mile run, handicap, and 300-yard run, novice.

William Hammerstein announces the completion of arrangements for the first joint appearance of Abe Attell and Leach Cross on April 4 in a one-act vaudeville sketch, concluding with a three-round exhibition of boxing. This sketch is specially written around the private life of the two fighters. The scene takes place in Dr. Wallach's dentist parlor. Leach portrays the character of the dentist. Abe Attell, as the patient, comes to have his teeth treated. Several amusing situations are introduced, the scene, however, culminating in a quarrel, whereupon the two men agree to settle their dispute with a three-round bout, Joe Humphreys acting as referee.

Many entries have been received for the annual indoor athletic meet to be held jointly by the Central Young Men's Christian Association and Fourteenth Regiment Athletic Association at the latter's armory on Saturday evening, April 2. Solid gold watches will be given to the winners, a gold medal to the second man, and a silver medal to the third, in each event.

A new world's stock car record was made at the Ascot Park track, Los Angeles, on Sunday, when Al Livingston, driving a Corbin, captured the fifty-mile open event in 50:26. The Corbin also won the five and twenty-five mile open events for stock cars. The new fifty-mile record is attested by Fred Wagner, who officiated at the meet.

James Winkfield, the colored jockey of Kentucky, has signed to ride for an Austrian Count at $8,000 a year. Winkfield has been riding for a Russian nobleman for several years at $6,000 a year.

Paul Acoose, the Northwestern Canadian Indian, is to be a starter in the twenty-mile professional foot race at Madison Square Garden next Monday night. The entry list for the race now includes Meadows, Sellen, Cohn, Crowley, Acoose, Clarke, and Zanti.

The Berkeley School basket ball team defeated Cutler School at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory yesterday afternoon, 32 to 12.

Coach Rice is planning as early a start on the Hudson as possible this year, and he announced yesterday that he expects to boat his Columbia squad of oarsmen on next Monday afternoon. Cornell and Pennsylvania have already taken to the water, while the Harlem crews have been paddling on the Harlem for the past week.

Two games were played in the pool tournament at McGraw's Billiard Room yesterday. J. H. Weeks, 50, won the afternoon match from A. J. Jerome, 50, by the score of 50 to 38. In the evening KN Andrews, 50, easily defeated Harry Swift, 35, 50 to 31.

In last night's game of the Class A amateur pool tournament now in progress at John Doyle's academy, Broadway and Forty-second Street, George Brown defeated E. Raynolds by a score of 75 to 58. To-night at 8 o'clock C. Emerson will meet E. Seabury.

J. Cushing Todd of Newburyport, Mass., led the field in the weekly trap shoot at Pinehurst, N. C., yesterday, scoring 91. Oliver Hoyt of New York was second in 85, and J. S. Suthen, also of New York, was third in 81.

Walter J. Travis rounded out his visit to Pinehurst, N. C., yesterday by playing over the new golf course in 70 strokes, making a new amateur record for the course.

Wisconsin University will send instructors along with the crews to the Poughkeepsie regatta in June in order that they may not fall behind in their examinations.

DE WITT CLINTON WINS PETERS CUP

Two competitions were completed yesterday in the rifle shooting tournament of the Public Schools Athletic League, at the Sportsman's Show in Madison Square Garden. Thirteen teams competed in the Peters match, which was won by De Witt Clinton, first team, with a total score of 893, while the second place went to the Stuyvesant quintet, with a total of 875. The best individual work among the boys in this competition was that of Krehfeld, who returned a card, showing 190 out of a possible 200 points. His work at the target, especially prone, was excellent, as he totaled 97 in this position.

The basket ball tournament again attracted a big crowd. In the Junior contest the Bedford Y. M. C. A. overwhelmingly defeated the East Side by a score of 20 to 5, while in the Senior competition the Williamsbridge and Greenpoint branches engaged in a close competition, the final honors going to Williamsbridge by a score of 34 to 30. The summaries:

SPECULATORS' NEW FIELD.

Public Sale of Tickets for Annual N. Y. A. C. Games Causes a Rush.

Perhaps it is the mile and a half special race between George Bonhag, America's best, and John Talt, the Canadian crack, which is on the programme of the annual indoor games of the New York Athletic Club, to be held on March 15 in Madison Square Garden, that has caused the most unprecedented rush for tickets that has ever been known in the history of these games. But whatever it is, the public and their old friends, the speculators, are mighty keen for the pasteboards.

The public sale of tickets started at the clubhouse last night. Coincident with the receipt of hundreds of applications for seats came speculators in droves. One of them, more brazen than the rest, announced that he was "President of the Liberty Athletic Club"—an organization which exists solely in his imagination—and that he wanted "140 of the best seats" he could have. He got the gate post, assisted by a door tender.

Any number of these gentry used the time-worn gag about being an intimate friend of an intimate friend of one of the Governors, while others merely importuned and plead as if their very lives depended upon their being accommodated. Capt. Halpin had arranged that no more than four seats would be sold to any individual, hoping in this way to keep the tickets away from the speculators. Whereupon one vendor, a bit more enterprising than the rest, hired a dozen or so youths, every one of whom applied for four seats. He didn't get away with it, but it wasn't his fault.

Among the notable entries received by Director of Athletics Giannini for the games are three prominent schoolboys of whom it has been said that they could by themselves win almost any interscholastic meet in the country.

JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES.

Among the officers of the Japanese Government and among the Japanese people, we are informed by a press dispatch from Tokio, there is great surprise over Mr. JACOB H. SCHIFF's prediction of a great struggle in the Far East—for it was a great struggle, a commercial struggle, not a war, that Mr. SCHIFF predicted—in which it seemed to him probable that the United States, Japan, and other great Powers would be involved. Possibly surprise is not the only emotion awakened by Mr. SCHIFF's utterance. It may be that the Japanese Government is not a little disconcerted over our own surprise at what is going on in Manchuria, and particularly by our frankness in expressing it. That we are surprised at recent disclosures and developments of Russian and Japanese policy in Manchuria cannot be denied. We have a right to be surprised, because we had a right to expect different policies and a very different response to our suggestions put forward with a view of obtaining a renewal of pledges for the protection of trade and commerce in that province. Our rights and our justified expectations in respect to Manchuria rest primarily upon the principle of the Hay note, accepted by all the great Powers, the principle that the territorial integrity of China shall be respected, and that equal commercial opportunities shall be guaranteed. This is the principle of the open door. It is all we have asked, it is as little as we can accept.

With a view to a clear understanding of the relation of present to past events, let us sketch in the historical background of some of the diplomatic negotiations which have recently interested the public in Manchurian affairs. At the beginning of the war between Russia and Japan, Russia possessed and operated the extension of her great trans-Siberian line across Manchuria, Chinese territory, to Vladivostok; also, the southward extension of that line from Harbin to Dalny and Port Arthur. At the close of the war, by the terms of the Treaty of Portsmouth, signed in August, 1905, she retained her Vladivostok line, but surrendered to Japan the South Manchurian branch. It was provided in the treaty that, in addition to the right to operate these roads, Japan and Russia, after evacuation, should continue to exercise certain administrative functions along the lines of their respective railways. But in that treaty Russia and Japan mutually engaged "to exploit their respective railways in Manchuria exclusively for commercial and industrial purposes, and in no wise for strategic purposes." The Government of Russia expressly disclaimed the seeking of "any territorial advantages or preferential or exclusive concessions in impairment of Chinese sovereignty, or inconsistent with the principle of equal opportunity." Thus these two Powers before all the world accepted the principle of the Hay note, and before all the world contracted themselves out of the right to pursue secret or selfish designs for exclusive privileges in that territory. On Nov. 30, 1908, conferences which had for some time been going on between Secretary ROOT and Ambassador TAKAHIRA at Washington terminated in an exchange of notes embodying a frank avowal of respective aims and policies intended "to strengthen the relations of friendship and good neighborhood which have immemorially existed between Japan and the United States." In his note to Secretary ROOT the Japanese Ambassador declared that he had been authorized to present the following as an outline of the understanding of the two Powers in respect to Manchuria:

> The policy of both Governments, uninfluenced by any aggressive tendencies, is directed to the maintenance of the existing status quo in the region above-mentioned, and in defense of the principle of equal opportunity to commerce and industry in China.
> They are also determined to preserve the common interest of all powers in China by supporting by all pacific means at their disposal the independence and the inegrity of China and the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry of all nations in that empire.

We call attention, in passing, to the reference in this statement to "the existing status quo" in Manchuria. As a further affirmation of the principle of the Hay note, we may cite this passage from the preamble of the agreement or treaty of alliance between Great Britain and Japan, signed Aug. 12, 1905, the preamble containing the declaration of the purposes of the treaty, of which this was one:

> The preservation of the common interests of all Powers in China, by insuring the independence and integrity of the Chinese Empire and the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations in China.

If ever a Nation was justified in feeling that its commercial rights in regions where it had no political interest apart from commerce were securely guaranteed, the United States was, it seems to us, well warranted in assuming that, under these solemn pledges, it would have no occasion for concern about free access on equal terms to the markets of the Orient. Of late, it is not to be denied, we have felt some concern in respect to our rights of trade with Manchuria. The principle of the open door has been professed with an amiability of utterance that left nothing to be desired, while at the same time complaints are being received from our merchants, from our Consular representatives, and from various sources, of discriminatory treatment to our present disadvantage, and altogether inconsistent with the principle of equality. It was evident that Russia and Japan, as Mr. SCHIFF pointed out the other day with such regret, had reached an agreement based upon common aims in Manchuria to be attained by a joint policy. Of Russia it must be said that she has given us little if any cause for complaint about discriminations against our goods. Counting upon Manchuria less as a market than as a means of access to the Pacific, she has appeared to stand in no fear of us as a commercial rival. It might be difficult to prove discriminations on the part of Japan, but the evidence indicating such discriminations has been too substantial to be ignored. It was not without reason that we began to feel apprehension concerning the future of our Manchurian market.

Accordingly, soon after the incoming of the new Administration, Secretary KNOX proposed in a note to Japan, Russia, Great Britain, France, and Germany that those nations should join the United States in a plan for the neutralization of the Manchurian railways. The Powers named were to supply China with the money needed to purchase the lines, which would then have been operated by her under such supervision as would assure sound management and the hope of adequate returns. This was plainly a proposal in entire harmony with the Hay principle of territorial integrity of China, a proposal intended to establish that principle. Secretary KNOX's suggestion was rejected by Japan and by Russia. Japan replied that the plan would be of no advantage whatever to her or to China, and would not change the commercial situation in Manchuria, where she was pledged to maintain the open door and equal opportunity. Russia appeared to base her refusal upon the fear that the proposal would not meet the views of Japan. The Knox proposal, though rejected, at least served this illuminating purpose—it showed that the conception of Chinese territorial integrity and of the open door in Manchuria, entertained by Russia and Japan, was not the conception that we in our innocence had entertained of it during all these years when the principle has been so frequently reaffirmed.

Thereupon Mr. KNOX renewed the suggestion that a new railway be built from Chinchow, traversing Manchuria in a northeasterly direction to Aigun on the Amur River. The map upon this page shows the route of this proposed line. For the building of this railway British and American capital was pledged. Its construction was to be intrusted to a British firm of contractors, China granting the necessary concessions. If ever a railway project seemed justified for the development of commerce and for the benefit of the regions traversed by it, this one so seemed. It would be an important feeder to Russia's great railway, which it would cross at Tsitsihar, one of the principal stations on that line. It would furnish connection with the most important Russian settlement in the Amur territory. It traverses a country abounding in coal and other mineral deposits. It runs through great fertile plains which give promise of becoming an important source of wheat supply in the future. Manchuria is Chinese territory. If the Chinese Government desired to build a railroad through that territory, and if the capital were ready, it was certainly strange that any obstacle should present itself. The obstacle did present itself, and promptly. Russia rejected the proposal of our Secretary of State, alleging a promise given by China in 1898, that she would construct no railways north of Peking without consulting first the Russian Government. There was some expectation that Japan might give a more favorable reply, but there crops up a secret agreement between her and China in which China agrees that prior to her recovery in 1938 of the South Manchurian line, she will not construct any railway "in the neighborhood of or parallel to that railway or any branch line, which might be detrimental to the interest of the South Manchurian Railway."

It appears, therefore, that Chinese authority and control over Manchuria are unreal and without substance. She can exercise her will and carry out her policies in that part of her domains only with the consent of Japan and Russia. If one of those Powers dissents, the other takes the same attitude. Is it surprising that this should seem to us a denial of the principle of the Hay note, and a violation of the pledged faith of all the treaties and agreements and understandings made in the last twelve years for the preservation of Chinese territorial integrity and of equality of commercial rights? In reply to our proposals, made not only in our own interest but in the interest of all commercial nations, Japan and Russia frankly lay their cards upon the table. We now perceive that they are not the cards of the game we have been innocently playing—they belong to some other game.

These are the reasons why the situation in the Orient gives us no little concern. We have a right to be concerned. In the order of rank of nations exporting goods to China we stand third; we are China's best customer. It is not to be expected that we should view with unconcern the forming and execution of policies by other nations that threaten to diminish the volume of our commerce in this important quarter of the world, or ultimately to exclude us altogether from those markets. We are taking thought about our foreign trade. The time is coming when foodstuffs will no longer constitute an important part of our exports. With the growth of our population we shall in a larger and larger degree consume ourselves the products of our soil. If our hitherto large excess of exports over imports is to be maintained, the excess must be made up of manufactured commodities. To Manchuria alone we used to send $10,000,000 worth of cotton goods every year. It would be a very slothful and negligent statesmanship, indeed, that would fail to take notice of so serious a menace to our interests as that involved in the existing situation in Manchuria, and it would not be consonant with the spirit of the American Nation if we did not by all reasonable means seek to protect the privileges to which we are entitled. We trust our Japanese friends will understand that our motives and our policy have this substantial and entirely legitimate basis.

If Japan is surprised at expressions of American opinion we submit that we have an equal, perhaps a greater, right to feel some surprise at the course she has of late pursued. We know that it would be contrary to usage in a discussion of diplomatic affairs to speak of gratitude, with all that that connotes. But we must take the liberty of reminding Japan that the policy she seems to be pursuing in Manchuria, a policy that we fear will have results disadvantageous to us, disappoints our legitimate expectations. When hostilities broke out between her and Russia she had need to borrow money in large sums. European lenders were most reluctant to respond to her demands. They were doubtful of the wisdom of loaning money to an Eastern Power to make war upon a European Power. Then, at that critical juncture, it transpired that a market for Japanese bonds could be found in the United States. At once the temper of the European bankers underwent a change. If money could be had in the United States, there was no reason why it should not also be supplied in European money markets. From that time the successive Japanese loans prospered. The subscriptions to her bonds in this country aggregated, we suppose, $200,000,000. There is a very great probability that, without the aid of the United States, her financial plans for the war would have failed, and the war would have failed with them.

Then came the end of the war. How did it come? President ROOSEVELT, not unsolicited, but not solicited by Russia, proffered his good offices, and the Peace Conference at Portsmouth was the result. A treaty was signed. It is the world's opinion that it was an opportune treaty, opportune for Japan. During the progress of the negotiations THE TIMES had somewhat fully analyzed her financial situation. It was evident that, financially, she was upon the verge of exhaustion. It was then believed, and has ever since been believed, that had the war continued six months or a year longer she would have been the defeated belligerent. She would have had to give up. It was the knowledge of these facts as to her condition that caused WITTE at Portsmouth to assume toward Japanese demands that attitude which we usually associate with the conqueror. He was inflexible against granting any indemnity, and Japan got none. Is it not quite reasonable that the people of this country, whose money furnished the means for the prosecution of Japan's war, and whose Chief Executive interceded at a fortunate moment, fortunate for her, to bring the war to an end, should now be not a little surprised and disappointed by the exhibition of policies in Manchuria that are manifestly prejudicial to their commercial interests, not to speak of the open conflict between them and the multitudinous treaty pledges to which we have referred?

We do not profess to be a very sensitive Nation, but we are not unobservant. We felt, as a Nation, deep concern over the affront to Japanese sentiment by the school troubles in San Francisco. Our Government exerted itself to remove the unpleasant feeling due to that incident. But when we discovered that Japan herself had a law of exclusion of the same import as our own exclusion laws, and that she exercised her rights under them, we began to feel that we had, perhaps, unduly magnified the importance of the San Francisco incident. If Japan under her law of 1899 may withhold freedom of residence from foreign laborers or exclude Chinese from her territory, we feel that it might not have been unfair to set up Japanese practice as a palliation of failings alleged against us. Some have gone so far as to intimate that the Administration at Washington was imposed upon, and that the excitement over the San Francisco trouble served for Japan a good purpose in diverting attention from what was going on between her and Russia in Manchuria. Moreover, that curious phrase in the declaration of common policy agreed to by Secretary ROOT and the Japanese Ambassador about "the maintenance of the existing status quo" in Manchuria, turns up again in the Convention between Japan and Russia, signed July 30, 1907, in which, while agreeing to recognize the independence and territorial integrity of the Empire of China, these two Powers "engage to sustain and defend the maintenance of the status quo and respect for this principle, by all pacific means within their reach." Is this, then, the thing that baffles us? The status quo of 1907 and 1908 was, manifestly, the condition now existing, a condition that has existed since the Treaty of Portsmouth, of Russia continuing to operate her railroad and to exercise her contingent administrative rights, and of Japan maintaining her control over the South Manchurian line, and of both Powers visibly in control of the development and destiny of Manchuria to the exclusion of Chinese authority, and to the peril, not only of that empire, but of commercial nations seeking markets in any part of her territory. It is a singular coincidence that the phrase about the maintenance of the status quo should have been borrowed from Japan's agreement with Russia, to find place in the Japanese Ambassador's note to Mr. ROOT. That our Secretary of State should have permitted the phrase to be inserted in that declaration is an evidence of the childlike confidence with which we pursue the business of diplomacy.

That the questions raised . the status quo in Manchuria are grave ones cannot be denied. They do not imply war, or anything like war. Those who prophesy war between Japan and the United States should somewhat seriously ask themselves in what manner Japan would make her financial preparations for that not inconsiderable conflict. But we trust that Japan and Russia, and our English friends as well, have been put on notice by Mr. KNOX's proposals, that we are not unmindful either of what is going on in Manchuria, or of the bearing of those proceedings upon our commercial interest.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Working Well, but Can Be Bettered.

It is, of course, too early for the formation of any real opinion as to how well or ill the attempt to combine the telephone and telegraph in the transmission at reduced prices of night dispatches long enough to be called letters is going to work. That question will not be settled from the standpoint of either the public or the companies for several weeks or months, by which time both the advantages and the needs of the new service will have been learned from experience. The very first night's operation of the system revealed, however, that the telephone part of the combination first requires attention and special facilities in the receiving offices which have not yet been provided for it.

A conversation over the telephone, consisting of an interchange of short sentences, is one thing, and a very different one from the transmission of a continuous message of considerable length. In the case of the latter the possibilities of error and misunderstanding are cumulative, as it were, and the receiving of the message can be satisfactorily done only when the conditions are as nearly perfect as they can be made. Among those conditions, and perhaps the most important of them, is that the employé taking the message by telephone for transmission by wire may do his work—or hers—in a place fairly free from disturbing and confusing noises.

Those who tried to send in messages Monday and last night discovered that such places have not yet been provided, for the operatives repeatedly explained their inability to catch what was said to them by saying that the rooms in which they were at work were not quiet. As usual, dialogue came and went well enough. It was only when the transmission of the message itself began that difficulty arose, and, as always, the greatest trouble was with proper names—to which even the best-regulated telephones seem to have an invincible objection. The matter of noise can be easily settled, fortunately, by the installation of soundproof booths for the operators doing this work—and it is to be hoped that adequate provision for ventilating these booths will be made. Most of those now in use are torture chambers for occupancy of more than a few minutes, and were it at all prolonged they would be most injurious to health.

Even Mr. Macon Has Seen a New Light.

According to latest reports from Washington, it will not be necessary, as recently seemed probable, to get Congress to pass a concurrent resolution forgiving "Civil Engineer PEARY," as they call him now, for having reached the north pole. Until within a day or two he seemed to be on trial, in absentia, with certain members of the House Naval Affairs Committee as judges and prosecutors combined, for that offense or for making a lot of people change their minds about Dr. COOK, and with the remarkable MACON fiercely threatening to "expose the whole business," it really looked pretty black for him.

Now, however, the clouds seem to be lifting. The gentleman from Arkansas is a good deal calmer than he was—as a result, possibly, of a belated wondering what he had to expose—and it seems that not quite everybody in Washington has a jealous hatred of the man who does a big thing a little out of the regular course of duty. Representative HOBSON, for instance, who was a hero once himself, and therefore knows another hero when he sees him, has gone before the sub-committee and told it that, as indubitably as he himself got into Santiago Harbor, PEARY gained the world's end. Representative ALEXANDER of this State, too, kindly revealed to the sub-committee that there are certain good reasons why PEARY doesn't want to have his records made public just now, though he is perfectly willing that they should be examined by any authorized and competent investigator who will promise not to disclose for the present anything except his conclusions from them.

The records are soon to be at the command of all the world, regardless of what Congress may do, and it is hard indeed to see why that body should be any more impatient than the scientists and arctic experts of every country, all of whom are content to accept the verdict of the National Geographic Society as to what the documents prove. Nobody with a right to an opinion doubts that PEARY reached the pole. His word settled it, for one thing, but he has abundance of other evidence, unquestionable in quality, to throw in for good measure, and he has presented it as fully as was necessary—as fully as he could without making it commercially worthless. That he has to consider its money value and to keep his contracts with his publishers can hardly be considered discreditable to him. As for the attempt to prevent the Government from honoring him as he deserves, the least said about that the better, especially as it is bound to be a failure.

Reprisals Are to be Dreaded.

Chicago's Aldermen are going ahead recklessly with their campaign against big hatpins, and, regardless of protests from the adjacent fair, have ordered the drafting of an ordinance limiting the sphere of action for these, as they say, lethal weapons. The passage of the ordinance will come next, and then—well, we shall see what we shall see.

Perhaps the women of Chicago will submit to having their hatpins, or the protrusion of them on the off—or is it the nigh?—side measured by such officials as the Aldermen choose to appoint for the performance of that duty. Then, again, perhaps they will do the measuring themselves, reviving the rather discredited practice of acupuncture, with the said officials as subjects for experiment.

The suggestion that the ladies, if they must have daggers for protection in Chicago, should wear them at their belts in sheaths is not an obviously unreasonable one, but that would probably be its condemnation in the eyes of the sex. Reasonable fashions are seemingly not to their taste in these latter days. Another way to make the hatpin harmless would be to put a cork on the extruded point. That would add one more vegetable—the only one still missing—to the decoration of hats. A button, such as fencers use on their foils, would apparently be impracticable.

EDISON CONTROLS PICTURES.

Court Decision Gives Him an Injunction Against Remaining Independents.

In a decision handed down yesterday by the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York in an injunction suit against three makers of moving picture films for show purposes, the rights of the Edison Company to the exclusive exploitation of the "canned-drama" field are again affirmed.

The decision grants temporary injunctions against the only two New York companies still making films for general use which had failed to obtain the Edison Company's approval before advertising their wares. It brings to an end a warfare over patent rights that has extended through eleven years, and leaves the Motion Pictures Patents Company in supreme control. This is a holding company organized by the Edison and Biograph Companies to prosecute patent infringements and to buy up outstanding patents held by the moving picture operators. The company is now only a year old, but it has prosecuted several such suits as that in which the decision was returned yesterday, each one being aimed at driving a competitor out of the field.

The defendants in the suit were Carl Laemmle, the Independent Moving Picture Company of America, and the Pantograph Company. Their defense was that not Edison, but a man named Greene, was the real inventor of the apparatus in moving picture machines by which they are enabled to take a continuous photograph of actors and other subjects in action at top speed.

Justice Noyes, who filed the memorandum of the decision, held that the arguments as to Greene had been exhausted in a previous suit, and that the Circuit Court of Appeals had decided that the Edison patents were valid. For that reason he said he was disposed to grant a preliminary injunction against the two defendant corporations.

The rich field of supplying "thrillers and weepers" to the 5 and 10 cent show houses of the country is one that has grown its present crop of complications through the phenomenal spread of the business in 1908. At the close of that year there were some 10,000 moving-picture threatres calling for new films weekly, and that number has now increased to 13,000.

Statistics just gathered place the daily attendance at all of the theatres in the country at 4,000,000 persons, who pay an average of 7 cents each for their seats."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article, "What Does Mr. Merritt Want?" in THE TIMES of March 1, you did not call attention to the fact that he has, at least, once before advocated a constitutional amendment breaking down the "blue line." I refer to an alleged Water Storage bill in the Legislature of 1907. At a meeting called by the Albany Chamber of Commerce, March 15, 1907, for a discussion of the bill, its advocates were headed by Chester W. Lyman of the International Paper Company, assisted by Senator L. W. Emerson of Warrensburg and others. Mr. Merritt was their first and chief speaker in favor of the bill. Its opponents were under the leadership of John G. Agar, President of the Association for the Preservation of the Adirondacks, in person.

Why do you say: "It might be well to permit the leasing of camp sites"? Will it still be wild forest land after the leasing? Will it make any difference to the tent dweller whether the site be sold or leased if it be closed to him? Must he give up his rights in the State Park?

ANOTHER TENT DWELLER.

Troy, N. Y., March 1, 1910.

A Mayor of All the People.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The citizens of good purpose who stoutly opposed Mayor Gaynor's election cannot but feel chagrined that they have put themselves in the position of having fought against the most aggressive reform Mayor New York ever had, and they must confess in humility that Judge Gaynor, when he said that he would be the Mayor of all the people, and could not consistently repudiate the support of the Democratic or any other party, deserved a credence which they denied him.

They can "bring forth fruits meet to repentance" not only by holding up his hands publicly and steadily, but by letting other cities know that a man whose life work vouches for his integrity and ability should not be repudiated by non-partisans because he declines to give any section a monopoly in nominating him.

Mailbox Suggestion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that so many new mail boxes are to be made to be placed at the doors of houses, allow me to suggest that the boxes be made double, either side by side, or one above the other, one to deliver the mail and the other to collect the mail, either at the same time and by the same postman, or by the postman who collects it from the street lamp posts.

I, for one, find it very inconvenient to mail a letter when it is stormy, or when too tired to go out on purpose to mail it. If I give it to some one that may be going out, my experience is that that person forgets to mail it.

A READER OF THE TIMES.

Side-Door Cars.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to the farcical excuse of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, that it is physically unable to supply more "side-door" cars in the Subway, it occurs to me that if the cars already equipped were made up in trains of this type alone, instead of the naive and equivocal manner in which they are now distributed with their signs "Not working," the public, as well as the company, might have an opportunity to decide which is the more expedient.

If the Public Service Commission is unable to enforce its mandates, what justifies the expense of such a costly institution?

H. W. K.

New York, March 8, 1910.

Intolerant of the Heathen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why should a Christian country tolerate and even protect a heathen country? I do not believe that any amount of missionary work will ever christianize those people as long as they are allowed to govern themselves. Why not divide up all heathen lands and give them to those of a Christian religion, and thus force them to become Christians? Our present system is much too slow, and this duty has been plainly laid before us.

A LENTEN IDEA.

GAYNORIZE.

If, though wont to gourmandise,
You've not time to Fletcherize,
And your stomach should arise,
And protest you are not wise,
Follow in the Mayor's footsteps—
Gaynorize.

If your wife goes out and buys
'Till your bills 'most reach the skies;
If the cook just up and dies,
And you're minus bread and pies,
Shake regret and get out doors—
Gaynorize.

If your partner basely lies,
And your hard-won money flies
From beneath your very eyes,
What's the use to criticise?
Go right out and walk it off—
Gaynorize.

If you're wise, then, you will prize
Glowing health and sparkling eyes,
And they're yours if you'll rise,
And beneath the morning skies—
Gaynorize.

L. CASE RUSSELL.

NEW CITY BONDS SHOULD SELL AT 102

Taken at 4¼ Rate on 20-Year Basis and in Comparison with Price of 4½s.

TO ACCEPT FOREIGN CASH

J. P. Morgan & Co. Likely to be Among the Bidders—Interest Yield on Previous Bond Sales.

The decision of the city authorities to fix 4¼ per cent. as the rate on the forthcoming $50,000,000 issue of city bonds was looked upon in the financial district yesterday as assuring the success of the new issue. That the latest issues of New York City 4 per cent. bonds are selling under par precluded the successful flotation of a new issue at the same rate, but the additional ¼ will more than protect the issue against unfavorable comparison with the income on outstanding issues. The last time that the city had to go above a 4 per cent. rate was in September, 1907, when after unsuccessful efforts to place 4 per cent. bonds the city advanced the rate to 4½ per cent.

The belief was expressed yesterday that the city will be assured of bids much in excess of the $50,000,000 which will be offered for sale. Leading banking interests, it is expected, will participate in the bidding, the belief prevailing that J. P. Morgan & Co. is likely in its own name to be among them.

The 4½ per cent. bonds now outstanding are selling at a little above 108, and at this price yield in the neighborhood of 4.10 per cent. If the new issue of bonds were to sell on a similar basis they would bring about 103¼ if accepted as fifty-year bonds, but the fact that the bonds will contain a clause permitting the city to redeem them in twenty years will probably result in the bids being put in on a twenty-year basis, in which case they would sell at about 102 to yield the same return as that shown on the outstanding 4½ per cent. bonds at present prices.

Two issues were put out by the city at the 4½ per cent. rate. The first for $40,000,000 in September, 1907, brought an average price of 102.063, at which figure they yielded 4.39 per cent., and the next issue of $50,000,000 in February, 1908, brought an average price of 104, the yield on these bonds being 4.30 per cent. At the following sale the rate was again reduced to 4 per cent., and $12,500,000 were sold in November, 1908, at an average price of 102.385, the yield being 3.89 per cent.

In March, 1909, the city sold $10,000,000 4s at 101.57, yielding 3.93, and in June, 1909, $40,000,000 4s at an average price of 100.71, the yield on this issue being 3.96. The sale in December last was $12,500,000 4s at an average price of 100.34, the yield being 3.98 per cent.

Prior to the first sale of 4½ per cent. bonds in September, 1907, offers of 4 per cent. bonds had been made in June and again in August, with only partial success, such of the bonds as were sold being placed very near to par.

Date.	Amount.	Rate.	Average Price.	Yield, P. C.
December, '09.....	$12,500,000	4	100.34	3.98

On the curb yesterday sales of the new 4¼ per cent. bonds "when issued" were made at 101½. This is slightly below the figure at which the bonds would yield 4.10 per cent. on the assumption that the bonds will be paid off in twenty years instead of being allowed to run the full fifty years.

Controller Prendergast announced yesterday that the sale would be held on Monday, March 21. The advertisement for bids will be made in a few days. The Controller also confirmed the rumor from Wall Street that both the principal and interest of the successful bids would be accepted in francs and pound sterling at the prevailing rate of exchange. This is done as an inducement to foreign investors and banking houses with large connections in London and on the Continent. It is a new departure.

SACRIFICE PARK TO COURTS.

Plans of New City Hall Structure Will Use 56,216 More Square Feet.

The Court House Commission appointed by Mayor Gaynor, of which Morgan J. O'Brien is Chairman, and which finally settled upon the present site in City Hall Park for the proposed new County Court House, submitted a report to the Mayor yesterday explaining just how much additional ground it is proposed to take from the park for building purposes.

The bill authorizing the utilization of more park property than is covered by the present Court House which the commission presented to the Legislature, has been passed and signed by both Governor and the Mayor.

The present Court House is 183 by 248 feet in ground area. The commission recommends that the new building covers an area of 480 feet by 215 feet. To do this the present line on Chambers Street and the space between City Hall and the Court House will be preserved, the additional area being in wings, one extending toward Broadway and taking up most of the northwest corner of the park, and the other toward Centre Street and including the ground on which stands the old brownstone building which houses the City Court and the space around it.

The exact boundaries as outlined on a map submitted to the Mayor state that the walls of the new structure will run 40 feet from the southerly curb of Chambers Street, the present line; 70 feet from the easterly curb of Broadway, on the northwest corner; 78 feet on the southwest corner, 115 feet from the westerly curb of Centre Street, on the northeast corner, and 93 feet on the southeast corner. The centre projecting wing of the present Court House is 102 feet from the back of City Hall. This space will be preserved, but the wings of the new building will run beyond this to the south on each end.

The commission employed Prof. A. G. F. Hamlin of Columbia University as an expert to assist them in determining just how much space would be necessary for the kind of building which it is proposed to erect.

In his report to the commission, which was also sent to the Mayor, he recommends that the new structure be not more than six stories in height. He suggests that it be built with a fifteen-foot basement, four stories of 27 feet, and a top story of 15 feet. This would give a building 138 feet high. The present Court House is 85 feet high. The City Hall is 80 feet in height.

The plans for the Court House, which already have been discussed, call for the erection of the wings first, so that the courts will not be disturbed any more than possible. When the wings are completed the majority of the courts will be moved into them, and then the present building will be demolished and the centre structure erected.

The Mayor has expressed a hope that the work may be begun this Summer. He is heartily in accord with the placing of the new building in the park, although he has not approved yet the detailed report of the commission.

$200,000 PEARL COMES TO NEW YORK

BOUGHT BY A NEW YORKER

Jewel Is Pendant Shaped and Will Probably Carry a Duty of Some $15,000.

While the jewelry firm which imported it is withholding information as to the identity of the woman whom the gem finally is to adorn, it became known yesterday that the Custom House had in its possession the largest and heaviest pearl that has come into this country in years. In fact the oldest employes of the Appraiser's Warehouse, where the value of the gem is now being determined for assessment of duties, do not remember when they ever beheld such another pearl for size and shape and probable value.

It is a pear-shaped gem, cut as if to be worn as a pendant, and it will probably cost the purchaser for whom it was ordered in the neighborhood of $200,000. The Appraisers have decided that it probably cost about $150,000 in Europe, and as the rate of duty on pearls "in their natural state" is 10 per cent. the Government will take about $15,000 as duty, making its total cost to the importers $165,000.

The pearl when it arrived yesterday was turned over to Michael Nathan, Deputy Appraiser in charge of the Second Division of the Appraiser's office. He refused to say what the exact weight of the pearl was or what his final conclusion was as to the amount of duty to be assessed.

Appraiser George W. Wanmaker was equally reticent in speaking about the valuable gem, although it was learned that the importation was made by Dreicer & Co. of 560 Fifth Avenue, and that it was made on the special order of a customer.

At the Dreicer establishment it was announced that the firm did not feel at liberty to discuss the big pearl at present, as it had not yet received it from the Custom House. After the gem had been received and the firm had had a chance to look it over it was said that a statement would probably be given out telling its exact size and weight and the name of its future owner.

It is thought that the Custom House will be through with its inspection and appraisement to-morrow and that the importer will receive it on Thursday. The customer for whom the pearl was purchased is said to be a resident of this city.

COOPER UNION GUARDIAN DEAD

James Maginn, Custodian for 45 Years, Was Companion of Cooper.

Cooper Union's guardian for forty-five years, James Maginn, died in his apartments there yesterday of pneumonia. He was sixty-five years old. He was acquainted with many men prominent in politics who had appeared as speakers in Cooper Union during its half century of existence and enjoyed the friendship of some of them. He met President Lincoln when he made his emancipation speech there and often recalled some of his conversations with the martyred President. Others of his personal friends were Marshall O. Roberts, Alexander Stewart, Moses Taylor, Dean Stanley, Cyrus W. Field, Ferdinand de Lesseps, Prof. John Tyndall, George W. Childs, Anthony Drexel, and many others.

Next to Lincoln, Maginn thought Peter Cooper one of the greatest benefactors of mankind. He was Peter Cooper's daily companion in his walks or drives around the city up to the time of his death.

During the visit of King Edward of England to America as the Prince of Wales, Maginn escorted the Prince through the building and explained its chief features. He did the same for the last Emperor and Empress of Brazil, Gov. Leland Stanford and Mrs. Stanford of California, and he could recall hundreds of well-known people whom he met during his early connection with the institution.

During all the riotous and turbulent crowds that gathered around Cooper Union and its meetings in the years Maginn was in charge of the place as Superintendent he never had any great difficulty in controlling the disorderly element.

He was a member of Tabernacle Lodge, 598, F. and A. M. He leaves a wife.

MANHATTAN OPERA BILLS.

Next Week to Commence with a Performance of "Salome."

Next week, the last but one at the Manhattan Opera House, will commence with a performance of "Salome" on Monday evening. The cast will include Miss Garden and Messrs. Dalmorès and Dufranne. "Pelléas et Mélisande" will be sung on Wednesday evening.

Friday evening "The Daughter of the Regiment," with Mme. Tetrazzini and Messrs. McCormack and Gilibert, and "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Mme. Carmen-Melis and Messrs. Lucas and Crabbé, will be the double bill. "Les Contes d'Hoffmann" is announced for the Saturday matinée. Saturday night "La Navarraise," with Mme. Gerville-Reache and Messrs. Dufranne and Devries, and "Pagliacci," with Messrs. Harrold and Sammarco and Miss Trentini, will be sung.

Busoni, the Italian pianist, will be the feature of the Sunday-night concert. Four choral numbers will be sung by the Opera House chorus. Miss Inez Jolivet, violinist, will also appear.

Fifty Midgets See Mary Mannering.

The fifty Lilliputians that are to appear at the Hippodrome next week attended the performance of Mary Mannering in "A Man's World" at the Comedy Theatre last night, occupying the boxes. The ponies they are to use in their circus performance arrived in New York on the Minnetonka yesterday morning. These ponies are used to draw the circus equipages and for the equestrian acts performed by the midgets.

Loie Fuller Seeks Injunction.

A hearing on an application for an injunction brought by Loie Fuller against Gertrude Van Axen, Irene Sanden, and "Orchides," asking that the latter be restrained from giving the "Danse des Nymphes" at the Plaza Music Hall, will be heard this morning in the Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I. The three defendants are appearing under the direction of William Morris, Incorporated, in a dance which Miss Fuller says she has copyrighted. The hearing was originally set for yesterday, but was postponed.

Mrs. Fiske Rehearsing "Hannele."

The English version of Hauptmann's "Hannele" that Mrs. Fiske will use during her season at the Lyceum Theatre has been made by Miss Mary S. Safford of Washington, D. C. The metrical portions of the translation have been made by Percy Mackaye, and the entire finished work is now in rehearsal.

MUSIC NOTES.

It was announced last night that Charles Gilbert, the French baritone of the Manhattan Opera House, will make a concert tour under the management of the Wolfsohn Bureau during April, and a second tour in the Fall, during October.

Mme. Mazarin of the Manhattan Opera House has signed a contract with J. E. Francke, a concert manager, to book her in a concert tour after the current opera season.

Raymond Roze, a young English composer, and son of Marie Rozie, who was once a famous Carmen, is in New York with the score of an opera, "Jeanne d'Arc," which he hopes to dispose of to one of the two opera houses. Mr. Roze has written the music for many of Beerbohm Tree's productions.

"La Boheme" was sung at The New Theatre last night.

Accident Leads to Park Road Widening

As a result of the taxicab being crushed to a heap of junk between two cars on the Eighty-sixth Street Transverse Road going through Central Park recently, Commissioner Stover of the Park Department yesterday morning asked Chief Engineer Edward Miller to submit to him the cost of widening the road four feet, lopping two feet from each of the sidewalks. Many accidents have happened on this road.

Mrs. Charles James Coulter of Tuxedo Park will be the bride's only attendant, and the best man will be Philip H. Adee. There will be no ushers. The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant will officiate.

SCHAEFER, THE WIZARD, DEAD.

Billiardist, Who Won Two World's Championships, Was 55 Years Old.

DENVER, Col., March 8.—Jacob Schaefer, the noted billiard player, died here this afternoon of tuberculosis. At Schaefer's bedside were his wife, daughter, and son, and his brother Charles of Chicago. The body will be taken to Chicago for burial.

Jacob Schaefer was born of German parentage on Feb. 2, 1855, at Milwaukee, Wis., and when only a youngster attracted attention when playing in his father's billiard room. He quickly jumped into the limelight of the billiard world. He earned for himself when quite young the title of "The Wizard," and it clung to him through the remainder of his career. The last time that Schaefer was in this city was about two years ago, and he was then in poor health. From here he went to Denver, and had remained there almost continuously since.

His first big match was with George Slosson, the two playing a straight rail match in Washington Hall, Indianapolis, in 1873, which Slosson won. Since that time Schaefer and Slosson have figured together in fifty-seven matches. Schaefer stands the leader by one match. Schaefer executed the most difficult shots on the table without hesitation. His massés were at times marvels of conception and skill, and his command of the ivories wonderful. His touch was probably more delicate than that of any player past or present, and it was the close game that he preferred. On open table shots he was not so sound.

In 1879 he won the championship of the world at the straight rail game. At this style of play he held many of the records for runs and averages. The first public contest at the balk-line game was in 1883, and this Schaefer won, and in the second world's championship at 18.1 balk line he was again a victor, this taking place at Madison Square Garden in 1901. In 1906 Schaefer was third in the world's championship at 18.2 balk line in this city, and took the same place in a professional tournament in Chicago. At the balk-line game Schaefer also held many of the records, both in championship and non-championship matches.

MAURETANIA STEWARD DEAD.

William T. Bryden Found Lifeless In His Cabin Near Fishguard.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LIVERPOOL, March 8.—The Mauretania's chief steward, William T. Bryden, died during the voyage. He had suffered from influenza.

News of William T. Bryden's sudden death was received here yesterday from Liverpool, in a cable sent to Gen. Thomas L. James, former Postmaster General. Mr. Bryden, who was chief steward of the Cunard liner Mauretania, was found dead in his cabin on Monday afternoon as the liner was nearing Fishguard. He had been in the Cunard Company's service for forty years, and was well known to numbers of New York business men in their frequent trips across the Atlantic. He was 60 years old.

MISS IRMA GRATZ TO WED A BARON

MET OFTEN IN MUNICH

Baron Has Been Here for Three Years Since the Gratz Family Came Back from Europe.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Irma R. Gratz, the daughter of W. R. Gratz, to Baron Oscar Lazarini-Jablanitz, a young officer in the Austrian Army, was made yesterday by the bride's parents at their home, 937 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn. The wedding will take place in the Fall in Brooklyn.

The engagement is said to be the culmination of a romance began in Marienbad. Miss Gratz was 11 years old then and was traveling abroad with her parents. It was in that city that she saw the young officer in his glittering uniform at the head of a troop of Austrian dragoons. He was then 22 years old.

Miss Gratz has been in Europe with her mother on frequent trips since then. She and the Baron met often in Munich, where she went to study music. He is said to be an accomplished linguist as well as a painter.

In the last few years of their acquaintance the Baron became an ardent wooer. He wanted to marry Miss Gratz long before the announcement of their engagement yesterday, but her parents thought she was too young. That was the only obstacle, but time has done away with it and the suitor has won.

Miss Gratz returned with her mother from Europe last October after staying abroad three years. The Baron accompanied the family, and he has remained here since then, making his home at the Plaza Hotel. When the family start on their annual tour in Europe next month he will go with them. They will return to Brooklyn in the Fall to make preparations for the wedding.

Miss Gratz is 19 years old. Her father is the President of the W. R. Gratz Importing Company of 35 West Thirty-fifth Street, Manhattan. Baron Lazarini-Jablanitz is now 30 years old. He is a Lieutenant in the Sachsen Dragoons of Austria.

RONALD M. GRANT DEAD.

Organist and Choirmaster Served Eleven Years in the Oranges.

Ronald M. Grant, organist and choirmaster of Trinity Church, Boston, died there yesterday morning after an illness of nine days. His death was caused by pneumonia, and ended his brief career as organist of the Phillips Brooks Church.

Mr. Grant, for eleven years, was the most prominent figure in the musical circles of the Oranges, N. J. He was the organist and choirmaster of Grace Church as well as choirmaster of St. Mark's Church, West Orange.

Mr. Grant was born in 1871. He began the study of music and composition at the age of 14 years with Paul Ambrose, organist of St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church, New York. Later he took a four-years' course in composition with Samuel P. Warren, organist of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church, East Orange. After completing his course with Mr. Warren, Mr. Grant went to Paris and studied with Alexander Guilmant, the world-famed organist and composer. After completing his work in Paris, Mr. Grant went to London, and for nearly two years studied in the old English Cathedral choirs.

Returning to this country he took up the study of voice culture under George Edward Stubbs, organist of St. Agnes's Chapel, New York.

Mr. Grant was unmarried. He is survived by his parents, who live at Bennington, Vt., a brother and a sister.

TENNEY PRAISES SPENCER'S PLAYING

By FRED TENNEY,
First Baseman of the Giants.
Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 8.—To-day was another "bully" day, and all the boys were out promptly on time for the morning's work.

All the pitchers had a hard work-out, and after getting thoroughly warmed up they were sent against the batters with instructions to use many curved balls. Nearly all the morning was devoted to this practice. No game was played, and the morning practice ended with instruction in the fall-away slide, and with a hard run around the park.

In the afternoon after about an hour of batting and fielding practice, McGraw's team lined up against the regulars. The manager for the first time put Spencer on first base. This was really his first trial at the position. He made a strong impression, not only in his fielding, but he hit the ball very hard, getting a home run and three singles.

Scott and Raymond pitched for the regulars, and Klawitter and Buck for McGraw's team. The McGrawites won easily by a score of 6 to 1, the one run of the regulars being due to a homer by Doyle.

The Indian Williams is bothered by a "charley horse" in his legs. Shaw's lameness is disappearing quite rapidly. Seymour has a bad foot, and has not been able to participate in the practice for the past two days. He probably will be all right by the end of the week. Little Devore departed for Waco this morning for the operation on his ear. He carried the best wishes of all the boys, as the little fellow is very popular with his comrades.

A game has been arranged for the youngsters for next Friday at College Station. The boys are finding their stay at Marlin much more pleasant than last year, as they have become acquainted with so many of the residents and social attentions are quite numerous.

Young Lush is walking around with a cane. The swelling has nearly left his foot, and he hopes to be able to work the last of the week. FRED TENNEY.

Our preparations for Spring Derby business are a pointer on our policy.

Nor even to one make—as do most outfitters.

The three best makes are none too many for us.

Special hats which only we can show in New York, beside all the best styles designed for the trade at large.

There are two great hat manufacturers in this country with years of the highest reputation behind them.

Crofut & Knapp and the John B. Stetson Company.

We have from each of them Derbies not to be had elsewhere in New York.

The Knapp-Felt Preferred is a $5 Derby—a hat of the highest class which C. & K. make exclusively for us.

Then there's the $4 Derby made of Knapp-Felt, a product of which any firm might be proud.

Our $3 Derby with which years ago we established our name as hatters, is still the best thing we know of of its class.

The Stetson Special is another $5 Derby of which we have the exclusive sale in New York—the hat on which the Stetson factory plumes itself.

But this too is only one of our hats of the famous Stetson make, for we have full variety of the Stetson Derby at $3.50, noted for its lightness and flexibility.

Nor do we stop with the best hats America makes.

"Victor Jay" Derbies—hats that to every Londoner represent the best in English hatting. Here again we have the sole agency.

Not to speak of soft hats in felt and cloth; or the caps and straw hats we are already showing.

CATCHER CRIGER MISSING.

Joe Doyle Says Veteran Has Not Reported at Hot Springs as Ordered.

Special to The New York Times.

ATHENS, Ga., March 8.—Catcher Lou Criger has tossed a bomb into Manager Stallings's Spring training plans. The leader of the Yankees planned to have Criger fit to go behind the bat and work with his young pitchers in real practice games before another week or ten days. He figured that the twirlers would gain more practical knowledge in a short time from such a veteran as Criger than they could pick up otherwise in an entire season. For that reason Criger was ordered to go to Hot Springs several weeks ago. The club thought he was there.

Pitcher Joe Doyle to-day arrived from Hot Springs with word that Criger had not gone to the Winter resort. There is little likelihood of Criger being dissatisfied with the club, but he will either have to forego the Hot Springs treatment or report out of condition—begin training when his team mates have almost rounded into form.

Doyle had been at Hot Springs for three weeks before coming here, and he says the baths did him much good, especially strengthening the pitching arm, which was injured in 1908 and which had not fully recovered last year. According to Doyle both Hemphill and Kleinow are rapidly getting into shape with the major leaguers at Hot Springs. The pair will not report here for a week at least.

Birdie Cree arrived from the north in time to get into the afternoon's practice. He showed a keen eye and plenty of speed. He seems as far advanced as any one, not excepting Chase. Cree has been coaching the Penn State nine this Spring. To-day's practice consisted of the usual early routine. There was general batting and fielding practice. Big Jim Vaughn, with Frill, Warhop, and Upham, threw the ball to the batsmen, who alternated in hitting and fielding. Most of the players were very stiff and sore this morning from yesterday's work, but a hot sun warmed them up after a few minutes. So far no "charley horses" have been sprung.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO ACT.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., March 8. — The Pittsburg and the Cincinnati Baseball Clubs to-night joined forces in requesting that a meeting of the Board of Directors of the National League be held here next Monday in order to take up the case of former Manager William J. Murray against the Philadelphia National League Club for breach of contract.

This was occasioned by the receipt of a communication by President Barney Dreyfuss from Thomas Lynch, President of the league, in which he said that he had tried to force an issue with President Horace Fogel of the Philadelphia team on the Murray question, but that his messages had been ignored. The fifteen days which had been given Fogel to show reason why Murray had not been paid have now expired, and Lynch wanted to know what Dreyfuss as a member of the Board of Directors of the National League was going to do about it.

Dreyfuss communicated with Herrmann at once, and it was decided that Pittsburg being nearly a central point should be the place for the meeting, which may be held next Monday. Word to this effect was sent President Lynch to-night.

The batteries of the Pittsburg champions to-night started for West Baden, Ind. Pitcher Camnitz is announced as a real holdout.

Brooklyn Colts Beat Regulars.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 8.—Manager Dahlen kept his Trolley Dodgers hard at it again to-day, taking full advantage of the hot weather. The morning developed one more cripple, George Schirm, the little Bison outfielder, twisting his knee chasing a fly. Tim Jordan made use of his bat in the afternoon game between the regulars and the Colts, the Bronx boy driving out two home runs and a pair of singles, batting the Colts to an 8-to-6 victory. Dahlen's Colts batted Wilhelm and Bell freely, while the regulars found Schneiberg a puzzle, and did not trim their batting lamps until Dessau went on the firing line. Dahlen is pleased with Schneiberg, and the big Milwaukee player is sure of a regular place on the Dodgers' pitching staff. He uses a side-arm motion that puzzles the best of them.

Jake Daubert played to-day with a badly swollen leg, and is under Dr. Scanlon's care. Tommy McMillan was again brilliant at short field, and the chances are that he will start the regular season there.

The Boston Nationals have refused to waive claim on Cy Barger, the pitcher. Dahlen may order the Rube to report here.

The baseball colony here had a scare last night, when a report was circulated that Jack Rowan of the Cincinnati Reds had narrowly escaped death in the baths. Rowan collapsed while taking the vapor, and was taken out of danger by an attendant. The pitcher was reported all right to-night. To-day's score:

Fultz Cuts Columbia Squad.

Coach Fultz made a cut in his baseball squad at Columbia yesterday, leaving forty candidates to begin the Spring season. These he hopes to muster in a short time on South Field. Men began yesterday to roll the field, so that it is thought that the squad can begin work there at least by next week. Preliminary outdoor practice has been held for the past few days in the grove, but trees are in the way, so that only superficial work is possible.

Detroit Releases Two Pitchers.

DETROIT, Mich., March 8.—Pitchers Speers and Savidge were released to-day by the Detroit American League management. Savidge goes to the Rochester, N. Y., Club of the Eastern League and Speers to the Buffalo Club of the same league.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Chairman Garry Herrmann of the National Commission has received the "leave of absence" letter which President Murphy of the Cubs wrote to Catcher John Kling a year ago last Fall.

Following the example of other baseball men the owners of the Des Moines, Iowa, team in the Western League have taken out an insurance policy on George Davis, the new manager, to protect themselves against loss. It is said the policy is for $25,000.

The season of the Connecticut Baseball League opens April 29 with Bridgeport playing at New Haven, Waterbury at New Britain, Hartford at Holyoke, and Springfield at Northampton. The closing games will be played on Sept. 10.

G. Mason defeated George Wright, 4 and 2; R. A. Proal defeated S. McHie, 1 up; A. F. Huston defeated V. B. Hubbell, 4 and 3.

Pryor to Help Coach Brown Eleven.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 8.—J. Donald Pryor, Captain of the 1907 Brown University football team and four years a 'Varsity player, was to-day appointed as assistant to Head Coach Robinson of the football eleven, and will help shape up the team next Fall. Pryor is the son of John D. Pryor of South Orange, N. J., and was prepared for college in the South Orange High School.

Weston at Benton Station, Col.

LA JUNTA, Col., March 8.—Edward Payson Weston stopped for the night at Benton Station, eight miles from La Junta. He is expected to reach here to-morrow morning. The distance covered to-day from Tyrone to Benton is forty-six miles.

FIGHT TO BE HELD ON OAKLAND RACETRACK

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—After weeks of negotiation between the joint promoters it was definitely announced tonight by Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason that the Jeffries and Johnson fight on July 4 would be held in an arena within the race track inclosure of the California Jockey Club at Emeryville, Alameda County, better known as the Oakland track, just across the bay from San Francisco.

The announcement was made immediately after a meeting in the offices of The Jockey Club, attended by Rickard, Thomas H. Williams, President of The Jockey Club, and Mayor Christie of Emeryville. Williams and Christie both signified their willingness to have the fight staged in Emeryville, and an agreement to that effect was signed.

Jack Gleason, Rickard's partner, was not present at the conference, but Rickard stated that Gleason had approved the Emeryville arena, and all that remained to be done was to procure formal permit from the Village Trustees. Rickard has been assured that this will be forthcoming upon application.

"I have the permission of Mr. Williams to hold the fight in the race track, and have finally decided that this is where the big men will meet," said Rickard to-night. "It is an ideal place, and we will be able to seat an almost unlimited number of people. I think that 30,000 persons will see the fight. From now on I will devote my attention to conducting the thousand and one details incident to the handling of the big affair."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 8.—Jim Jeffries will train for his fight with Jack Johnson at a resort in the mountains near Santa Cruz, where a camp will be established April 1. This announcement was made by Sam Berger shortly after his arrival here for a conference with the fighter. Jeffries will leave here to-morrow for a ten days' hunting trip in the Tehachipi Mountains. Berger says that Jim Corbett and Frank Gotch will join Jeffries at the Santa Cruz camp June 1. Until then he will be assisted by Roger Cornell of San Francisco and Armstrong and Burns, the wrestler. Until about May he will not do any heavy work.

Sporting circles here are interested in the referee question. It is understood that Jeffries favors Charles Eyton of Los Angeles if Johnson will accept. Ed Smith also has been suggested as referee.

DRISCOLL AND BROWN DRAW.

K. O. Brown Falls to Beat Irish Fighter at Fairmount's Reopening.

Boyo Driscoll of Ireland covered himself with glory last night at the reopening of the Fairmount Athletic Club, when, on clever leading and blocking, footwork, number of clean blows landed, and all-around boxing ability, he outpointed "Knockout" Brown of New York.

Had Driscoll had the strength he would have sent Brown to dreamland several times during the ten rounds of fighting, but as it was the exhibition was that of a scientific boxer against a sturdy street fighter, who threw caution and skill to the winds and relied purely on his strength to avert a catastrophe. A fair referee would probably have decided the bout a draw.

As they toed the mark in the opening round Driscoll had about three inches the advantage in height, with Brown the heavier and more compactly built. They fiddled for a while with great caution, and then, a couple of Brown's swings missing fire, Driscoll sent over a terrific right hook to the face. They stood up and swapped punches for a minute. Driscoll repeatedly crossing Brown with a raking hook that made Brown's wild swings look foolish. It was a hot round, and had the 2,000 members standing on tiptoe with excitement at its close.

In the second Driscoll landed a hard left jab, smothering Brown's returning swings with ridiculous ease by the cleverest kind of foot and head work. Driscoll was cool as a cucumber, whereas his tantalizing jabs, for which his adversary could seem to provide no adequate defense, had Brown swinging his arms wildly like flails. As a hot proposition the round was fully the equal of the first.

Driscoll evaded Brown's rushes and swings throughout the next four rounds in the same clever manner, usually sending in hot right hooks that made Brown's face very red. Had Driscoll had the physical strength he could have put Brown out in any one of the first five rounds, for he landed often enough, but never with enough steam to put a quietus on his aggressive opponent. Brown made a fairly good showing at times by hooking and swinging to Driscoll's body, but these blows never bothered the Irishman much, for he was always moving away as they landed.

Driscoll shot a pretty right hook to the jaw as Brown bored in in the seventh, and kept up these and jabbing tactics until Brown was very tired at the bell. Brown opened the eighth by shooting a hard left swing to the face. Driscoll then cut loose with a perfect whirlwind of left jabs that made Brown cover up and hang on. Both were very rough in the wrestling that punctuated the last six rounds, Brown using his head and Driscoll his elbows, despite frequent cautions by Referee Joh.

The ninth round was marked by a continuance of wrestling tactics. In the infighting, as in long-range work, Driscoll outboxed Brown to a finish. Brown's swings all passed harmlessly around the Irish lad's neck or back, whereas, almost every blow that Driscoll started went home to its intended landing place.

The tenth was very fast, with Brown sticking to wild swings and hooks. Just before the bell Driscoll sent over three hard right hooks to the jaw without a return. They were in a tight embrace, head to head, at the bell. Purely on points, it was Driscoll's fight, but he simply could not hit hard enough to earn a clear decision.

Tommy Stagg and Joe Ferguson, two bantamweights, provided the amusement in the semi-final, which lasted the full ten rounds. It was a tame draw.

Champion of Ireland Goes to Mat.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—Frank Gotch, champion heavyweight wrestler, to-night defeated in straight falls Pat Connelly, champion of Ireland, and Dr. B. F. Roller did the same to Carl Becker of Australia. Gotch got the first fall in 19:08 and the second fall in 5:45. Roller won the initial fall in 16:20 and the second in 7:20.

Roller and Zbyszko Matched.

KANSAS CITY, March 7.—Dr. B. F. Roller of Seattle and Zbyszko to-day signed articles for a wrestling bout to a finish at Kansas City on March 22. The purse is $7,000.

WANDERERS PLAY ROUGH HOCKEY GAME

The Wanderers and Crescent Athletic Club made their exits from the hockey stage of this season last night at St. Nicholas Rink, and with the closing match for the two sevens there was one of the roughest games of the year. The Wanderers won by a score of 8 to 4, but only after the contest had been marred by a fight which resulted in three players being ruled off the ice for the remainder of the game. The first half was rather tame, except for a little strife between S. Cleghorn and Jackson, which resulted in both being sent off the ice five minutes each. Early in the second period, however, the real trouble began to brew, and shortly Liffiton, O. Clerghorn, and S. Cleghorn indulged in a bit of pugilism, with the result that all three were sent from the game for good. A moment later Dufresne came under the ban for tripping Kennedy when he was about to try for a goal, and he went out for five minutes. This left only three of the Wanderers to combat against the Crescent Athletic Club combination, which at the time numbered six.

The Crescents were able to make good use of their advantage, and scored twice as against one tally for the Wanderers. They could not, however, pull up enough to seriously threaten the Wanderers' goal. At the end of the first period the score stood 5 to 1 in favor of the Wanderers.

Liffiton made the first to count for the Crescents in the second half shortly after Harmon had tallied for the Wanderers. The match had begun to get rough by this time, and a few minutes after the second goal of the game had been scored Liffiton and O. Cleghorn got into a mix-up near the corner of the ring. In a second the players of both teams were on the scene, and S. Cleghorn joined in the melée to help his brother. F. T. Britton of the Hockey Club, who was assistant referee, called the three offending players to the side lines, and with them went Harmon for a three-minute penalty, two minutes of which was for back talk to the referee. The fight was the culmination of a long series of difficulties between the members of the teams. The infliction of the penalties seemed to have a sobering effect, for the Wanderers materially changed their tactics from this point on and played clean hockey.

As for the hockey offered it was little short of the poorest, and there was almost no interest in the final outcome except for the lively session near the middle of the second half. The summary:

Wanderers.	Position.	Crescent A. C.
Woods	Goal	Thomas
Sweaton	Point	McIntyre
Dufresne	Cover point	Liffiton
Harmon	Rover	Kennedy
S. Cleghorn	Centre	Jackson
O. Cleghorn	Right wing	Browne

Goals.—First Half—First for the Wanderers, by S. Cleghorn, in 1:15; second for the Wanderers, by Harmon, in 1:45; third for the Wanderers, by Dufresne, in 2:40, fourth for the Crescent A. C., by Browne, in 3:50; fifth for the Wanderers, by O. Cleghorn, in 15:00; sixth for the Wanderers, by Bulger, in 15:45. Second Half—First for the Crescent A. C., by Liffiton, in 11:50; second for the Wanderers, by Smeaton, in 13:00; third for the Crescent A. C., by McDonnell, in 13:35; fourth for the Crescent A. C., by Jackson, in 14:40; fifth for the Wanderers, by Harmon, in 16:20. Penalties—S. Cleghorn, 5 minutes; Jackson, 5 minutes; O. Cleghorn, 2 minutes; Smeaton, 1 minute; Harmon, 3 minutes; S. Cleghorn ruled out of game; O. Cleghorn ruled out of game; Liffiton ruled out of game; Dufresne, 5 minutes; Jackson, 2 minutes; Scarborough, 1 minute; Kennedy, 2 minutes. Substitute—Scarborough for McDonnell. Referee—E. Butnam, St. Nicholas. Assistant Referee—F. T. Bulton, Hockey Club. Goal Umpires—R. Strange, New York A. C., and B. White, New York A. C. Timekeepers—B. A. Kelley, Crescent A. C., and J. E. Goran, Wanderers. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Stuyvesant Hockey Victory.

The Stuyvesant High School defeated the Townsend Harris Hall seven in a game of hockey played in St. Nicholas Rink yesterday morning by the score of 15 to 0.

Record for Penalties in Hockey Match.

A season's record for penalties in senior hockey at Montreal, Canada, was set up at the Arena in that city when Sherbrooke defeated Westmount in the deciding match of the St. Lawrence Amateur Hockey Association series. Players were penalized on thirty counts for a total of 118 minutes, in which Westmount's share was 71 minutes and Sherbrooke's 47. That the penalties, or the bulk of them, went to Westmount and the goals to Sherbrooke about sums up the results, Sherbrooke winning by 7 goals to 0 and scoring the first shutout of the season in senior hockey at Montreal.

Columbia's Big Athletic Meet.

The Columbia Track management promises an interesting evening next Saturday when the annual Columbia indoor games are to be held in Madison Square Garden. Hugh H. Baxter has presented a cup to be run for each year in a scratch mile race at the Columbia indoor games, until one club has won it for three years. Many of the prominent milers will be entered, among them being George Bonhag of the Irish-American A. C., Abel Kiviat, Harry Gissing, Joe Bollard, and H. Jacques of Harvard. Fifteen colleges have entered in the intercollegiate races. They are Cornell, Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Syracuse, Massachusettes School of Technology, Wesleyan, Georgetown, Amherst, Fordham, Pratt Institute, College of the City of New York, and Columbia. In this relay carnival there will be four races at a mile, and two at the two miles. There will also be races for athletic clubs, the Military Athletic League, Young Men's Christian Associations, and preparatory schools.

Columbia Fencers Beat Tigers.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 8.—Columbia defeated Princeton at fencing here to-night by 5 to 4.

THE PRESIDENT'S CUP RACE.

Taft Consents to Name Selected for Atlantic Y. C. Trophy.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—President Taft has given his consent to having the $5,000 cup to be put up by the Atlantic Yacht Club of New York for a trans-Atlantic race named "The President's Cup."

This cup is to be the prize for a race from the other side of the Atlantic to Sandy Hook. Heretofore the races have been from Sandy Hook to the other side.

Swimming Meet for Travers Island.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 8.—Representatives of several universities which were represented at the intercollegiate swimming meet at the Carnegie Pool at Yale Saturday night, it is announced, have arranged for the first long-distance outdoor intercollegiate swimming meet at Travers Island on July 4 or 5. Teams will be entered from Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Princeton, and the College of the City of New York. The events will be: One-mile, half-mile, and quarter-mile races, high diving, and 100-yard novice race.

Capablanca's State Chess Title.

Another victory over C. Jaffe in the third game of the supplementary match to break the tie in the annual tournament of the New York State Chess Association at the rooms of the Rice Chess Club yesterday afternoon gave Jose R. Capablanca, the Cuban expert, the title of New York State champion for the year 1910. The series resulted in favor of the Cuban by the score of 2 to 0, with one game drawn.

Robertson and Lescault Enter.

Two notable entries were made yesterday for the Los Angeles Motordrome opening, April 8-17. They are entries of George Robertson, with two fast cars, and Frank Lescault, with a six-cylinder P. & S. racer.

Robertson will have the new 90 horse power Simplex special racer and the 160 horse power Christie front-wheeled drive car, provided it can be gotten ready in time.

Britons Challenge for Davis Cup.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 8.—The United States National Lawn Tennis Association and the English Lawn Tennis Association have both challenged for the Dwight F. Davis international cup now held by the Australasians. The American challenge was received some time ago, but that of the Englishmen came only to-day by cable. It is two days outside the time limit, but it is believed that the Australasians will accept, if the United States association agrees. This year's match will be played in New Zealand, but the date has not yet been fixed. It is understood that the British team wants the Americans to play the preliminary match in England.

Franklin Model G

A Challenge

While we acknowledge what other manufacturers have done in the production of good automobiles of medium size at low price, there has not yet been one produced that equals Franklin Model G. We brought this model out in 1906. Its immediate and continued success caused other manufacturers to attempt to meet its competition, but none has succeeded.

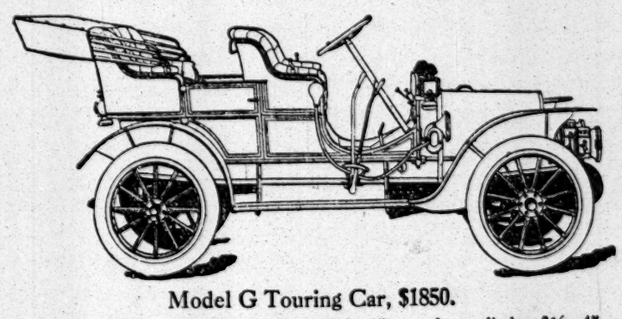
Franklin Model G is the only touring car of low price which has enduring quality. So certain is its merit, like that of any Franklin, that we would match it in a transcontinental time contest against any automobile made regardless of size or price.

Model G Runabout

In the runabout type Model G, now in its fifth year, stands distinguished in a market flooded with so-called cheap runabouts. Model G is not made to sell at a low price; it is made for service. Having all the well-known Franklin principles, it is light and flexible and has no equal for comfort, reliability and endurance.

Model G has ample power for all roads. Being air-cooled, it is not subject to freezing troubles. It does not deteriorate and rattle and seemingly never wears out.

Compare it with other low-priced automobiles in weight, tire equipment, appearance and service.



Model G Touring Car, $1850.

Wheel base, 91½"; tires, 32 x 3½" front, 32 x 4" rear; four-cylinder, 3½ x 4". Two-passenger runabout, $1750. Runabout with surrey-type body, $1800.

Franklin Model G made and holds the world's record for economy.

WESTERN UNION BUYS CONTROL OF A. D. T. CO

Dominant Now in All Messenger and Signal Telegraph Companies Throughout Country.

ABSORPTION OF OLD ALLIES

Affiliation Was Formerly by Favor of Individual Stockholders, and Postal Might Have Stolen a March.

President Robert C. Clowry of the Western Union Telegraph Company announced yesterday that his company had purchased what amounts to a controlling interest in the stock of the American District Telegraph Company of New Jersey, which is the holding company for about forty American District Telegraph organizations covering with messenger and signal telegraph service practically every city in the country outside of New York.

Col. Clowry said that the interest acquired together with the shares already held by the Western Union constituted considerably more than one-third of the total capitalization of $9,963,351 outstanding and something less than one-half.

Like the final purchase of about 28 per cent. of Western Union stock by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Western Union's purchase of more than one-third of the American District Telegraph stock assures the purchasing company working control, in fact the stock holdings of the company now are practically identical with the shares previously held by the company's officers and large stockholders individually by which the Western Union had previously dominated in the A. D. T.

Up to the time the Gould and Sage holdings of Western Union were sold to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company the Western Union held in its own treasury only a small amount of A. D. T. stock. At that time the interests which parted with their Western Union stock also sold their interest in the affiliated companies, including the American District Telegraph.

The American District Telegraph Company is closely bound to the Western Union by contracts throughout its territory, and its offices are in the Western Union Building. Its business throughout the company's territory is conducted through Western Union branch offices, as is that of the American District Telegraph Company of New York, which operates in this city.

Col. Clowry said that the purchase of the stock had no other significance than the carrying out of the Western Union's new policy of making certain its control of affiliated companies, which have hitherto been dependent upon the affiliation of their principal stockholders with the controlling interests in Western Union. He would not discuss the part borne in the transaction of a possible fear of the Postal Telegraph interests stealing a march on the Western Union by buying away from it its control of its messenger service.

The A. D. T. Company, upon its organization in 1901, made a twenty-five-year contract with the Western Union for the collection and delivery of messages. It does, besides, an independent business in the delivery of parcels, and maintains in a number of cities a burglar alarm and fire alarm service. For the first three years of its existence the company paid 5 per cent. dividends, but reduced that rate to 4 per cent., which has been maintained since.

Earnings for the year 1909, with the month of December estimated, were $3,600,000, against $3,192,000 the previous year. Expenses of $2,700,000 reduced net earnings to approximately $900,000, an increase of $115,000 over those of the previous year. The payment of dividends of $389,088 left a surplus of $501,504, estimated.

Lewis L. Clarke Succeeds Father.

Lewis L. Clarke, lately elected President of the American Exchange National Bank to succeed his father, the late Dumont Clarke, was elected to the Directorate of the American Locomotive Company yesterday, also filling the vacancy caused by the death of his father. C. B. Denny was chosen Secretary to succeed S. T. Gallaway, who recently resigned, and J. O. Hobby was made Assistant Secretary. Mr. Denny now occupies dually the offices of Secretary and Treasurer.

Coffee Exchange to Split Last Fraction

Announcement was made yesterday that at a meeting of the Board of Managers of the New York Coffee Exchange is was decided that the change in the by-laws reducing the minimum fluctuation from five-hundredths to one-hundredth of a cent. should be posted, to take effect on March 18. The new rule, however, will not apply to trading in months before January, 1911.

U. P. TOOK BOOM PROFITS.

Made $3,000,000 Selling Southern Pacific When Melon Cutting Was Expected.

The testimony given by Otto H. Kahn on Monday in the hearing on the Government's suit to dissolve the Union Pacific merger recalled to the minds of men in Wall Street yesterday certain interesting events in the stock market last Summer. Mr. Kahn testified that Mr. Harriman decided that 50,000 shares more or less of the stock of the Southren Pacific road would not affect the position of the Union Pacific with respect to that property and that, therefore, 50,000 shares were sold during the Summer months.

Just when these sales were made did not appear from the testimony, but the course of the Pacific stocks taken in connection with the date of Mr. Harriman's return from Europe and transfer to Arden for the last few weeks preceding his death made it quite plain when the sales must have been made. In the month of August, while Mr. Harriman was abroad, the stock market in general had a boom, particularly the stocks of the Union and Southern Pacific roads, Union selling up to 219 and Southern up to 139½.

Reports were generally circulated in Wall Street that a gigantic segregation plan was under way whereby the investment assets of the Union Pacific were to be separated from its railroad properties and a melon cut for the stockholders even richer than the famous Great Northern melon, on which much of the speculation in that stock was predicated during the rise of 1906. At the prices then prevailing, or at the prices of any week during the month or two immediately preceding August, sales of 50,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock must have netted a huge profit, considering that the Union Pacific bought its Southern Pacific at a small fraction above $50 a share.

The period within which the sales were made finds its termination with the return of Mr. Harriman from Europe on Aug. 24. At that time he punctured the segregation bubble in a newspaper interview, declaring that there was no plan of that kind on foot. The following day Union Pacific dropped 6 points and Southern Pacific experienced nearly as severe a decline. From Aug. 24 until his death on Sept. 9 business affairs, except as concerned the settlement of some of his interests, did not come before Mr. Harriman. Hence it is safe to assume that the Union Pacific sold its Southern Pacific at a point pretty near the top of the market, and reaped a profit of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 on the transaction.

There was a short continuation of the hearing in the Government's action at the Custom House yesterday, but little testimony was received, most of the time being spent in the receipt of documentary evidence. At the close the hearings were adjourned until March 25, when the defense may offer additional testimony. If this is done the Government will offer evidence in rebuttal on April 4.

HASKINS LIABILITIES LARGE.

Receiver of Failed Firm Makes Them $1,126,698 in Excess of Assets.

A tentative statement of the assets and liabilities of the failed Stock Exchange house of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., which went under with the collapse of the Hocking pool, was issued yesterday by Receiver Henry D. Hotchkiss, showing an excess of liabilities over assets of $1,126,698. The receiver explained in connection with the report that no definite statement of the firm's position can be given yet, because many of the securities on hand are claimed by customers, and many amounts due are disputed. The receiver expressed the hope that the liabilities might be largely reduced.

The statement shows assets of $1,167,429, of which $31,318 represents the receiver's bank balance; $80,000, the value of the Stock Exchange membership; $254,088, securities on hand; $68,870, due from Stock Exchange houses, brokers, &c.; $534,049, due from customers, and $199,104 due on sundry accounts.

The liabilities of $2,294,127 represent deficit in loans of $578,565; due brokers, Stock Exchange houses, &c., $983,026; due customers, $631,088; due sundry accounts, $100,789, and unpaid accounts of $658.

Lee-Higginson Buy Traction Bonds.

Lee, Higginson & Co. have purchased from the Galveston-Houston Electric Railway $2,750,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, carrying a sinking fund and maturing in forty-five years. The bonds will be used for the construction and equipment of an interurban road between Galveston and Houston, Texas. The stock of the railway is owned by the Galveston & Houston Electric Company, which guarantees the new bonds by a deposit of stocks having a present market value of $2,800,000. The bonds are being offered to investors at 95 and interest.

AIRSHIP SCHOOL AT NEWPORT.

Wright Will Instruct Persons Who Have Purchased Aeroplanes.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 8.—Wilbur Wright, the aeronaut, came to Newport to-day and later went on to New York. During the day Mr. Wright looked over a number of places in the outlying districts with a view to selecting a place for his Summer branch school. He will bring a dozen or more of his airships to Newport, a number of these having been sold to members of the Summer colony.

Mr. Wright will personally superintend the instruction of the new pupils.

Easter Number of The New York Times Next Sunday

The Easter Number of The Times, which will appear next Sunday, will be noteworthy in the annals of newspaper publications.

One of the most interesting features of the magazine section will be a full and complete synopsis of Paul Bourget's great new play, "The Barricade," which is built around the supposed conflict between capital and labor.

This translation was made under the supervision of the playwright himself, and by his sanction it is being published for the first time in America in the Easter Number of The Times.

Another article of unusual interest is a story of the last days of Oscar Wilde, who died in obscurity. It is a dramatic presentation of the subject in a light never before presented to the public.

How the self-supporting girl lives in New York is another question that is treated from the viewpoint of those who should know best about it—the girls themselves. They tell an interesting story.

Besides many other notable features in the magazine section, the Easter Number will include a handsome pictorial section in addition to the usual one. This will be filled with fine illustrations, showing in detail all of the Spring fashions in Paris.

The regular pictorial section is of exceptional merit. It will present artistic views of a wide variety of subjects, all of interest to the reader.

Besides these exceptionally fine reproductions the pictorial section will contain many other interesting and instructive views.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

CITY BONDS SELL OFF

There were a number of recessions among the curb stocks yesterday, and transactions, notably among the coppers, were in diminished volume. Boston Copper lost ¼ on the day, selling only 500 shares; Greene-Cananea lost the same fraction on transactions of 1,200; Miami closed even with the opening at 24⅞, and Nevada Consolidated declined ⅛ from the opening. Ray Central, although continuing active, declined from the opening at 4 to 3 13-16 at the close. Sales reported were 10,000. Trading in the bond list was active and well diversified. The new New York City 4½s appeared at 102, and sold down to 10.½, closing at 101¾, after transactions of $130,000.

STEAMSHIP OWNERS PROTEST.

Urge Reasons Against Jurisdiction of Inter-State Commission.

The shipping interests in the Produce Exchange adopted resolutions yesterday protesting against the passage of sections of the bills now pending before Congress putting "port to port" shipping under the jurisdiction of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The protest was put in the form of resolutions framed by the Committee of Steamship Affairs, of which A. C. Fetteroff is Chairman.

It recited the provisions of the Senate and House bills applying the power of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to establish rates when one of the connecting carriers is a water line, which, it says, "in the opinion of competent counsel" has the effect of placing port to port traffic of the regular lines under the jurisdiction of the commission. This law, the resolution recites, "would result in materially reducing the efficiency of our coastwise and inland transportation companies."

The reasons given for the protest are that the steamship lines "are the rate regulators of practicaly the entire country"; that the law would result in "an irregular and much inferior service and would interfere with the commercial practices of port cities, particularly with respect to the movement of bulk cargoes, such as cotton, wool, forest products, products of mines, &c.," and, lastly, that the law would result in an inflexibility of rate such as has followed the consolidation of railroad ownership.

FARM STOCK OF 1909 CROPS.

On March 1 Farmers Had More Wheat, Oats, and Corn Than Last Year.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The quantity of the 1909 wheat crop in farmers' hands March 1 was about 23.5 per cent., equivalent to 173,344,000 bushels, compared with 21.6 per cent, or 143,692,000 bushels, of the 1908 crop on hand March 1, 1909, and 23.8 per cent., or 152,571,000 bushels, the average for the past ten years, according to the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture.

The quantity of corn is estimated at 37.9 per cent., equivalent to 1,050,865,000 bushels, compared with 39.3 per cent. (1,047,763,000 bushels) last year, and 38.2 per cent. (925,386,000 bushels) the past ten years' average. The farmers' stock of oats is 36.1 per cent. of the 1909 crop, equivalent to 363,159,000 bushels, compared with 34.6 per cent. (278,847,000 bushels) last year, and 36.4 per cent. (310,760,000 bushels) the past ten years' average.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

All Grains Excited on the Government Report—Provisions Dull and Steady —Cotton Advances on Shorts.

Wheat was weak at the opening, and new low levels were reached on the weakness of the foreign markets, bearish foreign visible statement, large receipts, and good weather. From this there was a good recovery on covering of shorts and evening up for the Government report. The European visible increase of 3,600,000 bushels and the world's visible increase of 3,812,000 bushels, following an increase of 4,113,000 bushels the previous week, compared with a decrease of 1,500,000 bushels last year. The news regarding the crop was practically unchanged. All attention was fixed on the Government report of farm reserves, which was issued at 2 o'clock. This report showed the total of wheat in farmers' hands of 173,344,000 bushels, compared with 143,692,000 bushels last year. The total supply in the country as shown by the farm reserves and the Chicago Trade Bulletin visible, including flour stocks, is 248,000,000 bushels against 218,000,000 last year. The percentage of the crop on hand was 23.5 per cent., against 21.6 per cent. a year ago. Prices advanced excitedly on the report, gaining 2@3c from the low point as shorts, but reacted about 1c. The close was very unsettled.

Cash prices quoted: No. 2 red, Winter, $1.26 bid, elevator, domestic; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, free on board, afloat, $1.27½; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.26; No. 2 hard, Win'er, $1.26; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.18¼.

Corn was also weak at the opening, but rallied with a good deal of evening up. The market has been weak for a number of days, and quite a short interest created. The decline has carried prices to an export parity, and some business is being effected. The principal news was the Government statement of farm reserves, making the total 1,050,865,000 bushels, or 37 per cent. of the crop, against 1,047,763,000 bushels last year, which was 39.6 per cent. The largest reserve was in 1907, 1,298,000,000 bushels, or 44.3 per cent. of the crop. The market advanced 2@2½c on the report, but reacted quickly at the close. Cash corn was quoted: No. 2, nominal; No. 4, 62½c, and steamer 65c, all elevator, export basis.

Oats moved in about the same way as other grain. The market opened lower, but recovered on evening up and was fairly steady awaiting the Government report. This report showed 363,159,000 bushels of oats in farmers' hands, or 36.1 per cent. of the crop, against 278,847,000 last year, or 34.5 per cent. The largest amount reported in farmers' hands was in 1907, 384,464,000 bushels, or 39.8 per cent. The market advanced with other grain on shorts, but reacted quickly. Cash prices quoted white 50@52c; white, clipped, 50½@53c.

Provisions were very quiet all the session, fluctuations were narrow and imperative, and there was little interest shown in the market. The close was fairly steady.

COTTON.

The market was active and strong in the early trading. The feature of the advance was the strength in the near positions, and the active covering of shorts in the March and May. The advance was accompanied by reports that the congestion in these deliveries was more pronounced than at any time yet, and there were predictions of much higher prices. The local shorts were good buyers and the buying was influenced considerably by the strength in Liverpool. That market was higher and closed firm. The advance was partly due, it was stated, to buying by Mr. Patten, who has just arrived on the other side. There was some buying of new crop deliveries on the report of dry weather in Texas, but the February weather bulletin showed that the rainfall the past month was from 2 to 4 inches through a greater part of the eastern half of the State, and 1 to 2 inches right through the centre, north and south. In the western half there was very little rainfall. At the advance the market was very quiet and showed but narrow changes, with a rather professional trade.

The trade reports show little or no improvement. The volume of business being done is not particularly encouraging, judging by the Fall River returns, while there are an increasing number of reports of shorter time for the mills and curtailment of output. The technical situation of the market, however, seems to be more influential at present than the other developments.

COFFEE.

Coffee was dull and featureless, total sales amounting to 4,250 bags, of which 3,000 were switches, and the other 1,250 were all for September delivery at 7.20. Price changes were small and at the close the market was 5 points lower for April and unchanged for other positions. Havre came unchanged, Hamburg, unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower, while in Brazil Rio was unchanged and Santos showed an advance of 50 reis. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States was 3,506,285 bags, against $4,150,653 last year. The London weekly cable reported arrivals of all kinds during the week 11,135 bags, of which 85 were Brazilian. Spot coffee was steady; 8¾c for Rio No. 7.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Weakness in Street's Stable Car Line stock and a brisk advance in Chicago Title and Trust Company stock were the features of trading to-day on the local Exchange. The former was influenced by the investigation of pool operations, while the latter advanced on the report of an increased dividend. Trading in other shares was light.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, March 8.—Money was easier to obtain and discount rates were steady to-day.

Trading was somewhat irregular on the Stock Exchange. There was a good investment demand for colonial and foreign bonds, especially Japanese and Brazilian, and steady speculative support in copper shares and Mexican rails. British securities were inclined to ease, and Kaffirs and oil shares yielded to realizations. Rubber shares closed strong on the record prices realized at the crude rubber sales. Rhodesian mines hardly recovered their early losses.

American securities, after an irregular opening, advanced on light buying and favorable New York advices. In the afternoon Wall Street offered stocks and prices declined. In the late trade a slight hardening occurred, and the market closed steady.

PARIS, March 8.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, March 8.—Prices were firm and generally higher on the Boerse to-day. American stocks rose sharply.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—The dismissal yesterday of the suit brought by the United States against the anthracite coal railroads under the commodities clause of the Hepburn act brought a quick response in the local stock market to-day, where there was heavy buying and a sharp advance in Lehigh Valley shares, this company being a defendant in the case. A feature of the early trading was unwonted activity in Electric Storage Battery shares, which rose a point.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active and Firm—Call Money Rates, 2¾@3 Per Cent.

PROFIT TAKING A FACTOR

Yesterday's stock market presented the familiar spectacle of a sufficient volume of profit taking in securities which led a sharp advance on a preceding day to give an air of irregularity to the trading as a whole in spite of very sharp advances in stocks previously neglected. Union Pacific, United States Steel, and Reading were the issues directly affected by the day's selling, and at the close this had become so effective as to produce fractional losses in Reading and Union Pacific and to restrict the rise in Steel to a half point on a volume of nearly 225,000 shares. In contrast with the movements in the three stocks named, which were the leaders in Monday's rise, was the behavior of a group of stocks which included New York Central, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Interborough, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and a number of industrials. The speculation of Monday affected them very little, but yesterday they were taken up and moved forward with ease and rapidity. There is nothing at all novel in a market which presents the phases here touched upon; its real importance at the moment lies in the fact that it reflects with considerable accuracy the decidedly cheerful feeling now prevalent in the financial district. For this improvement in sentiment the almost complete elimination of anxiety over what Washington may or may not do is in large degree responsible, but it is no more so than is the proof now coming to hand daily that the business of the country at large is expanding in such fashion as to promise for the present year a volume almost if not quite without precedent. No one who has observed the new policy of the railroads of the country regarding expenditures for supplies can have failed to receive the impression that the managers of these avenues of trade are full of confidence and are hastily preparing to meet an exceptional demand for transportation facilities which they see just ahead. Bids for above 22,000 cars alone have been asked within the past ten days. It is fairly obvious from all this that the business men of the country do not propose to sit idly by while the Supreme Court is coming to a decision upon the anti-trust cases now before it, and the further inference is justified that adverse findings are not generally expected to seriously interfere with trade. The Government's figures on farm reserves of wheat showed 30,000,000 bushels over a year ago—an amount surpassing by 5,000,000 bushels the year's loss in our export trade.

By all odds the most interesting feature of the money markets is the effect which the heavy purchases of American securities for foreign account are having upon foreign exchange. Buying of high-class railroad stocks and purchases of bonds and subscriptions to new issues of securities are creating exchange in a way to make up in a large measure for the deficiency of commercial bills with the result that demand sterling fails to move forward to the gold export point. The volume of general business throughout the country and the demands for fresh capital from corporations continue to keep money firm and any increase in either respect would indicate some further strengthening of quotations.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 8.—Trading in the local market was active to-day at advancing prices. North Butte was the early feature, being bought in large blocks and the price selling up to 44½. Franklin made a further gain of 2 points, to 22¾, and North Lake sold up to 24¼. Toward the latter part of the afternoon interest centred principally in Indiana, which jumped from 38½ to 41 on transactions of but a little over 3,000 shares. The general list closed strong and at very nearly best prices for the day.

New Map for Union Pacific.

The great map of the Harriman system of railways which is suspended at one end of the Directors' room in the Union Pacific offices at 120 Broadway is one of the largest railroad maps ever plotted, but with the growth of the Harriman system the management of these lines, in the person of Julius Kruttschnitt, the Vice President in charge of operation and maintenance, has decided that a still larger map is needed. So the old map is soon to give way to a still larger one. It will cover the entire extent of one of the walls of the large Directors' room. This map is being drawn at the Chicago headquarters of the Union Pacific, and the work on it has been under way for more than a year. It all has to be drawn and painted in by hand, so large is the scale on which it is plotted. It will show every little branch of the Union and Southern Pacific systems, and will have room for the lines which the Southern Pacific is building in Mexico. The other map does not show the Mexican lines at all; it was made before E. H. Harriman decided to extend his railway system 1,500 miles into Mexico.

Where Harriman Thought Out His Deals.

More than passing interest attaches to the map which is about to be supplanted by the still larger map. The late E. H. Harriman was in the habit of sitting in front of this map for hours, plotting out his railroad campaigns. He came to know every spot on the map, the location of every line, and the name of every place, no matter how small. At Directors' meetings he frequently directed some junior officer to point out a certain branch line or some small place or other to the Directors, and was surprised and annoyed that the officer was unable to place his finger on the spot without a moment's hesitation. He knew the map by heart, and wondered why others did not know it as well.

Wilkes-Barre Coal Co. Bond Issue.

The Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company, which is controlled by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, a majority of whose stock is in turn owned by the Reading Company, has called a special meeting of its stockholders for March 25 to act on a proposal to authorize a new issue of $20,000,000 4 per cent. bonds, the proceeds of which will be used to pay off the outstanding bonds of the company as they mature. About $17,000,000 of bonds bearing 4½ and 5 per cent. interest fall due on June 1, and another issue of the company's bonds, amounting to about $2,700,000, will become due in November, 1912. The total of these issues is $19,687,000, or within $313,000 of the amount of the proposed new issue. The paying off of these bonds out of the proceeds of a new 4 per cent. issue will effect a saving of about $136,000 in the annual fixed charges.

Rise Follows Reaction.

While opening dealings in stocks were active yesterday price changes were narrow and mixed, and it was not until later in the day that the upward movement got into its stride. New York Central was one of the conspicuously strong issues at the opening, with a block of 3,500 shares appearing on the ticker at 125 and 124½, comparing with 123½ on Monday. Later the stock extended its gain to 2⅝ points, but heavy offerings in Steel, Reading, and Amalgamated Copper had a depressing effect at the end of the first hour, and these issues dropped about 1 point from Monday's close. After another upturn, with United States Steel showing strong, trading became dull and prices ruled about the levels of the late market of the previous day until Steel's strength again exerted a reviving influence. With its rise to 80⅝ in the last hour the general market again stiffened.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Dow, Jones & Co. Complete Purchase of Edison Building —Fleischmann & Co. Increases Its Holdings—Harlem Property in Demand—Bronx Realty Booming— $200,000 Apartments for Brooklyn.

Details of the purchase of the Edison Building on Broad Street from the De Rham estate by Dow, Jones & Co., publishers of The Wall Street Journal, will be found in another column.

Another Greenwich Street Loft Sale.

The St. John's Park Realty Company, composed of W. D. Kilpatrick and James H. Cruikshank, has sold 487 and 489 Greenwich Street, a new six-story loft building, on plot 44 by 90, 86 feet north of Canal Street. The company recently sold the adjoining and similar structure, at Nos. 483 and 485, to Simmons & Bleecker.

Fleischmann Co. Increases Holdings.

The Fleischmann Company is the purchaser of 695 and 697 Washington Street, the sale of which by Mrs. Sarah McGovern and George M. Newschafer, through Robert R. Rainey, was reported last week. These old structures, with stables in the rear, are on a plot having access to Perry Street by an alley which separates the southeast corner of Washington and Perry Streets, owned by the Fleischmann Company, from their stables at 140 to 144 Perry Street. The Fleischmann stables are new, and it is not unlikely that the company will enlarge or rebuild its corner structure at the expiration of the present leases.

38th Street Plot Sold for Loft.

A twelve-story office and loft building suitable for publishers will be erected on the site of the two old dwellings 223 and 225 West Thirty-eighth Street, sold yesterday by Arnold, Byrne & Baumann for Reckling & Vallender. The buyers, the John T. Brook Construction Company, will start work on the new structure as soon as the ground is cleared.

Isidore Isaac has sold 310 West 107th Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 100.11.

Clarence V. Kip has sold 266 West Ninety-third Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 16 by 84.4.

Pease & Elliman have sold for M. Hyman 311 West 107th Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 100, to a client for investment.

Realty Co. Buys Mount Estate Plot.

A valuable parcel of upper west side property which has been owned by the Mount estate for almost a half century was purchased yesterday by the Hennessy Realty Company of which Joseph Polstein is President.

The property, for which several offers have been made recently by speculators and builders, consists of six lots on 107th and 108th Streets, 100 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue.

On 107th Street the plot has a frontage of 50 feet and on 108th Street 100 feet. The Hennessy Realty Company has recently completed an apartment house on 112th Street, near Broadway. Plans are now being prepared for a similar apartment on the Mount estate parcel, which is in the heart of the apartment house district.

Arlon Hotel Plot Resold.

The old Arlon Hotel property at 2,231 to 2,237 Third Avenue, between 121st and 122d Streets, has been sold by G. Brettell & Son for Andrew Davey to John H. Degelman. The property consists of a five-story business building on a plot 75 by 105, with a five-foot entrance into 122d Street. Mr. Davey purchased the plot about ten months ago as an investment, and sold at a handsome profit.

Investor Buys Lenox Ave. Plot.

An important deal in West Harlem yesterday was the purchase of the eight-story elevator apartment on the southeast corner of 119th Street and Lenox Avenue by Meyer L. Haff for investment. The property was owned by an estate represented by the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, and Parish, Fisher & Co., who negotiated the sale.

Julia Wray has sold 204 St. Nicholas Avenue, a five-story flat on lot 20.4 by 102.7 by irregular, between 120th and 121st Streets.

Lively Bidding for Harlem Parcel.

There was some lively bidding yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom for the irregular plot running through from 127th to 128th Street, with frontages of 99.6 and 7.3 feet respectively, between Convent and Amsterdam Avenues, offered at auction by Bryan L. Kennelly for the Burtis estate.

Bidding started at $20,000, and the parcel was finally struck down to Ferdinand Hecht for $26,500. Mr. Hecht represented a client, but refused to divulge his identity. It was reported that he was acting for Bernheimer & Schwartz, brewers, who control most of the property from this point over to Amsterdam Avenue.

Bronx Sales.

The Baxter Howell Building Company has sold for John McCall one of the one-family cottages located on Plymouth Terrace, Throggs Neck.

S. J. Taylor has sold for John S. Matthews a plot 50 by 90 feet on the south side of 197th Street, 58 feet east of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse.

Ferdinand Kramer as broker has sold for the J. Wolf Company 1,111 to 1,115 Westchester Avenue, two five-story apartment houses, on plot 100 by 76 by irregular, to an investor for $78,000.

Walker & Berger have sold a plot, 50 by 100, on the south side of 153d Street, between Melrose and Third Avenues, for the Nichols estate to a builder for improvement. The same firm has also sold for the Columbia Construction Company a plot of four lots at the northwest corner of Teller Avenue and 163d Street to William Simpson, who will erect five-story flats.

Louis Meckes has sold for Jane C. Snearing to C. W. Diehl the three-family brick apartment house 1,246 Woodycrest Avenue, with lot running through to Shakespeare Avenue.

H. L. Phelps has sold for the Gaines-Roberts Company 451 East 140th Street, a five-story new-law house, on plot 38 by 100, to a Mr. Freipag; also, has sold for John Boehling to an investor 463 and 465 East 135th Street, two five-story flats, on plot 50 by 100.

R. I. Brown's Sons have sold for Ravitch Brothers the plot, 75 by 94, with a two-story frame house, situated west of Bathgate Avenue, 216 feet south of Tremont Avenue. It is the intention of the purchaser to immediately improve this plot with apartments and stores.

C. F. Heltmann has sold for Mrs. Carrie Pries to the Jacob Streliter Company a vacant lot on the east side of Wilkins Place, north of Freeman Street, 25 by 153 by 12.

The Fleischmann Realty and Construction Company has sold the private dwelling 20 Kingsbridge Road to John H. Keirns. The purchaser has bought the house for his own occupancy.

Moran, Hahn & Moran have sold for Bernard Malone one of the new two-family houses on Van Nest Avenue, Van Nest.

Walker & Berger have sold for George M. Solinger 990 Brook Avenue, a four-story flat; also the block front on the north side of Freeman Street, between West Farms Road and Longfellow Avenue, to George Ringailin.

Scott & Trotta have sold for Leonard Weill the northeast corner of Belmont Avenue and 188th Street, a plot 50 by 95 feet.

H. L. Phelps has sold for Frederick Lange to George Busch 400 East 135th Street, a five-story flat, on plot 32 by 100; also, for the Gaines-Roberts Company to a Mr. Schutz 979 Aldus Street, a five-story double flat, in course of construction, on plot 40 by 100.

Brooklyn Sales.

Fred M. Smith has sold for David Michaels the vacant plot on the east side of Underhill Avenue, 101 feet south of St. Mark's Avenue, being 57 by 150, to W. Beckers, for improvement, for $6,000; also, for the estate of A. W. Spies, the northwest corner of Driggs Avenue and North Seventh Street, with frame buildings thereon, being 25 by 100, to Michel Vacchiano, for $7,000. Vacchiano will remove the present buildings and erect large brick tenements, to accommodate five families on each floor.

Charles H. Karutz has sold for Meruk & May 487 to 493 Park Place, four new four-story brick and stone single apartment houses, each 20 by 70 by 105. The houses will not be completed until next month.

Suburban Sales.

Dr. Sanford has sold through Steven B. Ayres to Mrs. Eugenie Sherer, the residence, 305 Webster Avenue, New Rochelle, on lot 78 by 170. The property adjoins the residence of the late Frederick Remington, the artist.

Steven B. Ayres and P. S. Brower have sold for Frank M. Abbott to two buyers from Western New York a tract of land north of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Roselle Park, N. J. This land is part of a farm which is historical, and is near the famous Galloping Hill Road, which was named during Revolutionary times.

Recent Buyers.

Rose E. Marks is the buyer of 543 Madison Avenue, sold last week by Henry D. Winans & May.

Big Apartment for Convent Avenue.

Plans have been filed for a six-story apartment house with suites for thirty-five families, to be erected at the northwest corner of Convent Avenue and 147th Street for the Iona Construction Company, E. M. Patten, President, from designs by F. A. Wright, as architect. It is to be 89.10 feet front and 99.10 feet deep, and will cost $150,000.

Warehouse in Greenwich District.

Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller for an eight-story warehouse, 101 feet front, to be built at a cost of $135,000 from designs by William Henry Dewar, Jr., as architect, at the northeast corner of Washington and Canal Streets, for the Greenwich Investing Company.

Alter 45th St. House for Restaurant.

Plans have been filed for making over the lower stories of the five-story dwelling house at 134 West Forty-fifth Street, into a restaurant and café for Wolff & Cannon, the improvements to be made from designs by Harry Allan Jacobs, architect, at a cost of $15,000.

East River Site for Ward Bread Co.

The Ward Bread Company, a New Jersey corporation, which is erecting a large factory in Brooklyn, took title yesterday for an expressed consideration of $122,500 to a plot in East Fifty-fourth Street, on the south side, beginning at a point 469 feet east of First Avenue, and extending to the East River bulkhead.

New Bradford Street Hospital.

The new building to be erected by the city for the Bradford Street Hospital in the East New York section will cost $300,000.

It will be five stories in height and will have a frontage of 189 feet on Dumont Street and 73 feet deep between Miller Avenue and Bradford Street.

Buys College Point Meadows.

A big College Point real estate deal has just been completed by the purchase of 110 lots on the meadows between College Point and Flushing by William Conners. He has held a tax title on the property for several years and has now perfected his title by paying to Jacob Foreman, Jr., of Brooklyn, attorney for the original owners, the Morrell estate, the fee for the original deed. The lots are situated along the west side of the tracks of the Long Island Railroad. The land is not filled in and the purchase has been made for speculation. In making this purchase Mr. Conners holds the key to the situation, as in order to fill in the adjoining lands it will be necessary to drive over his property.

Plans have recently been completed for the erection of two large apartment houses in the Brooklyn Heights section, which has recently experienced considerable activity in buildings of this character. Both of these houses will be erected by the One Ninety-one Broadway Company, one being on the south side of Montague Street, west of Hicks Street, 100 by 77, for forty-nine families, and the other on the south side of Pierrepont Street, west of Henry Street, 75 by 84, for forty-one families. They will be eight-story apartments and will cost $200,000 each.

Valuable Plots at Auction.

In addition to selling the Yerkes mansion and art gallery on Fifth Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street on April 11 by Joseph P. Day, he will also sell at the same time the Yerkes stable at 135 East Sixty-ninth Street, a three-story brick building, 25 by 100.5, located 150 feet east of Lexington Avenue. Mr. Day will soon sell as a result of partition proceedings the plot containing a five-story building on the southwest corner of Broadway and Forty-eighth Street, 51 feet on Broadway and 128.4 feet on the street, adjoining the old Brewster carriage factory, and the entire block front on the west side of Eighth Avenue between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, occupied by nine four-story tenements covering the numbers from 831 to 847 Eighth Avenue, the plot being 200.10 by 80.

Gould Partition Suit.

Abraham Stern has been appointed referee to hear the case brought by George J. Gould against his brothers and sisters for a partition of the realty left them by their mother. The properties involved are 46 East Seventy-eighth Street, 47 and 49 East Fifty-ninth Street, and 5 and 7 Walker Street. The only defendant outside of the Gould family is Charles B. Samuels, who holds a judgment for $15,990 obtained against Anna, Princess de Sagan, which is a lien on her share.

February Building Loss.

Official reports from forty-three building centres throughout the country, as compiled by The American Contractor, New York, show an aggregate loss of 23 per cent. as compared with February, 1909. According to predictions made throughout the latter part of last year, by the industrial and financial press, the year 1910 was set down as a coming record-breaker, which forecast, however, has failed to materialize in building operations.

Of the forty-three cities, sixteen show a loss of from 4 to 79 per cent. and twenty-seven show a gain of from 2 to 679 per cent.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Fair weather continued generally during the last twenty-four hours throughout the country, and there is no indication of any decided change during Wednesday or Thursday.

The temperature has not changed decidedly in any section, and is above normal in practically all parts of the country. At Abilene, Texas, the maximum temperature Tuesday was 90 degrees.

No important change in temperature is indicated for any region during the next forty-eight hours, and the pressure distribution is such as to indicate temperature near or above the normal in all parts of the country during the next several days.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light west; Middle and South Atlantic Coast, light, variable.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have light to moderate west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday; not much change in temperature; light west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	38	34	4 P. M.	44	40
6 A. M.	35	33	6 P. M.	43	40
9 A. M.	37	35	9 P. M.	41	38
12 M.	41	36	12 P. M.	40	37

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 37; for the corresponding date last year it was 31; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 35.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 34; at 8 P. M. it was 38. Maximum temperature, 41 degrees at 5 P. M.; minimum, 33 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 63 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 58 per cent. at 8 P. M.

MANIAC KILLS ONE, WOUNDS TWO OTHERS

DEMANDED $400,000 AT BANK

Expected a Check from J. O. Armour—Mueller Once in Asylum for Writting to W. K. Vanderbilt.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 8.—Gustav F. C. Mueller, whose chief mania is to write letters to the Rockefellers and Vanderbilts demanding money, killed one policeman on duty at the intersection of Main Street and Fairfield Avenue, the heart of the crowded business section, at 11 o'clock to-day, and shot down two other persons, one of whom will probably die. He was captured after a long chase.

The policeman killed is Ellsworth G. Deitz, 33 years old and married. The injured men are Leopold Rago of 201 Strafford Avenue, a passer by, and Thomas P. Dougherty, also of the crowd, who stooped to pick up Rago when he fell with a bullet through the stomach.

Mueller was brought to the attention of the police for the first time in nearly a year yesterday morning when President Alexander Hawley of the Bridgeport Savings Bank informed Police Superintendent Birmingham that a man had entered the bank an hour before demanding first $1,000 and then $400,000, which, he said, was to have been sent him by J. Ogden Armour, the Chicago meat packer. Last May he had been arrested for acting suspiciously about the Atlantic Hotel here, and, upon examination as to his sanity, was sent to the State Insane Asylum at Middletown. He had been released as cured last November, but the police had not heard of it.

Banker Gives Warning.

President Hawley told Supt. Birmingham that the cashier had put off Mueller by remarking that the check from Mr. Armour had not yet come, but might come later. Mueller left quietly, saying he would return. Supt. Birmingham at once sent Detectives Hackett and Hall to the bank to wait for him. They waited until after 3 o'clock, when the bank closed.

This morning while Hall reported to the bank, Hackett went up to Mueller's house at 955 Madison Avenue and found him busily writing with red ink, illustrating his letters with drawings of himself, and cross-bones and daggers.

Hackett did not have a warrant, so he let long enough to telephone Police Headquarters for instructions. Supt. Birmingham told him to shadow Mueller, and arrest him when safe to do so. A few moments later Mueller appeared, and after posting ten letters at the nearest box, started downtown with the detective trailing behind. When the crossing where the shooting took place was reached Mueller was halted by the traffic, giving Hackett a chance to approach him.

"Did you send for me?" asked Hackett as before.

"No," said Mueller; "did you get my letter?"

Before Hackett could reply Mueller leaped away, flashing his revolver. He whirled quickly, but the detective frankly admitted that he dodged behind two women, and remained there for several moments while Mueller, waving his pistol, peered about the crowd.

Policemen Give Chase.

When Hackett didn't appear, Mueller started down the street toward the railway station, a quarter of a mile away. Policeman Deitz, taking in Hackett's predicament, started toward the maniac. Hackett also ran toward Mueller, when the latter lowered his pistol for a moment, and Policemen Browne and Musante closed in on the man from other directions.

Deitz and Browne had almost reached Mueller, and were about to throw their arms around him when Mueller picked up Deitz, a much heavier man than himself, and threw him into the gutter. Before Browne could advance, Mueller fired a bullet into Deitz's neck, the ball ranging downward toward the left lung and heart and severing the windpipe. Deitz fell unconscious.

Raising his pistol, Mueller fired across the street, one ball laying low Rago and another entering the shoulder of Dougherty, who ran to Rago's assistance. Mueller then continued his flight, with hundreds of people following. But every one in front of Mueller gave him a wide berth, and there was a very perceptible shrinking among those who followed every time he would turn and flourish his pistol.

Hackett and Browne, leading the chase, were close on him when he reached the railway station. Taking by mistake a blind passageway which leads from the station to the street, Mueller found himself cornered, so turning on his track, he faced the policemen.

Throws Up His Hands.

Both men leveled their pistols at the madman's heart and commanded him to throw up his hands. At first he wavered and both were about to shoot him down when he threw down his pistol and sent both hands into the air.

"My hands are up!" he cried, evidently scared now.

Hackett seized him, while Browne picked up the pistol, still hot and containing four loaded cartridges. By this time the crowd was there, and as there were menacing cries and much muttering the policemen decided not to wait for the patrol wagon to come, but to press on to Police Headquarters with their man.

At headquarters Mueller demanded that either John D. Rockefeller or William K. Vanderbilt be immediately sent for to bail him out. Either would be willing to protect him, he said.

When asked where he got the idea that Armour was to send him money, Mueller said "voices" had told him so, and that the bank people made him think so, too. He said he had not written any letters to ex-President Roosevelt or Rockefeller, as reported, but to W. K. Vanderbilt and to universities. None of the letters he mailed this morning had stamps on them, and when the Postmaster turned them over to the police it was found that they were addressed to universities in this country or universities and governments in Europe.

Deitz was hurried to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he died just as he was being put on the operating table. Rago, in the same hospital, is not expected to live through the night, but Dougherty was not dangerously hurt.

Mueller is thirty years old.

ACCUSED OF ROBBING MAILS.

Harold S. Lavner, a Brooklyn Postal Clerk, Is Held in $3,000 Bail.

Post Office Inspectors in Brooklyn Post Office who have been investigating the theft of several hundred letters, some containing money orders which have long been missing, saw Harold S. Lavner, a clerk in the Post Office, take five letters yesterday and place them in a book. He then started to leave the building.

It was his time for quitting work, and his actions convinced the Inspectors that he was responsible for the larceny of many of the missing letters. They stopped him and brought him back. He admitted he stole the letters which he carried. A warrant was sworn out, and he was arraigned before Commissioner Benedict charged with robbing the mails. He was held in $3,000 bail for examination on Friday.

Lavner is 27 years old and lives at 184 Pulaski Street, Brooklyn. He was employed in the General Post Office and also worked in the railway postal service between Brooklyn and Fort Hamilton. The Inspectors searched his locker in the building and found over 100 other letters.

CEMENT COMPANY TIED UP.

Judge Ward of the United States Circuit Court yesterday appointed William F. Allen receiver for the Seaboard Portland Cement Company of 225 Fifth Avenue and Olsen, N. Y., under a bond of $50,000 on application of Robert C. Morris of Morris & Plaute, attorneys, in an equity suit brought by George A. Beaton on behalf of bondholders.

Mr. Morris said that the proceedings were preliminary to a reorganization of the company and were taken to protect the assets, which are estimated at more than $1,000,000. There is a bond issue of $2,000,000, and the liabilities outside of the bonds are not large.

The company was incorporated in July, 1907, with an authorized capital of $5,000,000, but never had any rating at Bradstreet's. The company purchased, it is said, 700 acres of land at Olsen on the Hudson, near Catskill, and started to construct a large cement plant.

In December last it was said that it would require about $300,000 more to finish the plant. All the bonds were sold and with every bond a share of stock was given.

A large amount of the bonds were placed on Long Island; about $120,000 being sold in Riverhead and neighboring towns.

FORGED TO AID FATHER.

Youth Signed Notes, He Says, to Tide Parent Over Financial Trouble.

Because Charles W. Grant, 22 years old, an automobile dealer of 550 Communipaw Avenue, Jersey City, said that he had risked the consequences of forgery to provide money to tide his father over a temporary financial difficulty, the jury which convicted the young man yesterday in the Hudson County Quarter Sessions Court added a recommendation for mercy to the verdict.

George Grant, the young man's father, a real estate operator, last year thought that with $2,000 in cash he could put through a deal that would enable him to pay off all his debts, pay back the $2,000, and put him on his feet generally.

He made arrangements to borrow $2,000 from Mrs. Gertrude R. Galvin of 121 Arlington Avenue, Jersey City, and gave her five notes indorsed with the name of A. P. Dunbar of Elizabeth, a well-to-do nephew of his.

Two or three days later he disappeared. Mrs. Galvin found out that the indorsements of A. P. Dunbar were forged, and the police arrested young Grant on the charge of forging them.

WOMEN PAINT THEIR CHURCH.

Balked Only When It Came to Climbing Ladders on the Street Front.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., March 8.—Lest church improvements should be halted by a lack of funds a dozen prominent society women of the fashionable St. Barnabas Protestant Episcopal Church have undertaken the job of painting the exterior of the church. Headed by Mrs. Philip Smith, a young English woman, and wife of the rector, and Miss Florence Stewart, a popular society girl, the women astonished residents this morning by appearing with ladders, paint pots, and brushes, and bravely setting to work.

By noon they had completed a thirty-foot section, from the eaves to the ground, and declared they will finish the work before the week ends.

The women balked on using the ladders on the front facing St. Mary's Street, and after a consultation formed a pin-money club to employ a real painter to do that section. No crowds would stop to gaze at a mere man up a ladder.

Chicago Arrest for Lorraine Gem Theft

CHICAGO, March 8.—In the belief that they would be able to throw some light on the alleged theft of jewelry said to be valued at $60,000 from a room occupied by Mrs. J. W. Jenkins at the Hotel Lorraine, in New York, on Dec. 11, three men were arrested here to-night. One of them is Charles Rosenthal, who was followed by detectives from New York last week. The police assert that Rosenthal has a record at the Elmira, N. Y., prison. The other men are Paul Korshak, a diamond dealer of Chicago, and Jay Harris, brother-in-law of Korshak.

INJURIES MAY NOT DISFIGURE LILLIS

MRS. CUDAHY NOT TO SUE

Will Remain in Kansas City and Devote Life to Children—Denounces Husband as Brutal Coward.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—"Jack" Cudahy may have failed to disfigure Jere Lillis for life by his attack on the banker with a knife when he found him in his home early Sunday morning. At St. Mary's Hospital to-day it was said that Lillis's condition was much better, and that his lacerated face would probably heal without leaving a scar or mark. Only from the long gash on his left cheek is a scar feared.

"Mr. Lillis's condition is very favorable," Dr. Samuel Ayres said to-day. "He is doing nicely. If his face shows any marks of the knife at all they will be slight."

Cudahy, who is at a hotel, still refuses to discuss the case, and Lillis is not able to talk. His mouth is lacerated so that he can barely reply in whispers to the questions asked him by his doctor.

"Fenn" Moss, the chauffeur, is still missing. His home was closed this morning. The neighbors said he had not been at home since Sunday night. The police are making no effort to arrest him, in spite of the fact that he took an active part in the assault on Lillis.

Mrs. Cudahy has announced her intention to remain in Kansas City. She will not sue for a divorce, but she says she will never live with Cudahy again.

No Chance of a Reconciliation.

"There is no chance of a reconciliation now," she said to-day, with an emphatic nod of her head. "I have stood all the brutality that should be one woman's share in life. I can never live with him again, but I must always keep a home for my children, my poor, pretty, little darlings. My father here"—pointing to Gen. Cowin of Omaha—"has complete charge of my affairs."

Then Gen. Cowin dictated the following statement as to the future of his daughter:

> On account of the children Mrs. Cudahy will not make any application for divorce. She has devoted her life to her children and she will devote her future to their care and education. She has been as true a wife as ever lived and no mother was ever more devoted to her children than she has been, as evidenced by the attachment of the children to their mother.
>
> Mrs. Cudahy will remain in her present home, and as I have said, devote her life to her children. She will not go into court unless it is necessary to secure maintenance and support for her children or to protect them.
> JOHN C. COWIN.

"Yes, I am going to stay right here in Kansas City," Mrs. Cudahy said, as her father completed his statement of her future plans. "Don't think for a minute that I would be the woman to run away when trouble comes. If I had been I would not have stood the treatment my husband has meted out to myself and my children as long as I have.

Sympathy from J. K. Hackett.

"And my friends have been so kind to me. Why, I have had dozens and dozens of messages from friends in New York, Boston, and Chicago expressing their sympathy for me in this trouble that has come into my family. Only this morning I got a telegram from James K. Hackett. It said: 'My heart goes out to you in this trouble, but be a brave woman.'"

> There has been nothing between myself and Mr. Lillis to justify the attack my husband made upon him. I am heartbroken more from what has been said about this than for anything that has happened. My relations with Mr. Lillis have been such that no one, unless insane, could have found fault with them.
>
> I have only dined with Mr. Lillis at the Baltimore once. That was on Saturday. I have never been in the Pompian room but once. That was a year ago, and I was with Mr. Cudahy and John Drew.
>
> I think my husband's attack upon Mr. Lillis was cowardly. If my husband thought he had any grievance against Mr. Lillis he should have settled it himself, man to man, and not have called in a servant to help him. But the attack was not justified. It was only less cowardly than his efforts to protect himself when the police came to arrest him, when he stated "He has ruined my home." That is an infamous, cowardly statement and absolutely untrue. No one knows it better than Mr. Cudahy.
>
> I have always treated my servants with consideration, and they can testify to the character of my home life and to the falsity of Mr. Cudahy's insinuations.
>
> EDNA COWIN CUDAHY.

Parr's Sugar Claim to be Passed On.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Richard Parr's claim to moiety because of information furnished to the Government whereby the American Sugar Refining Company made restitution of a large sum of money to the Government for duties will be passed on by Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury Department before the end of the week. William Loeb, Jr., Collector of Customs in New York, approved the claim. It is said the amount asked for by Mr. Parr exceeds $750,000, but that this will be materially reduced.

BANDIT FIRES AT POLICEMAN.

Bullets Knock Off His Helmet and Strike Belt Buckle—One Wounds Boy.

Joseph Greenberg of 1915 Third Avenue, for whom the police have been looking since Monday, when he is alleged to have held up his stepmother in her home and robbed her at the point of a pistol of $900 worth of jewelry, stepped into the side entrance of the saloon of Sabato Vigorito at 115th Street and Second Avenue yesterday evening, drew a revolver, and announced:

"Hands up everybody!"

Vigorito, with one of his bartenders, Frank Paul, a former pugilist, was serving several customers at the bar. Five or six more men were sitting at various tables. At Greenberg's command everyone except Vigorito and Paul, threw their hands ceilingward. Vigorito and Paul, however, leaped over the bar and through the front door, shouting for the police.

Greenberg retreated by the side door through which he had come. In doing so he caught a glimpse of Vigorito coming around the corner and blazed away at him. The shot shattered the window of the saloon, but Vigorito escaped.

Greenberg ran south in Second Avenue, a large crowd following him. Some of the pursuers, headed by Vigorito, sprang into a light buggy standing near the saloon, and were gaining upon Greenberg, when he turned and fired at them. The shot struck Giuseppe Vito, a ten-year-old boy, of 241 East 114th Street, inflicting a slight flesh wound on his head.

The bullet knocked off Kuhlman's helmet, and smashed a window behind him in the home of Dr. Joseph Calzella, at 2,170 Second Avenue. Mrs. Calzella, who was standing at the window, was cut about the hands by splinters of the glass.

Kuhlman drew his own revolver, but in the large crowd in the streets he feared to risk a shot. Greenberg had no such compunction, and fired a fourth time, at a distance of but five feet. The bullet struck the policeman's brass belt buckle and turned it half way around. Then, before the fellow could recover, Kuhlman closed in with him, and struck him a stunning blow on the head. Even on the ground, however, Greenberg managed still to struggle and to fire his fifth and last shot. It went astray. The crowd closed in upon him, and in a moment he was handcuffed and helpless.

All the way to the East 104th Street Station, however, Greenberg kept shoving his captors with his shoulders and abusing them. The policeman had all he could do to drag him along. At the station, while his pedigree was being taken, Greenberg started to fight again, and rolled all over the floor with several policemen. He was finally subdued and locked up on a charge of robbery for the offense of Monday and felonious assault for his rampage of the day.

Half an hour after he was locked up, Greenberg issued a statement, declaring that he had entered Vigorito's saloon and placed a ten-dollar bill on the bar. He said he turned away for a moment, and the bill disappeared. Then he drew his revolver, he said, to frighten the purloiner of the bill into restoring it. Then the men in the saloon turned upon him and beat him with clubs.

BAD MEMORY NO EXCUSE.

Schulman Must Stay In Jail for Not Remembering His Business Affairs.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals in an opinion yesterday in which Judges Coxe, Noyes, and Lacombe concurred, handed down a decision sustaining Judge Holt of the United States District Court in committing to jail for contempt Samuel Schulman, a bankrupt who refused to tell how he had disposed of assets of his firm a short time before its failure. The decision is of much importance in the trial of bankruptcy cases, inasmuch as the method of refusal adopted by Schulman was to answer "I don't remember" to all questions relating to the disposition of the assets.

MORPHINISM

for drug addictions, successfully applied for many years, involves little of the discomfort and other unpleasant features usually attendant upon the treatment of such cases. The period of residence required of patients averages less than three weeks. A high-class sanitarium is maintained, with skilled specialists and careful nursing.
